Roosevelt Views Parallel Landon Letter on Labor

Inquiry on Steel Asked of Kansan

White Hails Latter's Letter, but Berry Condemns It.

By Felix Bruner.

Unless President Roosevelt has changed his position since March 25, 1934, he stands four-square with Gov. Alf M. Landon, the Republican nominee for President, on the subject of the right of labor to organize.

Representatives of organized labor have been violently criticizing Gov. Landon's acceptance speech in which he said:

"The right of labor means to me the right of employes to join any type of union they prefer, whether it covers their plant, their craft or their industry. It means that, in an absence of a union contract, an employe has an equal right to join a union or to refuse to join a union.

"Under all circumstances, so states the Republican platform, employes are to be free from interference from any source, which means, as I read it, entire freedom from coercion or intimidation by the employer, any fellow employe or any other person."

On March 25, 1934, President Roosevelt wrote these words in a public document:

"The Government makes it clear that it favors no particular union or particular form of employe organization or representation. The Government's only duty is to secure absolute and uninfluenced freedom of choice without coercion, restraint or intimidation from any source."

Automobile Arbitration.

That statement is the fourth provision of the settlement of the threatened automobile strike which was brought about by the President in a conference at the White House. The agreement, given out at the Executive Mansion, was headed "Statement by the President."

The Republican platform statement on the same subject pledges the party to "protect the right of labor to organize and to bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing without interference from any source."

Thus, while the President gave it as the policy of the Government that labor should have freedom of choice "uninfluenced * * * from any source," the G. O. P. platform says "without interference from any source."

While the President's written statement of policy said this freedom should be "without coercion, restraint or intimidation from any source," Landon in his speech said it should be free "from coercion or intimidation by the employer, any fellow employe or any other person."

The statements of Landon and of the G. O. P. platform, which so closely parallel those of President Roosevelt are the basis of the attack of some labor leaders upon him. They have been construed as denial of the right of unions to organize workers.

Lewis Voices Opposition.

Immediately after Landon made his acceptance speech, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, gave the opposition argument in these words:

"Adopting the demand of the National Manufacturers Association, he proposes there shall be 'no interference from any source.' Such a policy, if carried into effect, would call for a rewriting of the Norris act to the end that efforts of organized labor to unionize an industry or a plant would become wrongful as a species of 'interference from any source.' It would preclude organization except where the workers spontaneously acted, and every laboring man knows this policy, if applied, would freeze the

WILLIAM GREEN.

Green, Willing To Quit, Won't Yield to Rebels

Slaps at Lewis in Talk Here, Invokes Memory of Samuel Gompers.

By Robert C. Albright.

Faced with the most serious internal cleavage in the history of the American Federation of Labor, President William Green yesterday offered to resign his job if necessary to heal the breach, but refused to "bend or yield or surrender to a minority."

Without mentioning his antagonist by name, Green slapped repeatedly at John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, and Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization, which precipitated the breach in the half-century-old labor federation.

Lewis' United Mine Workers and 11 other insurgent unions in the industrial labor movement, have been summoned to trial Monday before the federation's executive council on charges of fomenting "insurrection" and "dual unionism." Lewis has challenged the authority of the council to act, and the rebel groups may not appear.

Green, speaking so passionately at times that his voice was rasping when he finished, reviewed the industrial versus craft union fight in an "on the record" address at a National Press Club luncheon. He invoked the mantle of the late Samuel Gompers, which he said was his "legacy and heritage." Gompers, he said, stood for "voluntary action and democratic control."

Won't "Betray Trust."

"I'll pass out, and never be remembered again before I will betray the trust of this great philosopher," Green shouted.

"I would go to the extreme limit to bind up the wounds and heal the ever-widening breach and threat to solidarity. * * *

"There isn't any sacrifice I wouldn't be willing to make, even to giving up my position itself, to heal the breach and make our movement what it should be."

The Lewis group seeks to organize labor by industries, without provision for crafts. The Atlantic City convention of the Federation voted to protect the rights of craft unions in organizing mass production workers into industrial unions. Green, and a majority to the Federation's executive council, stand for craft unionism, or organization by skilled trades.

But Green yesterday denied that industrial versus craft organization of labor is the issue in the present controversy.

"There is a widespread misunderstanding of the real cause," he insisted. "It is commonly stated that there is a division over organization plans in the A. F. of L. That is not true. That is not the issue.

"I would defend those who stand for industrial unions and support those who stand for craft organizations as well. We have found that there is plenty of room in the

Landon Seeks Rail Rate Cut In Arid Areas

Governor Obtains I.C.C., State Parley on New Freight Charges.

By the Associated Press.

Topeka, Kans., July 31.—A conference Monday among Kansas railroad and Interstate Commerce Commission representatives on means of obtaining emergency freight rate reductions for drought areas was arranged today at the suggestion of Gov. Alf M. Landon.

In a telegram to E. B. Boyd, Chicago, chairman of the Western Trunk Line committee, Landon said "we cannot interpret" an I. C. C. ruling against the 1934 "certificate" plan of applying slashed rates to cattle, water and reed movements in drought areas "as a valid reason for not putting into effect immediately reduced rates."

Later, Landon's office said Boyd had sent the Governor word the conference would be arranged in Chicago in accordance with Landon's message.

The Republican Presidential nominee sent the telegram after a conference with State officials. He suggested the conference be held in Chicago Monday and designated Harry Umberger, dean of the Kansas State College and State extension director of the AAA, is the Kansas representative.

Cites I. C. C. Order.

Talking with reporters, Landon said an I. C. C. order had forbidden the use of certificates which, during the 1934 drought, were employed to certify that cattle, water and feed were eligible for drought rates.

Even with the certificate plan in effect in 1934, Landon said, there had been some "mooching" by dealers so that the freight reduction did not always get down to the drought-stricken farmer.

"We are trying to work out a program," Landon said, "that will be satisfactory to the railroads and insure getting reductions down to the farmers."

Confers With Bolton.

The candidate held a luncheon conference with Representative Chester C. Bolton, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee.

"The outlook for a Republican majority in the next House looks very encouraging," Bolton afterward said he had told the Governor. "The situation looks very good in Ohio at this time.

"The people seem to be just as anxious to elect a Republican House this year as to elect a Republican President."

(The last Congress had 103 Republicans out of 435 members.)

Bolton said he "understood" that "for one reason or another 45 Democrats in the last House already are out of the next Congress."

Mrs. Preston Davie, New York, president of the National Republican builders, talked with Gov. Landon and later told newsmen:

"I think he's got what it takes to win the election. He has a real understanding of the part women can play, the importance of the contribution they can make, and the stabilizing factor they can be in government. Nobody could help trusting him."

Farmer Confesses Operation on Self

Tampa, Fla., July 31 (AP).—Deputy Sheriff L. M. Hatton said that Clarence L. Sullivan, backwoods farmer on whom a mutilation operation had been performed, confessed tonight that he had emasculated himself.

Man Jumps From Ship In Potomac, Disappears

An unidentified man removed his coat and jumped from the hurricane deck of the S. S. Potomac last night just before it docked at Water street on its return from a trip down the river.

Jessica Buck, of 1724 H street northwest, and Frank Finley, of 2550 University place northwest, told police they saw the man swim toward Hains Point. Capt. Philip Barbour of the S. S. Potomac, ordered a boat lowered to search for the man, but it was unable to locate him.

Death Toll 14 As Hurricane Curves North

Fatality List Tentative; Storm Spending Self in South Alabama.

By the United Press.

Pensacola, Fla., July 31.—A tentative death toll of 14 was established tonight as a tropical hurricane blew itself out in southeastern Alabama after smashing across northwest Florida today. Five sailors, the crew of the tugboat Minnie Lee, were feared lost when the ship capsized in Choctawhatchee Bay, off Fort Walton, Fla., according to Coast Guard reports.

Added to two deaths caused while the storm was on Florida's east coast, were seven other deaths today.

Two sailors were missing and believed drowned at Panama City, Fla., sleeping in a house on municipal pier 3. They were believed lost when the pier collapsed under pounding of mountainous seas.

Veers to Alabama.

Its winds gradually diminishing to gale force, the hurricane whirled into Alabama leaving battered towns, smashed communications and dazed refugees in its wake.

Although winds of 100-mile-an-hour speed battered Fort Walton and Valparaiso, Fla., little seaboard towns east of here, no one was killed and only the most superficial injuries were reported.

At 5 p. m., the storm, its winds down to 45 miles an hour, had crossed the Alabama border and was moving northward toward Montgomery. The violence which characterized the storm on the seaboard was expected to diminish materially before it reaches the Alabama capital.

The schooner Ketchum, out of St. Petersburg, was missing. Many vessels were in minor difficulties after riding out the storm.

Fort Walton in Path.

The winds first struck Fort Walton, little resort town which in winter has a population of 45. A few hours before the storm struck, however, it was crowded with 2,000 summer visitors.

Many of the visitors, forewarned by the Federal hurricane warning system, had evacuated in driving rain and high winds.

The storm went almost directly northward, striking Valparaiso, which has a population of 200. Damage there was heavy, the town's school being demolished.

As the storm roared on to the Alabama-Florida line, its winds lessened to gale force.

Over this entire section, however, it had obliterated communications.

The entire Florida coastline from Apalachicola to Pensacola took a terrific battering from the hurricane winds and tides from 5 to 8 feet above normal. At Mary Esther, Fla., docks were washed away. Municipal docks at Panama City, Fla., were damaged heavily by pounding seas.

8 Puerto Ricans Sentenced in Plot

By the Associated Press.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, July 31.—Crowds shouting "down with Yankee imperialism" demonstrated outside the courthouse today when eight Puerto Rican Nationalists were convicted of conspiring to overthrow the United States Government.

While the crowd clamored in protest, the eight were sentenced to prison for six years and were taken immediately to jail.

The sentences ended their second trial on three charges, attempting to overthrow the United States Government by force, fomenting violence, and trying to recruit an "army of independence." A previous jury disagreed.

Pedro Albizu Campos, one-time Harvard University student and leader of the island insurrectionists, was found guilty on all counts, as were Luis Velzquez, treasurer of the Nationalist party; Juan Antonio Corretjer, general secretary; Julio Velazquez and Juan Gallardo Santiago.

The other defendants were found guilty on the first and third counts, but not of inciting to rebellion. They were Soto Velez, Erasmo Velazquez and Pablo Rosado Ortiz. They were sentenced to four and two years on each of the two counts.

5 Naval Officers Ordered to Brazil

Five additional naval officers have been ordered to the United States Naval Mission in Brazil to co-operate in an advisory capacity with Brazilian naval officers and the minister of marine, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

The officers ordered to join the mission are Commanders Stewart A. Manahan and Edmund E. Brady, Lieut. Comdrs. Charles R. Pratt and Felix L. Johnson and Lieut. Edward C. Ewen.

Commander Brady is now attached to the Bureau of Construction and Repair.

Capt. Charles C. Gill and Commander Francis A. Craven, now in Rio de Janeiro, will continue as members of the mission.

Convict Slain, 700 Inmates Riot in Prison

By the Associated Press.

Salem, Oreg., July 31.—A thrice-convicted murderer was killed and two other prisoners were wounded when inmates of the Oregon Penitentiary rioted nearly three hours here today in protest against a court ruling refusing freedom to a prisoner.

Threats of a tear-gas attack by 20 State policemen finally forced surrender of the 700 convicts, who had created pandemonium in the prison yard half the afternoon.

Thomas Baughn, 50-year-old convict, paid with his life as he and several others had led nearly 100 yelling prisoners in a dash for the walls.

A bullet from the rifle of a guard felled him with a fatal abdominal wound. Two others went down before the convicts ran for cover.

The slain convict was Thomas Baughn, who died an hour after a rifle bullet pierced his lungs. Wounded were James J. Hamilton, 36, murderer, serving life sentence, shot through the back and in serious condition; and Joseph Dupray, 24, serving two-year sentence for burglary, shot through the hand.

Guard Corey said he fired when the three ran for the walls, ignoring his warning to "halt!"

So far as could be learned the demonstration began when cooks in the commissary struck. Prison officials said they began carrying food into the yard.

The demonstration started after the convicts learned Judge Arlie G. Walker had refused the plea of Roy Lamar for full release upon serving a minimum term, good behavior credits deducted.

'Marriage Clause' Dismissal Carried To Supreme Court

Mrs. Lillian H. Rhodes, of 3430 Brown street northwest, yesterday asked the United States Supreme Court to uphold her attack on the provisions of the "married persons' clause" of the 1932 economy act, which calls for dismissal ahead of single persons of those in Federal employ whose husband or wife also works for the Government.

The nine justices were asked to review a decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals declining to reinstate her in a $2,900-a-year position as assistant accountant and auditor with the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Mrs. Rhodes contended in her petition to the Supreme Court that "preservation of the integrity of the Civil Service Act" was involved.

Mrs. Rhodes was dismissed July 15, 1933. She contended that if she had remained in Government service until November, 1933, she would have been entitled to an annuity as a retired worker by virtue of 15 years' service.

Her petition said the Civil Service Commission, after first holding that the dismissal had been illegal, later approved it in January, 1934, as of July 15, 1933.

Her husband, Carrell F. Rhodes, is an attorney with the Federal Trade Commission.

At 6 p. m. a special train load of the Democrats left Union Station. Another contingent left in two special cars on the 12:35 train this morning.

France and Britain, on One Side, Declared Anxious to Back Madrid Government, While Italy and Germany Support Rebels.

(Editor's note: H. R. Ekins, veteran United Press war correspondent and now United Press night cable editor in New York, tells in the following dispatch how the Spanish civil war once more has brought Europe to the brink of an international crisis.)

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

New York, July 31.—Fear that Spain's bloody civil war between fascism and communism—dominant forces now determining the political and military alignments of the world—may develop into an international conflict increased tonight with substantiation of reports that Italian airplanes sought to aid Fascist rebels in Spanish Morocco.

New and forboding international developments threatened when the chancelleries of Europe heard that two Italian Fascist airplanes cracked up in French Morocco, governed by the Popular Front government of Paris, and that others reached the rebel forces in Spanish Morocco.

[At Paris the French government fearing the Spanish revolt might touch off a new world conflict, announced tonight it would remain neutral in the struggle. Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos stated an investigation had been begun by French authorities into the appearance of Italian planes in French Morocco. He said France has not and will not furnish arms to the Spanish loyalists. A spokesman for the Italian Embassy said the planes which crashed in Africa must have been private machines.

[The Italian government at Rome began today an investigation into the movements involving Italian planes in French Morocco. Gen. Francisco Franco, at Tetuan, Spanish Morocco, denied the insurgents had received aid or arms from any foreign power.]

U.S.-Canadian Amity Lauded By Roosevelt

President Addresses Throng in French and English at Quebec Ovation.

By the Associated Press.

Quebec, July 31.—Cementing anew America's friendship for her neighbors on the north, President Roosevelt, in a speech here today, called for "frank dealing" and a "spirit of give and take" in settling all problems facing the world.

Standing on a platform covered with American and British flags at the foot of the monument to Wolfe and Montcalm on Dufferin Terrace, the American Chief Executive, speaking in English and French, responded to a big ovation and official greetings by holding up dispute-free Canadian-American relations as a fine example for other nations to follow. The President left Quebec for Waterbury, Vt., at 5 p. m.

Gala Throng Turns Out.

It was a gala throng that turned out to greet with pomp and fanfare the first American President to pay an official call here. Thousands spread out on the broad terrace heard his address and those of Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General; Premier Mackenzie King, and other ranking Canadian officials.

Scarlet-coated troops, mounted and on foot, served as guard of honor at the depot and at the terrace, where a 21-gun salute echoed over the St. Lawrence from the Citadel, summer residence of the Governor General, as the President was being welcomed. Red and blue uniformed Royal Canadian Mounted Police assisted Secret Service men in protecting him.

After the speech-making the President went to the Citadel for a private luncheon given by the Governor General and Lady Tweedsmuir and for conferences on problems affecting the two countries with Lord Tweedsmuir and the premier.

'Quoddy Is Talked.

Mr. Roosevelt had told newspapermen previously he would take up the possibility of mutual development of hydroelectric power in Passamaquoddy Bay and on the St. Lawrence.

"In the solution of grave problems that face the world today," the President said in his terrace address, "frank dealing, co-operation and a spirit of give and take between nations is more important than ever before.

Hamm Captor Kills Himself In Prison Cell

Poison in Gum Blamed for Peifer's Death 2 Hours After Sentence.

By the Associated Press.

St. Paul, July 31.—John P. Peifer, convicted in the $100,000 kidnaping of William Hamm, jr., killed himself in the county jail today two hours after being sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment.

Physicians said Peifer apparently had been dead about 30 minutes when he was found, after being alone in the cell less than an hour.

Police Surgeon E. W. Miller and Dr. Harold Andresen said the former night club proprietor convicted as finger man in the Hamm kidnaping had poisoned himself. Dr. Miller said Peifer had "some sort of gum in his mouth when we found him."

Peifer had protested his innocence during his two weeks trial, taking the stand in his own defense to deny he had received $10,000 of the $100,000 ransom for his part in the crime.

He was convicted by a Federal Court jury Saturday, and sentenced this morning after Judge M. M. Joyce denied a motion for a new trial.

Peifer's death was the second in the county jail under similar circumstances. Willie Sharkey, member of the Touhy gang of Chicago, hanged himself. Other members of the gang were subsequently acquitted. Sharkey's death occurred shortly after Hamm was kidnaped June 15, 1933.

Germany and Italy To Aid Peace Pact

London, July 31 (AP).—A fresh attempt to write a new pact guaranteeing the peace of uneasy Europe was launched tonight with German and Italian acceptance of invitations to participate in a five-power Locarno conference this fall.

Almost simultaneously, the Nazi and Fascist nations announced they had agreed to sit down with France, Great Britain and Belgium in an effort to work out a substitute for the Locarno Treaty entered into in 1925 and denounced by Chancellor Adolf Hitler March 7 when he marched his troops into the Rhineland.

Acceptances of the invitations, which were extended last week, following a meeting of representatives of France, Belgium and Great Britain in London, were received with deep satisfaction in London's official circles.

No date for the conference has been set, but it was expected to be held either before or after the meeting of the League of Nations Assembly in Geneva in September.

8 Believed Dead In Crash of Plane

Guernsey, Channel Islands, July 31 (U.P.).—Six passengers, the pilot and mechanic were believed dead tonight after an amphibian plane, the Cloud of Iona, fell into the sea and disappeared between Guernsey and Jersey.

Mexico City, July 31 (U.P.).—Senator Robert R. Reynolds, (Democrat) North Carolina, who was robbed of several hundred dollars in money and jewelry on the Pan American Highway near Taxco, Guerrero state, last Tuesday, returned to Mexico City from Acapulco, on the Pacific Coast, tonight.

Divorcee Dies in 50-Foot Fall From Window of Home Here

Mrs. Lulie Cardwell Stone, about 60, divorced wife of a wealthy furniture manufacturer, plummeted 50 feet from a rear window of her home at 2230 Massachusetts avenue northwest, near Sheridan Circle yesterday afternoon and was almost instantly killed when she struck the pavement below.

She was found by her cook, Elizabeth Moore, who ran to find Mrs. Stone dying on the pavement.

"I heard a thud," she said, "and ran out there to see what it was all about. And there was Mrs. Stone. I didn't know what to do, I was so scared."

A maid at home next door, who also heard Mrs. Stone's body as it struck the pavement, called police.

Mrs. Stone, who has been living in Washington since she and her husband were separated two years ago, was pronounced dead six minutes after her fall by Dr. Robert Kassan, of Emergency Hospital.

The dead woman left no note. According to persons who had seen her earlier in the day, "she was perfectly happy."

Mrs. Stone had an appointment with a woman from a finance company for 4 p. m. It was understood that Mrs. Stone was making preparations to sell her rooming house business to the company. The woman with whom Mrs. Stone had the business date arrived at five minutes of four.

"I just can't believe it," she said. "We were to have had this engagement to make plans for financing the business."

Mrs. Stone did not own the home, but she owned the furniture and

Shirley Temple Plot Revealed As Boy Admits $25,000 Demand

A 16-year-old Nebraska farm boy has confessed he sent a $25,000 extortion letter to the father of Shirley Temple, child actress, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced last night.

The boy is Sterling Walrod Powell, who lives near Grant. In the letter to George Temple, father of Shirley, he threatened to harm the juvenile star unless payment was made.

Sheriff H. Bechtel, of Powell's home town, made the arrest yesterday at the request of the Department of Justice after Temple had told Federal agents in Hollywood, Calif., that he received the letter on May 18, demanding he charter an airplane and drop an envelope containing the $25,000 near Grant.

"Dire results" were threatened by May 15 unless the terms were carried out.

When the sheriff found the boy, he was working in a field on the farm of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Powell, a mile-and-a-half from Grant.

According to Bechtel, the youth said he had no intention of going through the plot.

"I sent the letter on an impulse after seeing a motion picture," Powell confessed.

The boy mailed the letter to Shirley's father May 9. It said:

"Unless $25,000 is dropped from an airplane near Grant, Nebr., on May 15, the life of Shirley Temple will be endangered."

The letter was not noticed in the fan mail of his daughter until nine days after it was sent, Temple said.

The Spanish Revolt.

United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers narrowly escaped being involved in the bombardment of the port of Gijon by a Spanish rebel ship yesterday, he reported to the State Department.

A major battle for possession of Madrid appeared imminent as rebel armies converged on the capital, capturing a town 15 miles away. Rebel Gen. Cabanellas said the fall of the city was a "question of hours." Virtually all Americans wanting to leave Madrid were evacuated to Valencia.

The forcing down of Italian planes in French Morocco on a flight to allegedly aid Spanish rebels had repercussions in Europe's capitals. Talks on neutrality policies among France, Germany, Italy and England seemed in prospect. Fourteen more Italian planes reportedly landed in Spanish Morocco yesterday.

Rebels Near Capital.

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, July 31.—Troops of the rebellion announced tonight they were marching against Madrid and it appeared the crucial battle in the two-weeks' old revolt was near.

Broadcasts from Fascist stations asserted four columns or rebel forces were converging on the city. One was within artillery range, 15 miles, ready to hurl destructive shell-fire against Loyalist defenders.

(Prince Carlos, brother-in-law of Prince Juan of the Asturias, heir presumptive to the non-existent Spanish throne, was reported in Spain near headquarters of Carlist rebels at Pamplona.)

Miners Aid Troops.

Miners bolstered Loyalist troops for a new siege of the northern city of Oviedo, but delayed direct attack to spare the city further damage. The city had changed hands at least twice during heavy fighting of the last three days.

Catalan troops thrust at Zaragoza, important northern city held by rebels, in a series of fierce encounters. "Many casualties" were reported.

Reports from Jaen said loyal forces had demanded surrender of Cordoba and that Col. Yague, chief of the rebels within, had committed suicide.

Loyalist entrance into Cordoba was predicted shortly as rebels were deserting strategic points in the city.

Advices from Navalperal said a Loyalist column headed by Col. Mangader routed a rebel force, killing 63 and taking a number of prisoners.

Leonardo Santos Moraes, Portuguese newspaperman who is a political exile from his own country, died of wounds suffered while reporting for a Spanish newspaper.

It was learned tonight the government was investigating affairs of the Anglo-South American Bank. It was not indicated in what connec-

Farley Leaves Postoffice Job For Campaign

N. Y. Conferences Planned by Democratic Chief to Launch Drive.

James A. Farley stepped out of the office of Postmaster General at least temporarily yesterday to manage the compaign of President Roosevelt for re-election. W. W. Hawes, first Assistant Postmaster General, will become active Postmaster General.

Farley left last night for New York where he will prepare for a long series of conferences with Democratic National committeeman and State chairman from each State. These conferences will begin in about a week and will result in constructing the framework for the campaign.

At the same time it was revealed that the Democratic National committee is forming separate organizations of businessmen, veterans, farmers and colored persons.

Every County.

Farley declared that the party will have more speakers in the present campaign than the Democratic Party has ever had in a Presidential race. He added that speakers will be sent into every county in the country.

The extent of the campaign that will be made by radio, he indicated, will depend upon the amount of money at the command of the Democratic organization. He repeated his previous assertion that he expected to keep the expenses of the entire campaign within $2,000,000. He said that only a part of this amount has been raised.

Commenting on formation of a separate organization of colored voters, Farley said that the colored people hold the balance of power in Pennsylvania and that their vote is very important in New York, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Michigan and other States. Julian D. Rainey, Boston colored leader, will have charge of the Eastern section and Rep. Arthur Mitchell, Illinois colored chieftain, of the west.

No general western headquarters will be set up, the National chairman said. He said that he believed the entire campaign must be conducted from New York to avoid duplication of effort and confusion. The various committees, however, are expected to open headquarters in different sections of the country.

Farley has not changed his previous prediction that President Roosevelt will carry every State.

Cites Michelson.

Commenting on the fact that Norman Baxter, a member of the national committee's publicity staff, has been sent to Portland, Me., to edit the Portland News, Farley referred his questioners to Charles Michelson, in charge of the party's publicity. The Maine election, the first in the country, will be held September 14.

"They wanted a good editor and Charlie sent them one," said Farley. "Michelson knows all about it."

Baxter, in answer to an inquiry, telegraphed The Post:

"The Portland Evening News in its reoorganization is owned and controlled by Maine citizens who offered me the opportunity of associating myself with a Democratic newspaper. I am in the employ of and being paid by the Maine Publishing Co."

Mrs. Rohde to Speak.

New York, July 31 (AP).—The Democratic National Committee announced tonight that Mrs. Ruth Bryan Rohde, United States Minister to Denmark, and daughter of William Jennings Bryan, will speak in a Nation-wide broadcast Wednesday night on President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

Mrs. Rohde, who will speak from 9:45 to 10 p. m., Eastern standard time, over the Columbia network, will be the first speaker in a series of 15-minute programs entitled "Happy Days," which will be presented once a week by the Democratic National Committee during the next three months.

Hospitals Aid Hunt For Taxi Driver

All hospitals have been asked to aid in the search for Charles L. Miller, missing cab driver, Inspector B. W. Thompson, chief of detectives, said last night.

Meanwhile, Miller's son, Charles, jr., observed a quiet birthday yesterday at his home, 2853 Mills avenue northeast. He was 9 years old.

Miller, 44, formerly a contractor, disappeared Tuesday night after delivering a passenger on the Catholic University grounds.

He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, has brown eyes, mixed gray hair, and when last seen was wearing a blue shirt, white trousers and a black pin-stripe tie.

$245,000 Remy Estate Is Willed to Wife

Mrs. Mary P. Remy, now living in Bremerton, Wash., was named as the sole beneficiary of the $245,000 estate of William B. Remy, former District resident, who died in Seattle, Wash., last April, it was shown in the District Court yesterday when a petition for the probate of his will was filed.

Through the National Savings & Trust Co., and the law firm of Minor, Gatley & Drury, the court was informed Mr. Remy had approximately $190,000 in securities and $2,500 in cash here with the trust company, and $53,000 with the Bankers Trust Co., of New York City. The attorneys were unable to say what real estate was held by the estate.

Board Named to Hear Street Levy Appeals

A special board of District officials to pass upon appeals for assessments for street paving in which there are any unusual circumstances was created by the Commissioners yesterday.

Edward Dent, surveyor, was named chairman. Other members include Assessor Fred Allen and Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Fowler, who has charge of suits over assessments.

Hull Reciprocal Trade Program Has Landon on the Spot; Looms Large as Issue.

By Franklyn Waltman

ONE of the most difficult questions confronting Gov. Alf M. Landon in his Presidential race is the tariff issue, or more specifically, the Hull reciprocal trade program. He is definitely on a hot spot when it comes to that issue, and consequently it was not surprising that he omitted discussion of that topic from his acceptance speech.

WALTMAN.

The Democratic strategists are fully aware of the difficulty of the Landon position on trade reciprocity and in due time they intend to press the advantage they have on this issue and to add to Gov. Landon's embarrasment. Already the Administration has indicated that it is determined to defend the Hull program and its spokesmen soon will begin demanding that the Republican nominee make clear his attitude.

Before November arrives this question may become one of the foremost in the campaign. Republicans aggressively are raising it in the States bordering Canada and the Democrats, while willing to have the issue smothered in that section, are not averse to stirring it up in the East and on the Pacific Coast, where a surprisingly large number of persons are interested in the promotion of foreign trade.

Gov. Landon's embarrassment on the question grows out of the dissension, chiefly along sectional lines, of his adherents on this question. Whatever he says on this question is certain to offend some group of stanch supporters. Consequently, he is being pulled in one direction by the supporters of the reciprocity idea and in another by its opponents.

He can get little help from the Republican platform for it looks in two different directions on this question. It is true that in one place the platform asserts that "we will repeal the present reciprocal trade agreement law" but that refers to the "present" law and is not a condemnation of the reciprocity idea.

Indeed, in another place the platform pledges the party "to furnish Government assistance in disposing of surpluses in foreign trade by bargaining for foreign markets selectively by countries, both as to exports and imports," adding that "we strenuously oppose so-called reciprocal treaties which trade off the American farmer." Of course everyone interested in the country's welfare opposes treaties which "trade off the American farmer."

It is no secret that the platform references to the tariff question do not represent the ideas of the Landon representatives on the platform committee. They proposed a plank which indorsed the reciprocity principle but raised an objection to the secrecy with which existing agreements had been made and with the lodging of all authority in the matter in the President's hands.

Such is the attitude of Frank Knox, the Republican Vice Presidential nominee, as expressed to the Economic Club of New York during his pre-convention fight for the Republican Presidential nomination. He asserted on that occasion that "it is in our interest to promote world trade rather than to participate in throttling it." Gov. Landon most probably would concur in that contention and if left free would like to remove the reciprocal tariff issue from the campaign by indorsing in principle that New Deal policy—as so many other persons who thoroughly disagree with the New Deal in other respects have indorsed it.

But Gov. Landon is no longer free to say exactly what he thinks. He must make some concessions to his party associates. This is true of any candidate who ever sought the Presidency. And his party is split over the questions. On the one hand, Gov. Landon finds most of the Kansas group which helped him get the Republican nomination favor the reciprocal trade agreement.

Charles P. Taft, the head of the Landon personal research staff, in his recent book "You and I—and Roosevelt," asserts that "the present policy of bilateral trade agreements is sound, and the men at the State Department who are working on the problem are among the best in the Administration," and he adds, "the only possible alternative for those who condemn the policy is economic isolation."

Gov. Landon finds that many of his Eastern supporters indorse that program. But he also finds that Republican workers in States along the Canadian border, believing that any stick is good enough with which to beat a Democrat, are making the Canadian trade agreement the major issue of the campaign.

A hard-boiled Republican Tory, who admitted that in a campaign he was interested in nothing but political expediency, recently contended that if the reciprocal trade agreements were made the major issue Gov. Landon could be assured of carrying every State 100 miles below the Canadian border from coast to coast. It was clear he would do all he could to make the Canadian agreement the primary issue of the campaign.

Gov. Landon also finds on his doorstep Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, issuing a blast against not only the reciprocal trade agreements, but all proposals for reducing tariffs, asserting that politically speaking 98 per cent of the country opposes the tariff agreements. Dangled before his eyes is the support of the former New Dealer, George N. Peek, foremost critic of the Hull program.

Soon or late the Democrats will force Gov. Landon to set forth his views on the reciprocal tariff program. It is clear that he will not be able to appease all of his supporters, no matter what he says. He faces one of these dilemmas where you are damned if you do and damned if you do not. Perhaps the way out for him is to forget expendiency and be guided by that old political axiom: "When in doubt do what is right."

Buying Wave in World Markets Spurred by Fears of Crisis.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 31.—North America's drought and Europe's rains spurred a world-wide wave of buying today which hoisted major farm commodities to a 6-year general peak.

Fears that a crisis in wheat was approaching galvanized traders in all the principal marts.

Liverpool quotations soared 5 cents, Buenos Aires 3 cents and on the Chicago Board of Trade the December delivery touched $1.14 a bushel. The highest figure in three years, before heavy profit-taking cut down the advance. The world price for wheat everywhere was above the dollar mark.

Growing realization of the magnitude of damage from the prolonged drought in the farm belt contributed to send corn above that price line also, for the first time since 1930. It closed here 1½ to 3⅜ cents up, September delivery $1.01⅜@1.01⅝.

Plans "Shelterbelt."

By the Associated Press.

Morris Cooke, chairman of President Roosevelt's Great Plains Drought Area Committee, said yesterday the Administration was considering reviving the abandoned "shelterbelt" of trees as part of its long-range drought prevention program.

Disclosing the committee had discussed the project at its meeting yesterday, Cooke said it was "not dead, but very active."

Questioned as to the failure of Congress to provide money for continuing the tree-planting venture, Cooke said some money still was available out of previous allocations.

Planting of belts of trees running from north to south across the Middle West was undertaken by the Administration previously with the expressed hope of holding the soil and changing climatic conditions.

Earle H. Clapp, acting chief of the Forest Service, and A. A. Simpson, associate director of the shelterbelt, were quoted as telling the committee yesterday that 81.2 per cent of 24,000,000 trees planted had survived up to July 1, "despite severe drought."

Amarilla Parley.

Cooke announced the committee, on an inspection tour, would spend all day August 14 at Amarillo, Tex., its first stop, to confer with representatives of Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico.

He added the Federal group would end its tour August 23 at Aberdeen, S. Dak. It will report to President Roosevelt in the drought area.

Responding to pleas by the Governors of Iowa and Nebraska, Federal officials agreed yesterday to provide increases in WPA allotments in both States to permit employment of destitute farmers in small projects, and direct cash loans from rural rehabilitation funds, the money to be repaid by farmers when opportunities for employment on public projects present themselves.

Fidelity Loan Audit Not Yet Complete

Examination of the books of the Fidelity Building & Loan Association has not been completed, M. L. Barnett, receiver, announced yesterday.

Following the arrest of Fred B. Rhodes, former president, on a charge of misappropriating $12,602, the Comptroller of the Currency closed the institution on July 18.

It was said at that time that the company's offices would be closed for at least ten days to permit an audit. Barnett yesterday stated he could not estimate when the study would be completed.

Text of Roosevelt Address

By the Associated Press.

Quebec, July 31.—Following is text of President Roosevelt's address here today in responding to an official welcome:

Your Excellency, Mr. Prime Minister, my friends and neighbors of Canada:

From the moment I received the hospitable invitation of your governor general, I have been filled with the most happy anticipation of this all too brief visit. Canada and its people have always had a very real hold on my affections; I am happy again to be able to assure you of this fact in person and to express my grateful appreciation of the warmth of your welcome.

That I am not a stranger may be illustrated by the fact that since the age of 2 I have spent the majority of my summers in the Province of New Brunswick, and by my recent most refreshing cruise along the beautiful shores of the maritime provinces where once more I have found friendship, relaxation and deep contentment.

Nor am I ignorant or unmindful of the charms of other sections of this great Dominion—Ontario and that great empire which extends west of it to the Pacific.

Colonists Recalled.

But to many of my countrymen, and I am no exception to this rule, Quebec has a fascination all its own. The Plains of Abraham and the cliffs which lead to them are eternal memorials to brave French, to brave British and to brave American colonists who have fallen in battle, be it in victory of in defeat.

Yet there is a nobler monument: for on these fields of battle was born the living miracle which we are privileged to see today—two great racial stocks residing side by side in peace and friendship, each contributing its particular genius in the molding of a nation. This is a monument worthy of those who gave their lives; this is an example from which all thinking men draw deep satisfaction and inspiration.

While I was on my cruise, I read in a newspaper that I was to be received with all the honors customarily rendered to a foreign ruler.

Your Excellency, I am grateful for the honors; but something within me rebelled at that word "foreign." I say this because when I have been in Canada, I have never heard a Canadian refer to an American as a "foreigner." He is just an "American." And, in the same way, in the United States, Canadians are not "foreigners," they are "Canadians."

That simple little distinction illustrates to me better than anything else the relationship between our two countries.

On both sides of the line we are so accustomed to an undefended boundary 3,000 miles long that we are inclined perhaps to minimize its vast importance, not only to our own continuing relations but also to the example which it sets to the other nations of the world.

Canadians and Americans visit each other each year by the hundreds of thousands—but, more important, they visit each other without the use of passports.

Trade Agreement Cited.

And, within recent months, another significant action speaks louder than words, for the trade agreement which I had the privilege of signing with your Prime Minister last autumn is tangible evidence of the desire of the people of both countries to practice what they preach when they speak of the good neighbor.

In the solution of the grave problems that face the world today, frank dealing, co-operation and a spirit of give and take between nations is more important than ever before.

The United States and Canada and, indeed, all parts of the British Empire share a democratic form of government which comes to us from common sources. We have adapted these institutions to our own needs and our own special conditions, but fundamentally they are the same.

The natural sympathy and understanding that exists between us was, I feel, demonstrated in the universal feeling of grief when the news of the death of the late King George was received in the United States. We felt not only that the head of a friendly nation had been removed but that a friend whose voice had penetrated into almost every home in the United States had been taken from us—a great king and a great gentleman.

It has also been my privilege to know his Majesty, King Edward, and we look forward to the day when, finding it possible to come again to the Dominion, he may also visit with his neighbors in the United States.

Two Peoples United.

Monsieur le Premier Ministre de Quebec, Monsieur le Maire:

Ces aimables paroles que vous venez de m'adresser au nom de votre grande province et de votre belle ville, et que vous adressez, par moi, au peuple des Etat, Unis, me touchent profondement, et je vous prie de croire que je suis tres sensible a la chaleur de votre accueil.

Que de scenes de valeur et d'heroisme ce nom de Quebec evoque en nous, et que de noms illustres s'associent a ce noble roc.

C'est pour rendre hommage a ces peros que viennent tous les ans a Quebec des milliers de mes compatriots. Ils y prolongent leur sejour, seduits par la beaute merveilleuse de ce site, le doux charme de ses campagnes et l'accueil hospitalier de ses habitants. Cette hospitalite Canadienne, si douce et si franche, est devenue une tradition dans mon pays. C'est par ces echanges de visite, par ces contacts repetes entre Canadiens et Americains que nous parviendrons a resserrer encore les liens deja etroits qui unissent nos deux peuples.

Mr. Mackenzie King, you already know the path to Washington. I hope much that you will come and visit me again.

Your Excellency, we are looking forward, as you know, to a visit from you and her Excellency to Mrs. Roosevelt and myself at the White House as soon as it may be convenient for you. May we speed the day when the heads of the Canadian and American nations will see more of each other, not as foreigners, but as neighbors and friends.

(Following is an English translation of the words spoken in French.)

Mr. Prime Minister of Quebec, Mr. Mayor:

The words of kindness which you have addressed to me in the name of your great province and of your beautiful city and which you address through me to the people of the United States touch me deeply, and I beg you to believe that I am deeply sensible of the warmth of your welcome.

What scenes of valor and heroism this name of Quebec stirs in us; what illustrious names are associated with this noble rock.

It is to pay homage to those heroes that thousands of my compatriots come every year to Quebec. Here they prolong their stay, lured by the great beauty of this site, by the soft charm of your countryside and by the hospitable greeting of your inhabitants. This Canadian hospitality, so simple and so open, has become a tradition in my country.

It is by these exchanges of visits, by these continuous contacts between Canadians and Americans that we shall come to tighten the close bonds which already unite our two peoples.

Landon Called A Real Liberal By Mrs. Meyer

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 31.—Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer, wife of Publisher Eugene Meyer, of The Washington Post, said tonight in a radio address Gov. Alf M. Landon's voice was that of "genuine liberalism and unless we heed it and have the courage to follow it, this campaign may sound the death knell of liberalism not only in our country, but throughout the world."

The Republican Presidential candidate's acceptance speech, Mrs. Meyer said, "marked a great historic moment, for there and then the challenge of a sincere and courageous Americanism was flung in the face of the New Deal."

"The great struggle has now begun between individual freedom and the trend toward a bureaucratic collectivism, between local autonomy and centralization, between constitutional government and an arbitrary personal rule."

In Landon's speech, she added, "the liberal progressive note runs like a theme song * * * but he condemns reckless experimentation * * *."

Mrs. Meyer said President Roosevelt "does not understand or does not wish to understand the democartic machinery of our Nation * * *."

Speaking of his Presidency she asserted:

"As far as definite achievement is concerned, nobody has ever more completely wasted a magnificent opportunity."

She denounced "shameful conditions which make the WPA the most vulnerable part of the Administration's record," and contended Senator Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, who "incurred the enmity of the Administration by voting against some of the New Deal legislation," was defeated in a recent primary "partly through the use of the WPA machinery * * *."

Pershing Fraud Fugitive Jailed, Waits D.C. Trial

A 30-month flight to escape trial on an indictment charging him with using the mails "in the furtherance of a scheme to defraud" was formally brought to a close yesterday when Alfred M. Layton, dapper promoter of the Gen. John J. Pershing portrait bust committee, yesterday was surrendered in District court by his bondsman.

Meantime, it was learned Isaac B. Jones, who had obtained Layton's release on a $10,000 bond, must look to Congressional aid to secure return of the bond money, which was forfeited early last month. Had Jones waited two weeks longer to pay the bond, he could have surrendered Layton and saved the money.

Layton is said to have circularized scores of prominent citizens to obtain funds for the purchase of the Pershing bust by Moses Dykaar, noted sculptor. The bust was to have been presented to the Nation as a tribute to the feats of the war-time general. About $11,000 was obtained in the drive, and Layton is charged with having made no accounting of it.

Plan to Enforce Price Law Drafted

By the Associated Press.

A plan for "co-operative action" to enforce the new Robinson-Patman antiprice discrimination law was drafted yesterday by Justice Department and Federal Trade Commission officials.

The act forbids manufacturers and wholesalers to give discounts to big purchasers—such as chain stores—in excess of the actual savings made by selling in large quantities. It also authorizes the Federal Trade Commission to limit the size of purchases on which discounts may be given.

Federal Trade Commissioner E. L. Davis pointed out that the commission can issue "cease and desist orders" if it decides, after a public hearing, that the law is being violated.

The Justice Department is authorized to enforce criminal provisions of the statute, he added, and to bring injunction suits in Federal courts to prevent the granting of illegal discounts.

Roosevelt, Landon Labor Views

movement to organize American labor."

The Norris act, to which Lewis referred, was passed long before President Roosevelt enunciated the labor policies of the Government in the automobile strike agreement.

The Democratic platform declares that "we have written into the law of the land his right (the worker's) to collective bargaining and self-organization free from the interference from any other source. This is the stand for which labor leaders opposing Landon are fighting.

Weeks of Controversy.

The automobile agreement was reached after weeks of controversy. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, then head of the NRA, met with employers and employes and finally, when the situation appeared deadlocked, the controversy was taken to the White House. At a night conference the agreement was written and signed.

In his statement accompanying the agreement, President Roosevelt said:

"In the settlement there is a frame-work for a new structure of industrial relations—a new basis of understanding between employer and employe. I would like you to know that in the settlement just reached in the automobile industry we have charted a new course in social engineering in the United States.

"It is my hope that out of this will come a new realization of the opportunities of capital and labor not only to compose their differences at the conference table and to recognize their respective rights and responsibilities but also to establish a foundation on which they can co-operate in bettering the human relations involved in any large industrial enterprise.

Cites Letter to Thomas.

Philip Murray, vice president of the mine workers, one of the outspoken critics of Landon and defenders of President Roosevelt, telegraphed the Kansas Governor yesterday, asking him to investigate alleged "coercive tactics" in the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation against union organizers at Aliquippa, Pa. Murray is chairman of the steel workers organizing committee.

Murray, according to the Associated Press, referred to Landon's letter to Norman Thomas, in which the former said that labor unions have the right "to promote by lawful and proper means the organization of an organized industry, which includes the right to send in an organizer."

The labor leader asserted William T. Mossman, uncle of Landon, is public relations counsel for the steel company, and told the nominee in his telegram:

"So serious are Jones & Laughlin tactics, recently exposed by the National Labor Relations Board, and so foreign are they to your quoted beliefs in respect to a bonafide labor union that I feel you owe it to yourself to carry your message personally to the workmen at Aliquippa. I make this suggestion on the assumption that you have enough influence with your Uncle Bill so that Jones & Laughlin will permit you to make a speech in Aliquippa.

"Anything short of some such definite remedial action on your part in this notorious company-terrorized steel town will tend to verify the growing belief you are merely a little nephew of big steel."

Landon declined to comment on the message, a Topeka dispatch said.

Murray, incidentally, once expressed himself on the subject of coercion. In 1921 he said to a Senate investigating committee that one of the conditions of peaceful industrial operations in West Virginia was:

"The protection of unorganized workers against intimidation or coercion by members of the United Mine Workers or any other labor organization."

Meanwhile, William Allen White, editor and friend of Landon, said at Emporia that the "clarifying words" of Landon's letter to Norman Thomas "emphatically tell the world that Gov. Landon is no labor baiter." He declared that the Governor's statement was as strong a backing for the closed shop as it was for the company union.

Meanwhile, George L. Berry, head of Labor's Nonpartisan League, said that it was "notable" that Landon chose to make his clarifying statement to Thomas, "the candidate of the left wing Socialists, who in their revolutionary creed, are but one step removed from the Communists who stand at the extreme left of the political stage." He also declared it was noteworthy that Landon had not used the term "collective bargaining."

"We know," he said, "that Candidate Landon meant exactly what he said when, in his acceptance speech, he declared that men must be free from coercion, even by their fellow employes. He meant there must be an absolutely clear road for formation of company unions, which are owned, financed, and controlled by the employer."

Berry discussed at length the use of troops in a Kansas lead mine strike. He said the troops were sent by Landon at the instigation of mine owners and that they made possible formation of a company union.

Sinclair Wires Landon.

Pasadena, Calif., July 31 (AP).—Upton Sinclair tonight made public a telegram to Gov. Alf M. Landon propounding a question to the Republican Presidential nominee on the latter's labor views.

Sinclair's telegram said:

"I request you to answer a question of vital importance to every labor man:

"If evidence is brought to you that labor organizers are being mobbed and driven out, as recently in Gadsden, Ala.; in Arkansas, in Allegheny County, Pa.; in many agricultural counties of California, will you use Federal authority to protect organizers while exercising their rights?

"Without such a pledge, your statement to Norman Thomas is futile, for rights are nonexistent unless they can be used."

"I have watched a dozen Presidents in my time," said Sinclair. "I have seen them use Federal authority to break strikes * * * but I have never seen a President move to protect labor organizers in their rights."

Browder Condemns Stand.

New York, July 31 (AP).—Earl Browder, Communist presidential candidate, said today in a statement that Gov. Alf M. Landon's published letter of yesterday concerning the right of workers to organize "enunciates the labor policy of the steel trust."

and, indeed, all parts of the British Empire share a democratic form of government which comes to us from common sources. We have adapted these institutions to our own needs and our own special conditions, but fundamentally they are the same."

The President, amid applause, referred to the Canadian-American reciprocal trade agreement signed last autumn as "tangible evidence of the desire of the people of both countries to practice what they preach when they speak of the good neighbor."

Lord Tweedsmuir expressed the hope Canadian-American goodwill and friendship would "grow into a still closer understanding and become that strongest of human creations, a thing about which men do not argue, but which can be taken for granted."

"It is my prayer," he added, "that, not by any alliance, political or otherwise, but through thinking the same thoughts and pursuing the same purpose, the Republic of the United States and the British Commonwealth may help to restore the shaken liberties of mankind."

Example to World.

In a speech equal in length to that of Mr. Roosevelt, Premier Mackenzie King declared:

"In these times when armaments are growing apace, when faith is everywhere being supplanted by fear, when dread and uncertainty overcrowd the skies, when the cry of humanity is increasingly for peace, the single shaft, the unfortified frontier, the century of peace have surely a message for the world."

Mayor J. E. Gregoire of Quebec asserted the "imaginary line separating the United States and Canada is a model boundary which should exist between all the countries in the world."

"This God-sent peace between countries," he added, "gives them the time and energy required for the solution of the enoromous social problems which are laid down everywhere by the transition between an individualist and socialistic era."

Prime Minister Adelard Godbout, of Quebec said:

"The government and people of the Province of Quebec gladly extend our heartiest welcome * * *.

"Your mission is one of peace and good will. Of course, you know Canada and our provinces; but your sojourn amongst us, either in New Brunswick, at Campobello, or here in Quebec, brings you in more intimate contact with us all and I may say that we are fast becoming friends."

Mr. Roosevelt said the United States was greatly grieved to heat of the death of King George. He expressed the hope that King Edward, whom he met abroad following the World War as the Prince of Wales, would find it convenient to visit America soon. A similar invitation went out to Lord Tweedsmuir and Mackenzie King.

Speaking briefly in French, the President thanked the mayor for the warm welcome. He referred to the thousands who yearly cross the border for visits in both countries, without the need of passports, and said:

"It is by these exchanges of visits, by these continuous contacts between Canadians and Americans that we shall come to tighten the close bonds which already unite our two peoples."

Gets Salute of Honor.

The President stepped from his train at 10 a. m., Eastern daylight time, to a salute by a guard of honor composed of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserves and the Quebec regiment. A band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," as an escort of Royal Canadian Mounted Dragoons, red-coated and with brass helmets, took up position.

The governor general and premier and other Canadian officials, as well as American Minister Norman Armour, were there to welcome him.

As he arrived at Dufferin Terrace, named for Canada's first governor general, the American flag went up over the citadel and 21 guns boomed at slow intervals.

As the President left the speaking stand on the arm of his eldest son, James, and escorted by the governor general, a band struck up "God Save the King" and "O Canada."

He returned to the citadel later for tea and remained until train time. He will arrive in Hyde Park, N. Y., Saturday night, stopping off in New England for flood control conferences with the Governors of Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Philadelphia Inquirer Sold for $15,000,000

New York, July 31 (AP).—For a price "in the neighborhood of $15,000,000," M. L. Annenberg has purchased the Philadelphia Inquirer, he announced today.

The Inquirer, oldest morning newspaper in Philadelphia, has a history extending back more than 100 years. It was owned, at the time of its sale to Annenberg, by the Elverson Corporation, which was controlled by Raymond Patenotre, of Paris, France.

Annenberg, whose publishing interests already included the Morning Telegraph, New York; the Miami Beach, Fla., Tribune, Radio and Screen Guides, announced there would be no change in the Inquirer's editorial policy.

Labor Chief

American Federation of Labor to apply them both. The answer is that we are applying both. If that is the case, where is the issue?"

Green claimed the federation already has organized the automobile and rubber industries according to the industrial union principle, and would have had steel industry organization well under way had it not been for intervention by the insurgent Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization.

Green charged that Lewis' group lacked a "united labor front" in its effort to organize the steel industry.

"If steel is to be organized, it ought to have behind it the entire strength of the labor movement," he said.

Although Lewis was never mentioned by name, Green's references were not thinly veiled.

"It is said that when Napoleon started for Moscow there were counselors who advised him against it," he said in conclusion, "but Napoleon rejected their sound advice, and went on to Moscow."

Refers to Convention.

Again, Green said:

"Men may become impatient. Men may get in a hurry. Men may be filled with a consuming desire for glory. But that doesn't change the real facts in this case."

Green referred repeatedly in his address to the vote of the Atlantic City convention to protect the rights claimed by craft unions in the organization of industrial unions. Any change in this policy, he said, must be brought about by the federation in convention assembled.

The speaker spoke of Samuel Gompers as "the great philosopher of the labor movement, and one of its architects." He quoted liberally from the last speech made by Gompers before his death, in which a reference was made to "impatient men concerned with immediate triumph." Gompers pleaded in the quoted speech for the "principles of voluntarism" and said "no lasting gain has ever come from compulsion."

Green said he was going to do all in his power to fulfill this "legacy."

"I might fail, but it will not be my fault," he declared.

At a press conference yesterday, George L. Berry, president of the Printing Pressmen's Union, and head of the pro-Roosevelt Labor's Non-Partisan League, was asked if he thought it would "help matters" if Green resigned his job.

"No, I do not," Berry replied.

Bowers Flees As Rebels Open Attack on Port

24 Americans Are Missing; Government's Radio Aids in Search.

By the United Press.

Claude G. Bowers, United States Ambassador to Spain, narrowly escaped being involved in a bombardment of the Port of Gijon by a rebel warship yesterday, he reported to the State Department last

Bowers said he escaped only by night, leaving the Gijon Harbor precipitately aboard the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Cayuga when the rebel warship appeared after previously having shelled the town three times.

24 Americans Missing.

Madrid, July 31 (AP).—An appeal for information on the whereabouts of 26 Americans believed stranded somewhere in Spain was broadcast over the government radio tonight at the request of the American Embassy.

Within three hours two of them had been located. They were Mrs. Maurice Fromkes, widow of the noted American painter, who was staying in Madrid, and Narcisso Doval, who reported to the American authorities.

The other 24 who were sought, most of whose names were furnished by the State Department in Washington, were:

McLeary Weller, Carlos Goya, Lucille and Marjorie Draper, Theodore Gilchrist, Dorothy Deborah, Miss Mosser, Isabel Morales Berdoy, Janet Riesenfeld, Gaye Elizabeth Carney, Jafei Ramiriz Ledesma, Maria Wernezken, James B. Ross, Juan Pedrolsa, Bige Gonzalez, Benita Gonzalez, Ricardo Perez, Carlos Sancer, Fernando Vallemilla, Dubin Gota, Jose Rafael Ramos, Miguel Figuerola and his wife and son, Arturo.

There was no further information concerning them.

Americans Evacuated.

Madrid, July 31 (AP).—Recapitulations of Americans in the Madrid area tonight showed that 111 had been evacuated to the coast.

Seventy-four still were living in the American Embassy and 101 continued to reside in their own homes. Of the latter about 25 were Filipinos.

Six refugees left tonight. They were the last expressing a desire to leave.

They were Anne Barley, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cibrian, of San Francisco; Eleanor O. Kane, of New York and Santiago; Hortenso Negron, of Puerto Rico, and a sixth whose name was not listed.

Two government planes flew over Palma in the afternoon and the foreigners hastened aboard the British cruiser. As the last boatload reached the Repulse the plane dropped the first bomb near the cathedral. Refugees believed it was not hit.

Americans in Marseille.

Marseille, France, July 31 (AP).—Eighty Americans and other foreigners reached here today from Palma, Mallorca, aboard the British cruiser Repulse. When they left Wednesday Loyalist planes were bombarding the city.

Narrow Escape.

A narrow escape by 92 foreigners from a sudden bombing attack upon the Spanish city of Palma, in the Ballerie Islands, was reported to the State Department yesterday.

Many of those who were literally snatched from possible injury or death under the aerial assault were believed here to be Americans.

The master of the American Export liner Exochorda reported that within a few minutes after he had taken the foreigners aboard and sailed from the harbor the bombs began to fall. He said he watched the bombardment from the steamer's bridge.

Details Not Given.

He gave no details, but State Department officials, to whom the message was relayed by the steamship company's office in New York, expressed belief the liner's timely arrival probably saved the lives of many foreign nationals.

Last available reports here said Palma was in the hands of rebel forces. On this basis, observers speculated that the air attack was made by government planes. Palma is approximately 50 miles due east of Valencia in the Mediterranean.

Earlier advices said ten Americans were removed from Palma Thursday night by the American heavy cruiser Quincy and approximately 50 others by the British cruiser Repulse.

Hurrying to Mainland.

Hurrying to the Spanish mainlaid to pick up several score American refugees expected from Madrid, the Quincy had asked the Exochorda to stop at Palma yesterday for "further evacuations."

First direct word from the latter vessel came yesterday afternoon in a message quoting Capt. Wenzel Havel, of Leonia, N. J., as saying the Exochorda left Palma at 11 a. m. yesterday, Spanish time. He did not give the nationality of any of those he took aboard.

The Exochorda then steamed toward Marseilles, France, her next regular port of call.

Injury Report False.

Official reports last week that an American woman had been wounded in the fighting in Northern Spain were found to be erroneous by the State Department yesterday.

It issued this statement:

"The American embassy at Madrid reported July 30 that Mrs. Fernando Allardo was not wounded and is safe and sound in the American embassy at Madrid.

"Mrs. Gallardo is the daughter of Colonel D. B. McKay, publisher of the Tampa, Fla., Times. * * *

"So far as the Department of State has been able to ascertain no Americans have been injured in Spain since the outbreak of the revolution."

The State Department made public three previously unreported names of Americans who had arrived safely at Casablanca on a French destroyer. They were Wladek Zbyszko Cyganiewicz, 359 Sycamore road, Santa Monica, Calif; Rivera Placenta (address in the United States unknown), and Ralph Church Thompson, 13 Main street, Congers, N. Y.

Where Washington Woman Fell to Death

From the top floor, rear of this fashionable home at 2230 Massachusetts avenue northwest, Mrs. Lulie Caldwell Stone, divorced wife of a wealthy furniture manufacturer, fell or leaped to her death yesterday afternoon.

operated the house under the name of "The Mansion Club."

"No, Mrs. Stone got no alimony from her husband," relatives said. "They had been separated for two years and Mrs. Stone came immediately to Washington."

The Stones had one daughter, Mrs. Waldo Clark, 1518 Emerson street northwest, who recently has been ill in a local hospital.

Her son-in-law, Waldo Clark, explained yesterday that Mrs. Stone had no source of money "that I know of."

"Stone is in Miami now," Clark said. "He used to be a furniture manufacturer in Rockford, Ill. No, I don't know exactly how much he's worth, but I understand he's got plenty."

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, who was called in, said early last night that an autopsy and inquest into Mrs. Stone's death probably will be called this morning.

The body was taken to the District Morgue.

The cook, nearly frantic, told police:

"No, she didn't jump out. She just wanted to get a breath of fresh air. She just opened the window. I know she didn't kill herself."

But investigating police, although they made no formal statement, thought differently.

"It would have been impossible," they said, "for the woman to have fallen out of that window."

The back yard is just a patch of grass and cement. It is about 18 feet long, and 3 feet from the house to a fence. Mrs. Stone fell on the cement walk.

Stone had not been notified of Mrs. Stone's death early last night.

Coughlin Issue Not Discussed By Pope, Bishop

Prelates Indicate Detroit Priest Free to Carry on Campaign.

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, July 31 (AP).—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit priest, may continue his political activity without Vatican interference, it appeared tonight.

The priest was not discussed by name during the audience, and prelates tonight said this meant the Pope would take no action.

The Pontiff, the prelates asserted, would leave the question to Bishop Gallagher. There was no doubt, they added, but that the Bishop would permit Father Coughlin to continue his work.

The Pope expressed his hope "that amidst actual universal troubles, America may stand as a nation of peace and, respecting human rights, may decide controversial questions by ballot, not by bullets."

Bishop Gallagher's audience lasted 12 minutes. (Father Coughlin's assertion President Roosevelt was a "liar," later retracted by public apology, had led to reports the meeting might deal with disciplinary action for the priest.

(Bishop Gallagher, defending Father Coughlin's right to voice political thought, had asserted he would not bring up the matter.)

The bishop issued a written statement, at the end of his visit here, asserting the Pope's gratification at the "peaceful attitude of the American people, the strong faith of Catholics in the United States and their perfect loyalty toward the Holy See."

War in Europe

if it is revealed definitely that the Fascist countries (Italy and Germany) intend to continue to give material aid to the rebels in the form of airplanes and other sinews of war. The French government, under pressure by the predominant left wing majority in its Parliament, already is investigating possible Italian aid to the rebels.

This investigation may reopen Europe's old wounds at a time when there was promise of healing them at a conference of the five Locarno powers, Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Belgium.

Many observers believe that Britain, the real balance of power in Europe, could not remain indifferent to establishment of a Fascist regime in Spain, especially if such a government were indebted to Premier Benito Mussolini, whose legions already have successfully called the British lion's bluff by conquering Ethiopia.

[At London the government admitted last night that British concerns were selling airplane to Spanish rebels, but said it could do nothing about private commercial transactions.]

Britain's attitude during the next few days may be decisive. A Fascist government in Madrid might constitute a new threat to John Bull's lifeline communications through the Mediterranean. However, Britain is governed by the conservative element and it is not prepared to risk war at a time when the nation's military strength is at the lowest point since 1918.

Black Legion's Heads Accused Of Plague Plot

Scheme to Infect Milk With Typhoid Germs Charged at Detroit Trial.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, July 31.—An abortive plot to put typhoid germs in milk delivered to Jews was charged to the Black Legion today while a defendant told—in another case—how a black snake whip cracked "perhaps a dozen times" on the back of a rebellious member.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea made public the formal statement of William Guthrie, a Black Legion printer, who accused a high-ranking legion officer and another man—a "chemist"—of approaching him nine months ago with plans for breeding germs in Guthrie's house.

Guthrie, who said the plot never got beyond the scheming stage, reported the men talked of sending infected milk and cottage cheese into districts "most thickly populated with their enemies."

"Did they name any particular class of people," Assistant Prosecutor William E. Dowling asked.

"They said the Jews," Guthrie replied.

Victim Denies Flogging.

How Penland was lashed for not attending meetings was described in court—by a defendant—although the alleged victim himself has denied he was whipped.

Frederick A. Gulley's confession, read into the record despit defense objections, said he forced Penland to accompany him to a field one night in October, 1935, "with a gun as a little persuader."

There in the field, in the glare of automboile headlights, the shirt-sleeved steel worker was lashed, Gulley said, by a masked Black Legion member as about 300 other members watched the trembling man from the shadows.

Another defendant, Thomas F. Cox, said in a statement that he was a member of the "outer guard" at the field and that about 100 cars were there. The other defendants in the case are Charles King, former Ecorse Village trustee; Wilbur Robinson, Black Legion officer; Earl Angstadt and Harold Lawrence.

Legion Declared Broken.

Testimony that the Black Legion has broken up was given by John Hawkins, a fellow employe of Penland and a member.

Asked why, when he testified he no longer attended meetings, Hawkins replied:

"Because it's busted."

McCrea's aids questioned the man named by Guthrie as "the chemist" but made no comment. Guthrie said he threatened to notify police of the plot and told them it "was a Frankenstein—might fall on them—that it might wipe out the whole city."

Guthrie, one of more than 50 men held on charges growing out of the investigation of Black Legion terrorism in Michigan, is himself accused of conspiracy to incite riot by burning a Communist camp ad breaking up a political meeting.

The Black Legion pledged its members to fight against communism, Catholics, Jews and certain other groups classed as "enemies."

Suspect Denies He Pointed Gun At British King

McMahon Tells of Wait; Held for Fall Trial After Hearing.

London, July 31 (AP).—George Andrew McMahon, who wrote King Edward he suffered "tortures of a damned soul," huddled in Brixton Prison tonight to await criminal trial for hurling a pistol at his monarch.

At first, the 34-year-old Scottish-born Irsihman testified, he intended to kill himself.

"I saw all the people happy and content. Then I remembered I had hardly the price of a meal. I thought, 'what is the good of living?' I was going to shoot myself."

But, he added, thoughts of his wife deterred him.

"The thought suddenly struck me that if I could only draw the King's attention to the wrongs I imagined had been meted out to me, at least, he would not allow his subjects to be so treated.

"I saw His Majesty approaching through crowds of happy, cheering people. I never pointed the revolver—I stopped and slithered it to the roadway as His Majesty came up."

The mental anguish which drove him to act, McMahon said, dated back to "suffering during unjust imprisonment" following conviction for criminal libel in 1933—a conviction later quashed.

He had appealed in vain to Edward's father, the late King George, for redress, he said. Then he turned to Edward.

McMahon was ordered held for trial in the autumn at the conclusion of today's hearing. He will be tried in hsitoric Old Bailey on three charges:

1. "Presenting near the person of His Majesty a revolver with intent to break the public peace."
2. "Producing a revolver near the person of His Majesty with intent to alarm His Majesty."
3. "Being in possession of a revolver with intent to endanger life."

tion the investigation was being made.

Gen. Mola, northern rebel chief, was reported to have left his siege in the Guaddaramas to aid the Zaragoza defenders and march on San Sebastian.

Loyalists were reported converging on Cordoba and Granada, southern cities.

One Fascist column, headed by Gen. Herrera, was said to have occupied El Pardo, 15 miles from the capital. Another, under Lieut. Col. Garcia, was at El Mola, 25 miles away.

The third, under Col. Sanador, captured Navasenada, 20 miles distant, the radio report said. Gen. Ponte led the fourth, moving from Leon through the mountains, on Pueblo and Guadarrama.

A fifth detachment, from Zaragoza, arrived at Medino Eceli, 80 miles from the captial, and was moving rapidly to join the others.

There was little resistance, the radio dispatches said. Loyalists were said to be withdrawing carefully.

Rebels asserted the government suffered from lack of properly trained aviation officers, was poorly equipped with bombs, and that most planes were piloted by sergeants and privates.

(A Lisbon, Portugal, correspondent reported communists had gouged out the eyes of an aged priest at Avila, dragged him through the streets and burned him to death with gasoline.

(The Spanish charge d'affaires and first secretary of the Lisbon embassy resigned and the embassy was closed.)

Leftist bands roved the streets of Gijon and "cruel reprisals" against Facist rebels were reported there. Government forces controlled the city, but the population was cut off from food and supplies.

Leftists took over the city government of Barcelona.

(In French Morocco, 11 Italian aviators who made forced landings were arrested on suspicion they were carrying arms to Spanish rebels.

(In France, concern was expressed lest the incident have international reverberations. Leftists proposed aid for the Spanish republic; Rightists urged neutrality; Socialists wanted a tripartite conference—Italy, France and England—to seek arbitration.)

Victory Is Forecast.

Lisbon, Portugal, July 31 (U.P.)—Rebel occupation of Madrid may be merely a question of hours, Gen. San Miguel Cabanellas, president of the Burgos provisional government established by Spanish insurgents, said at Salamanca today.

HUGO HERFURTH, SR.

Nine Bodies Recovered On Sunken Sand Barge

Chicago, July 31 (AP).—Lake Michigan yielded bodies of nine of the 15 men lost early Wednesday in the unexplained sinking of the motor barge Material Service as calm waters today permitted divers to search the sand boat, lying in 25 feet of water off the South Chicago Lighthouse.

Retired Tobacco Merchant Saw Assassination of Lincoln.

Hugo Herfurth, sr., 81, retired Alexandria, Va., tobacco merchant, who saw the assassination of Abraham Lincoln at Ford's Theater in April, 1865, died at his home yesterday after an illness of several months.

A native of Eisenburg, Saxe-Altenburg, Germany, Mr. Herfurth was brought to America aboard a sailing vessel with his parents at the age of 7.

As a youth he operated a cigar business at Thirteenth and G streets here, but in 1877 he went to Alexandria and engaged in the wholesale and retail tobacco trade there until his retirement in 1919.

Mr. Herfurth's first business experience came with the War Between the States at its height, when he was a newsboy selling an evening newspaper which carried casualty lists and the latest news from the battlefields.

On September 26, 1877, Mr. Herfurth married Martha R. Steurnagel, daugther of the late Mr. and Mrs. George S. Steuernagel. His father-in-law owned and operated the old Virginia hotel known as the Steuernagel Ballard and Exchange, just across Cameron street from City Hall in Alexandria.

Mr. Herfurth was an active member of Immanuel Lutheran Church, which he attended throughout his life in Alexandria.

Besides his wife, Mr. Herfurth is survived by 6 sons, 2 daughters and 15 grandchildren.

His sons are Rudolph W., Paul W. and Walter M. Herfurth, all of Alexandria; George F. and Hugo Herfurth, jr., of Washington, and Oscar G. Herfurth, of Norfolk, Va. His daughters are Mrs. Paul B. Snyder, of Alexandria, and Mrs. Linwood Walters, of Miami, Fla.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at Immanuel Church, followed by burial in Union Cemetery, Alexandria.

Speaker Bankhead Stops Off in D. C.

By the Associated Press.

Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead said yesterday that little more major legislation would be required to complete the Administration's program.

At a press conference during a few hours' stop in the Capital en route from Canada, where he has been on vacation, to his home in Alabama, Bankhead refrained from any predictions for a short session of Congress next winter.

The Speaker said he was confident the Democrats would maintain a working majority in the House.

He also scouted specualtion that the Union Party, headed by Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota, might result in throwing the Presidential election into the House by blocking a majority of electoral votes for either old party candidate.

Session Makes Demand For Equality of Sexes

Paris, July 31 (AP).—An end of inequality between the sexes was demanded tonight in the name of 100,000 women.

Delegates representing them at the second congress of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women unanimously adopted resolutions at the closing session indorsing the movement to gain full and equal rights with men.

Maine's Dose Of Propaganda.

The need for objective and unbiased discussion of public issues has seldom, if ever, been greater than it is today. Questions that are being submitted to the electorate are not only momentous in character; they are also extremely intricate. Before they can be intelligently solved they must be, in some measure at least, understood. And that, of course, implies widespread distribution of accurate information and unprejudiced opinion.

It is not surprising, therefore, that revival of the Portland Evening News as a New Deal organ for the period of the Presidential campaign should arouse misgivings. Certainly the country will be subjected to enough ballyhoo during the next few months without the rejuvenation of newspapers for that special function. As a propaganda sheet, a newspaper cannot possibly discharge its traditional obligations to the public, and it is not likely to be a credit to its sponsors.

Norman W. Baxter is a competent newspaperman. It is his reported assignment to the editorship of this paper by the Democratic National Committee which gives the venture a very unfortunate beginning. Indications are that political funds are being drawn upon, and Mr. Baxter as one of the committee's publicity experts is being drafted, solely for the purpose of influencing the Maine vote in September.

This bold attempt to propagandize the electorate of the Pine Tree State is not likely to be effective when the people recognize its purpose. Even though the American people are accustomed to rather strong doses of ballyhoo, they will be instinctively skeptical of a newspaper under direct control of a political committee.

Entirely aside from any influence that paper may wield, however, its operation will be generally deplored by the press. With some regrettable exceptions, the newspapers of the country are becoming less partisan in the narrow sense of the word and increasingly analytical of the basic issues confronting the country. When that salutary trend is interrupted by the reorganization of a paper for what appear to be solely partisan purposes there is good reason for regret. In the long run no political party is likely to build up good will by this means.

Landon's Labor Policy.

Gov. Landon's letter to Norman Thomas sets at rest any misconception of his attitude toward the rights of labor to organize. To an objective mind the Governor's brief comments on this issue in his acceptance speech were entirely clear. He expressed himself in favor of freedom for "employes to join any type of union they prefer, whether it covers their plant, their craft or their industry." And he opposed "coercion or intimidation" from either employers or employes. Amplification of this view became desirable, however, because of some curious interpretations placed upon it.

Replying to the acceptance speech, Gov. Earle of Pennsylvania accused the G. O. P. nominee of indorsing the company union, "the most powerful weapon against the rights of labor ever invented." The letter to Mr. Thomas shows this remark to be an obvious distortion of Gov. Landon's meaning. His unequivocal statement on this point is worthy of repetition:

> The workers have the right to meet among themselves or with others of their own choice to promote organization, with complete freedom from interference from any one whatsoever. The workers should be fully protected in this right by the public authorities. This necessarily includes the right of a labor union to promote by lawful and proper means the organization of an unorganized industry, which includes the right to send in an organizer.

This policy dovetails with Mr. Landon's pledge to restore and maintain "a free competitive system." His objective is to let both industrial and labor groups take the initiative in promoting their interests, with the Government insuring absolute fair play between them. In short, he believes the role of the Government in dealing with such problems should be that of an umpire and a mediator between conflicting groups, rather than a sponsor for any one of them.

Only on the assumption that the Government should undertake to replace free trade unionism by Government-controlled organization of labor can this attitude be regarded as unfavorable toward the workingman. Some groups that are eager to make an immediate showing would like to use the machinery of Government to force acceptance of collective bargaining. But the more astute are aware of the grave dangers inherent in this course. They realize that if Government is to become the sponsor of organized labor it will also tend, as in Italy or Germany, to become the master of the labor movement. And no union could be expected to welcome that result.

In view of the conflicts within the ranks of labor and the great opportunity of extending collective bargaining in the next few years, the attitudes of the Presidential candidates on this vital issue acquire far-reaching importance. Certainly, they should not be twisted for partisan purposes nor misinterpreted to create prejudices where only intelligent consideration of facts can further both the general interests and those of the workingman.

Spain And Europe.

Walled in behind the Pyrenees, its once vast empire reduced to a shadow, Spain has for many years been outside the main currents of international politics. But the civil war now raging within its borders may catapult it into the very heart of the European turmoil.

The danger is that the major European powers, instead of keeping their skirts completely clear of the Spanish turmoil, will seek to make capital of it for their own particular ends. Should they do so the Spanish civil war might easily be magnified into a great international struggle in which would be lighted fires that might require years and even decades to quench, with European civilization itself being consumed in the flames.

Signs of such impending intervention are not wanting. In France the Blum government is being vehemently urged by a growing section of its followers to go to the aid of its fellow-Leftist regime at Madrid, at least to the extent of permitting the sale of arms to the Spanish government. Thus far it has resisted that pressure. But Yvon Delbos, the Foreign Minister, has significantly declared that France's present position will only be maintained so long as other powers preserve a similar hands-off attitude. It would be intolerable, he said, if other powers should supply arms to the rebels to be used in an attempt to overthrow a friendly government while France herself would be prevented from selling ammunition to that government.

It is easy to understand why, despite its apparent neutrality, the French government is moved by sympathy for the Madrid regime. The Popular Front in France is similar in composition to the Spanish Popular Front. Moreover, a victory for the Spanish Fascists and the establishment in Spain of a dictatorship of the Right would leave France ringed around on three sides by violently anti-democratic states. In view of the existing tensions in the Third Republic such a development might have repercussions of the most serious nature.

But the alternative possibility—a victory of the Madrid regime over the rebels and, in consequence, the almost certain radicalization of the Spanish government—is viewed with equal alarm by the Fascist states of Europe, such as Germany and Italy. The latter in particular would be alarmed by the creation at the western end of the Mediterranean of a regime similar to that which obtains in Russia.

But if these Fascist states supply arms, munitions and implements of war to the rebels it is almost a practical certainty that France and Russia will give aid to the Madrid government. Through its possession of Gibraltar, Great Britain, too, is vitally interested in the outcome of the Spanish civil war. Thus, unless all of the powers keep their hands off, all of them sooner or later would be drawn into the Spanish vortex.

It is this fact which gives ominous significance to the report of the forced landing on the French Moroccan coast of an Italian seaplane loaded with munitions obviously destined for the rebels in Spanish Morocco. Presumably there have been other planes and other cargoes of arms. In other words, Italy may have already begun actively to aid the rebels against the Madrid government. If that is so and if Italy persists in this practice, the European cauldron of war may soon be boiling again.

The Position Of Umpire.

Essential impartiality on the part of the National Labor Relations Board is attested by its action this week in certifying a company union of the New England Transportation Co. as the exclusive representative of the employes for purposes of collective bargaining. The certification came as a result of an election, supervised by the board, in which the company group scored a small majority over a competing A. F. of L. union. If the successful organization proves unable to represent the employes effectively, doubtless a later election will reverse the current result.

Not the least of the board's merits lies in its opportunities to play the part of umpire in this manner. Increasingly fair-minded employers are calling on it to determine for them which of two or more employe organizations represents the majority voice of their establishments. This the board is equipped to do by arranging a scrupulously honest shop election to settle the question.

The mere knowledge that unprejudiced representatives of the Federal Government stand ready to guarantee fair play in inter-employe rivalries will make for greater serenity in any industrial establishment. This aspect of the work of the National Labor Relations Board is a good example of what Gov. Landon meant when he said in his acceptance speech that: "The Government must maintain itself in the position of an umpire, first, to protect the public interest, and, second, to act as a mediator between conflicting groups."

The Olympics.

The modern revival of the Olympic games, which open for the eleventh time in Berlin today, is due to a Frenchman, Baron Pierre de Coubertin. Addressing a circular to sport leaders of the world in 1894, he first advanced the idea which sprang from his devotion to amateurism. He wrote, in part:

> Before all things it is necessary that we should preserve in sport those characteristics of nobility and chivalry which have distinguished it in the past, so that it may continue to play the same part in the education of the peoples of today as it played so admirably in the days of ancient Greece.

Sound though his philosophy unquestionably was, his concept of the original games was not strictly accurate. Olympia was the seat of a Peloponessian league. The alliance having a religious sanction, representatives of the member states gathered there regularly for votive worship. The occasion also called for entertainment and proud exhibitions of endurance and strength between the several military delegations resulted. It was only slowly that the "games" lost their military flavor. Chariot racing was at last introduced by wealthy young noblemen and gradually competitive running, jumping and hurling became the major interests.

In like manner, the modern Olympics have grown from a small beginning. At the first games, held in Athens in 1896, only a few events were scheduled, largely because the program was almost entirely financed by one individual. Similarly, the second and third celebrations in Paris and St. Louis included merely the high points of athletic competition. Foreign entries were few. The games first began to assume their present-day proportions in London in 1908. Sweden further nurtured their growth at Stockholm four years later. Then came the war.

By 1920, when the games were next held in Antwerp, the world had scarcely recovered its taste for sports. But the eighth and ninth Olympiads, in Paris and Amsterdam, found the scars healed over. Los Angeles, despite the depression, bulged the program and Berlin has added even more. The games this year will include not only the rudimentary running and jumping contests, but also a long list of specialties, such as canoeing, field handball, basketball and even—Germany's contribution as host—gliding.

The Olympics have once more reached full flower. But this occurs at a moment when the politics of the world are rocking dangerously. So it was in Hellas. At the peak of Olympia's glory, Greek democracy crumbled before the onslaughts of Macedonia and Rome. Yet the games continued, the last victor not being recorded until 393 A. D.

Today the tyrant's tread is heard again in many parts of the world. Runners bearing the Olympic torch from Athens to Berlin were abused in Vienna. Hate and fear are known to be blowing hard on the Olympic flame in Berlin. Will there be any essence of fair play and sportsmanship left to illuminate the twelfth Olympics in Tokyo?

Only A Beginning.

The completion of plans for modernization of the National Training School for Girls is significant chiefly as a victory for various groups in the District fighting for more intelligent treatment of prisoners. New buildings alone will not revolutionize conditions at the reformatory. But it is hoped that they will improve morale, facilitate training and thus contribute to the larger objective of rehabilitating the unfortunate inmates.

Funds for these improvements were obtained only after attention had been dramatically centered upon the National Training School for Girls. It is common knowledge that deplorable conditions exist in most of the District's institutions where law violators are incarcerated. The corrective measures to be inaugurated at the reformatory should be a first step toward a much more comprehensive program of modernizing both penal structures and policies.

"Even youth favors my plan," declares Townsend. Our young people are coming to realize that old age is something which might happen to anybody.

The reason why many a candidate can't take a stand on any issue is because those who pull the strings keep him dancing all the time.

The Olympic committee would have offered no objection to swimmer Eleanor Holm drinking like a fish if she had drunk what a fish drinks.

With reference to automobile drivers, the lighter the head, the heavier the foot.

China's Drug Problem.

From the China Weekly Review.

The Chinese have shown their good faith in trying to restrict the trade by enforcing drastic punishment on violators of antidrug laws. They not only registered more than a million and a half addicts who are being treated for the habit, but executed nearly a thousand law violators last year. But the futility of enforcement of such draconic regulations in the face of Japanese propagation of the traffic should be obvious. It is foolish to take up the time of the courts and firing squads merely to reduce the number of Chinese customers of Japanese drug peddlers. It is a futile process, because the Japanese, by making the drugs available everywhere and using subtle methods of propagation, can create more addicts than China can discover and kill off in a reasonable period of time.

Warning!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a regular reader of your paper, particularly the editorial page, I felt somewhat disappointed when I saw your leading editorial of July 27, entitled "A Warning to Planners." Passing over the fact that this is not too subtle a "dig" at the New Deal, I must say that it contains implications which are hardly worthy of anyone who knows the agricultural situation in this country since the war and the low ebb in foreign trade during the depression.

Would the farmers and the country be in any better condition now to meet the shock of this year's drought, if no attempt had been made under the AAA to control the constantly recurring surpluses of wheat which had baffled the Coolidge and Hoover administrations and by 1933 had reduced the grain-price index to 36 per cent of the 1926 base?

Why is our position as a "major wheat importer" so "unenviable" in a year of high prices?

Can't we import wheat this year without injury to our own wheat producers?

Isn't it necessary for us as a creditor country to increase our imports?

Will it not help our exporters, by affording other countries the wherewithal to pay for our products."

Isn't it better to get wheat, even at a high price, in payment of debts and for increased exports than to continue the fatuous postwar policy of extending credits to foreigners to enable them to buy our exports?

Is it your sober judgment that it is a misfortune for our country that we had organizations, the agencies, and the administrative courage to meet the drought situation in 1934 and again this year which, bad as they have been, might have become major national disasters if the Federal Government had been unable or unwilling to rush to the aid of the stricken regions?

In Defense Of Coughlin.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read A. F. Smith's comment in The Post of July 24 on the activities of Father Coughlin.

I would like to respectfully inform him that he does not understand Father Coughlin, apparently.

This priest should not be regarded as a priest but as a courageous man, fighting and sacrificing for the downtrodden semi-slave, the common working man.

Coughlin did not call the President of the United States a liar. He called the candidate for the Presidency this vile name and I believe he deserved it or he would not have been so designated.

Gov. Landon's Speech.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While confessing to a bit of partisanship, and not prepared to endorse everything that Mr. Landon said, I did hope that he would make a better speech than he did, and give a constructive criticism and announce some definite policies to correct the evils which he complained of in his address. He was long on criticism but very short on remedies.

His speech sounded to me more like the efforts of an 18-year-old boy at a high school commencement than the utterances of a candidate for the Presidency of this country.

While listening to his address I could not help wondering how a great party, like the Republican Party has been, could have the face to nominate a man of Landon's caliber and expect him to defeat a man like Roosevelt.

It takes more than "common sense," as they all attribute to Mr. Landon, to be President of these United States, especially at a critical time like this. We have plenty of good men with common sense, but we need a man with "uncommon sense:" a highly-educated man, not necessarily scientifically, but a man of experience, and with a broad vision, familiar with national as well as international affairs, to grapple with the intricate and complex affairs that confront us today. However good and well meaning a man Landon is, he certainly is not the man we need at this time.

The Machine Age.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Isn't it about time that a halt is called on these claims that the continued unemployment of millions of men and women—even though "recovery is just in sight"—is due to "the machine age."? That is a risky goat on which to saddle an unemployment alibi in times of normal employment, to say nothing of a period of labor surplus. The "machine age" was born 100 years ago—not 8 or 10 years ago. Year by year it has increased production; year by year, in conjunction with scientific research, it has developed new products; and decade after decade, up to 1928-29, continuously larger proportions of the adult population have been employed. These are facts of record known to every intelligent citizen.

Just before the depression figures from all fact-finding agencies of standing showed that, with the exception of an insignificant fraction, all of the Nation's employables were employed. Now will those who tell us that "the machine age" is standing in the way of the re-employment of millions of men and women, tell us in just what lines of manufacture, since 1929, new labor-saving inventions have been introduced; just what the inventions are, and how many fewer persons are employed in the industries after such inventions were introduced?

Will they likewise tell us how it comes about that for the first time in industrial history a spurt in the introduction of labor-saving machines has followed, if it has followed, a surplus rather than a shortage of labor; a depressed, rather than an expanded production period?

Isn't it time that we had less rot and more reason in discussions of the unemployment problem?

Advice To The G. O. P.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am making this suggestion for the benefit of the Republican Party in the State of New York.

The recent decision of the Governor of that State to seek a third term was, in the opinion of this humble voter, a very well-arranged move to focus the attention of the public on the Governor's claim for a humanitarian battle for social justice; it was also a move to keep the Governorship open in 1938 for James A. Farley, and it was also a move on the social justice issue to try and flirt with the many leagues throughout this State for their indorsement of the Lehman candidacy.

There is no doubt that the Republican Party will have to look hard to combat this move on the part of the Democratic Party and if they will take the advice of one who has made a study of these situations, they will be able to sweep through this State to victory.

There resides in the hills of Oneida one of their best assets, a man of the hour. He served well in the New York State Senate, served well in Congress, and all one has to do is to look up his record to see if he was not ahead of his time on the side of social justice. He also ran for Governor once on the Progressive ticket, and the late Judge William J. Gaynor stated that he was big enough caliber for the Presidency of the United States. It was my frank opinion that he would have made a marvelous running mate for Mr. Landon. He is a true progressive and a real statesman.

The man whom I suggest to the Republican Party of this State for their candidate for Governor is the Hon. Frederick M. Davenport, of Oneida. Mr. Davenport has the right theory of social justice, as he was in the Methodist ministry in the City of Yonkers, and had he stayed in that calling would today have been one of the best men in the pulpit since Beecher.

Bouquet To Mr. Lemke.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I think women ought to have a tender spot in their hearts for Mr. Lemke, Presidential candidate of the proposed Union Party, even if they are more interested in donkeys and elephants. He came right out and said, not only "Every man a king" in his vision of a better economic order, but also, "and every woman a queen." That was thoughtful and splendid of you, William. I'll wager you're a reader of Ruskin, who so beautifully discoursed on "Kings' Treasuries" and Queens' Gardens."

A bouquet of appreciation to you and to every other man who indicates by the language he uses that women are included in his consideration of common problems. Listen to yourself talk, Mr. Average Man, and you'll be surprised to learn how strongly you are still bound by the involuntary use of masculine terms which leave women entirely out of the picture. How would you like being reduced to a cipher in your own country?

PHARE PLEIGH.
Washington, July 29.

Horner And Cochran On Landon.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the July 29 issue of The Post there appeared a short summary of the replies of the six Governors to Mr. Landon.

In this summary there was missing, inadvertently I hope, the core of Gov. Horner's address, and an important bit of Gov. Cochran's. The part missing from the address of Gov. Horner dealt with the six Kansas statutes sponsored and signed by Gov. Landon and held "unconstitutional" by the Supreme Court of Kansas. Evidently Mr. Landon was unmindful of these statutes when he taxed the Administration with the sponsoring of unconstitutional laws. Certainly, no one has said that Mr. Landon was not acting in the interests of the people of Kansas when he supported these unconstitutional State statutes. This being so, it is only fair to attribute to the Administration the same interest in the well being of the people of the United States.

In view of these facts it is hard to understand the reason for Candidate Landon's attack on the Administration on the question of unconstitutional laws. I say hard to understand, unless we must assume that it was "just politics." But if Mr. Landon is the forthright and honest man his backers say he is, then politics should have had no place in his acceptance speech.

You also neglected to state in your summary the allegation by Gov. Horner that Mr. Landon was an ardent supporter of the Agricultural Adjustment Act prior to its invalidation by the Supreme Court; this being so, then Mr. Landon's attack on this act was "just politics." Also worthy of note, though omitted in The Post summary, was the statement of Gov. Cochran that a cut of 40 per cent in the school fund helped the so-called balancing of the Kansas budget.

In view of the facts as stated in Gov. Horner's address, it is hard to picture Mr. Landon as sincere when he talks about the Constitution and the role the Administration has played in sponsoring laws repugnant thereto. On the contrary, it leaves non-partisan voters with the bitter impression that Mr. Landon is first of all a politician.

Being a constant reader of The Post, I will appreciate the publication of this letter as I think the independent voters around Washington might be interested in the background of Mr. Landon on the question of the Constitution.

The Post Impressionist

Reply Courteous, And Otherwise.

Post Office, Saturday.

THERE is one advantage—and that's about all!—in conducting a column. The conductor has the benefit of criticism from his readers on pretty nearly everything he publishes within his little kingdom.

This is probably because the columnist tradition uniquely demands that its exponents employ a thoroughly personal tone.

There is no other sort of tone so attractive to reply—particularly belligerent reply. It's quite commendable for Presidential partisans to promise to avoid personalities; it bespeaks a high intent on the part of the promisers, even if the promisers don't keep the promises. But it reduces interest in the contest. In every walk of life, personalities are molasses to the myriad flies of controversy.

So is it in the learned profession of journalism:

The news-writer has to cultivate the unbiased impressionability of a phonograph-disc submitting itself to the reception of a record. To change the figure, he touches the nest of retort with only a rare finger.

The modern editorial-journeyman, no matter how diligently he tinkers at a laudable cause, or attempts to raze a detestable evil, must keep himself out of his writing—as far as such virtuous self-suppression is humanly possible. He gets plenty of protests and an almost deserved degree of commendation—witness the virile letters-to-the-editor next-door to us. But he misses the fine flavor of a pat on his very own shoulder, the stimulation of a punch in his very own face.

Whereas the columnist—

We said that, whatever group of contending Spaniards won, Spain itself would lose. We stressed the note of sorrow for the now inevitable doom of that culture which, long ago, "worked its way to beauty on the Iberian Peninsula, the amalgam formed by the Spanish spirit with what it kept from the days of the Visigoths and what it took from Roman and from Moor."

* * *

This strikes us as an entirely innocuous lament.

But how does it strike our readers?

It strikes one division of them as a vicious slur upon the sacred ideal of civil liberty. It strikes the other division as a noble defense of esthetic values.

We give you two letters.

"That was a rotten column of yours," writes an able journalist.

"It was reactionary, and deliberately so. It appealed to the love for art, when what is at stake is the people's inalienable right to equality.

"What does beauty matter, in such a crisis as Spain's? All you know of Spain is what the tourist saw there. Aren't you aware that, for the benefit of one-quarter of the population, three-quarters were being ruthlessly suppressed?

"The republic hadn't had a fair chance. It hadn't had time enough to function properly. Now, however, it is beginning to function. It is putting its laws into force, including the laws to close the churches."

"Wait and see!"

And then there's the following epistle from a legal torch of the (U. S.) Federal Housing Administration:

"It is always sad to see men turn and rend the beauty their fathers have created, and it is especially so when that beauty is shattered in the clash of contending principles. Time is a slow and impersonal destroyer; the passions of human beings write 'Finis' far more concretely than the slow and imperceptible decay of the centuries.

"Ours is a generation with a passion for conclusions. First, Holy Russia, the Austria of the Hapsburgs and the Turkey of the Sultans. Now Spain seems to be gathering up its tattered glories—to join those predecessors.

"It is still a comfort, therefore, to call to mind those glories which we yet know at first hand. It is only fitting that Gotterdammerung should come with flutes and muted violins as well as in the roar of kettledrums.

"So, as one among many, my thanks for your homage to what Spain and the world may so easily lose—and for the moving beauty of the prose in which you celebrate the pathos of the fate which may even now be at hand."

Now you can see for yourself what it is to be a columnist!

We submit that we deserved neither of these letters. But we admit to preferring the latter.

THE WHIPPING POST.

It may be right for them. But it's left to us to dissent.

Fair Enough

White Paint.

These dispatches have given a gloomy picture of Eastport Me., the site of the 'Quoddy Dam, but the poverty, dejection and indolence of the old sardine port are a localized plague, and there is no urgent need to break down and bawl for the entire State of Maine. True, there are many swaybacked houses and barns to be seen from the highways, sinking into the weeds of more or less abandoned acres, and Don Quixote has been riding again, if one may judge by the wounded windmills sagging to their knees in the far Northwest. The general scene, however, is one of enterprise and substantial comfort, outwardly more attractive than it was 10 years ago.

White paint, the badge of solvency and self-respect throughout the New England States, still gleams against the green background of woods and fields, and the New England flower garden—that strange, aesthetic quirk of a bleak temperament—blooms by the door of the honest potato kicker's cottage home.

Nowhere else in the United States will you see the equivalent in simple beauty of the New England flower garden, with delphinium grown man-high in half a dozen blues and with little flowers blooming at their ankles in all the colors on the house painter's chart.

• • • •

The white paint, however, deserves credit for an asset in the achievement of the picture. In other sections people paint houses, if they paint them at all, on a basis of every man for himself, and often the effect is of red, pink, green and gravy color pulling and hauling every which way in horrible discord. So if white paint be regimentation make the most of it.

Maine calls herself vacationland on her motor license plates, and the the business of comforting city-worn people from down the coast and inland has grown from an egg-money proposition to a major industry of the State.

There appears to be a formal competition, under official auspices, between the people who take in summer boarders and transients and a system of rating the houses as to comfort, cleanliness and civility toward the customers. But, though the sign "Tourists Accommodated" has become as common as the trees and cabin colonies that line the highways, the hotels in the towns were turning away customers all last week and probably will continue to do so.

The prices, nevertheless, are surprisingly demure, and the only horror is the dreadful drollery of the names attached to otherwise blameless little houses. There are a hundred Turn Inns, Better Duck Inns, Tumble Inns and U-Auto-Stops and at least one We-Wanna-Lodge, and all this probably can be blamed on the radio and the convulsing wit of Ben Bernie.

• • • •

The sulky men are racing again at Old Orchard Beach, and an interesting piece by Mr. Austin Goodwin, a Portland sport journalist, revealed that the Maine morality permits mutuel betting on the buggy horses while still regarding the horseback steeds as the devil's own critters. Some day someone will get around to writing a piece on the sly nature of the harness horsemen, who chew wisps of hay and say "I swan" and get away with ingenious racing tricks and gambling coups on rubber tires by flattering the rural character of their public.

I discovered, too, half a dozen variations of roulette and keeno thriving in several roving carnivals, with the law standing by—a form of sin which certainly would not be winked at by the New York law. However, the New York law, contrary to popular belief, is extremely prim about such things.

One night in Eastport I visited a lunch room and discovered a young man sitting at the counter with his chin on one hand glaring at a penny slot machine.

• • • •

"I have been playing this machine for two hours," he said, "and I warn you it is crooked. I have got $2.50 in there, and the jackpot gives only a dollar when it does give."

The New York police never would tolerate a penny machine of any kind, much less one that would take $2.50 without giving.

It seems impossible that Maine, with her climate, her lakes and fish, will ever know want as the dust-bowl farmers know it. Of course, if people are too indolent to go out and catch a few cod or lobsters or raise a few vegetables, that is a different phase of the problem.

Court Delays Ruling In Boy Sentence Test

Justice Jennings Bailey, in District Court, yesterday took under advisement the question of whether Judge Fay L. Bentley, of the Juvenile Court, exceeded her jurisdiction when she sentenced a 15-year-old boy to the National Training School until he is 21.

Attorneys representing Mrs. Eva Johnson, the boy's mother, sought his release on a writ of habeas corpus on the theory that he had been sentenced to a term that was not within Miss Bentley's province. Justice Bailey listened to arguments of attorneys for both sides and then asked them to submit briefs covering disputed points. Until he has had a chance to study the briefs, he said, the case will be held under advisement.

Leon Blum

French Writer Sees French Premier As Neither Monster Nor God, But Man Of Cool Logic And Fearless Convictions.

The following is taken from the "Persons and Personages" department of The Living Age. Written by Louis Levy, it is a translation from Vu, Paris topical weekly.

MANY contradictory stories are current about Leon Blum. People talk in turns about his Marxism, his intellectual dilettantism and even his fierce sectarianism. He is an object of mean and relentless hatred, even to the point of personal attacks by fanatical brutes. The same persons who for 20 years have extolled the peerless charm of his intellect now cover him with insults and calumnies. They contrast him with Jaures, forgetting that they once addressed the same insults and villainies to Jaures, too.

But all this, is in the past. Today Leon Blum is the man of the hour. Any one of his calumniators may become his sycophant. As for us, let us keep calm about it. Since our aim here is to see things and men as they are, let us try to look at Leon Blum without passion or flattery, as he really is, as the facts of his life show him to be.

Leon Blum was born in Paris in 1872. His parents were Parisians of Alsacian origin. His childhood was passed in the vicinity of St. Dennis—a neighborhood where memories of the Paris insurrections linger still. His gradmother on his mother's side was fullheartedly for the Commune. One of the first books which she gave her grandson to read was Tenot's on the coup d'etat.

Leon Blum proved to be an unruly pupil at the Lycee Charlemagne. Only the fact that he was first in his class saved him from being constantly punished; for even in his youth he had the soul of a rebel.

At 14, he happened to read "Les Effrontes," by Emile Augier. The tirade in the third act, in which Giboyer asserts that "the revolution of '89 was only a beginning," made a strong impression on him. At the Lycee Henri Quatre, where he finished his secondary education, and at the normal school where he prepared for his agregation (qualifying examination) in philosophy, he came under the influence of Clemenceau and of Barres. Soon after we see him collaborating on the Revue Blance, where he met anarchists like Jean Grave and To d'Aza. At that time leon Blum was an anarchist-individualist, like the majority of the intellectuals of his generation.

Through Lucien Herr He Becomes A Socialist.

AND THEN one day in 1893 he happened to meet Lucien Herr, whom he had not seen since normal school days. The two of them went for a long walk in the Champs Elysees. Until then Leon Blum had been merely a rebel who felt social injustice keenly. The librarian of the normal school, who exercised so curious an influence upon several generations of young men, crystallized his diffuse tendencies into a definite bent toward collectivism. Thus, at 20, Leon Blum became a Socialist.

Then came the Dreyfus affair—about which he has just written a book—and his friendship with Jaures. Then we find him helping in the work of forming the Socialist united front.

In 1905, Leon Blum gradually withdrew from active politics. In his work in L'Humanite he confined himself strictly to literary criticism. While fulfilling his functions as a master of petitions in the Privy Council, where he was distinguished from the first by his juridical acuteness and lucid expositions, he specialized in dramatic criticism. He wrote for the Matin and for the Comedia.

Then came the war. As Marcel Sembat's assistant in the Ministry of Public Works he gradually returned to politics. In 1917 he was at the Bordeaux Congress. In 1920 he was the spokesman of the traditional Socialist Party at the Congress of Tours.

In the meanwhile he had been elected a deputy. Then and there his vigorous intelligence won for him the leadership of a parliamentary group. At one time he led an attack against the National bloc, whose financial policy was the butt of his relentless criticism. At another, he denounced the criminal madness of the Ruhr invasion, braving a hostile majority with cool disdain.

Enemies Aim At Blum's Personal Characteristics.

ALL THIS is well known—as well as the special talents which he has placed at his party's disposal—his ability as a logician, his cleverness in debates, his gift for introducing a touching element into a cold logical sequence of ideas.

But there is not the slightest need to praise Leon Blum's vigorous logical thought, his intellectual intrepidity. His worst enemies are forced to bow before these. It is not his intelligence, but his personal qualities that they deprecate. For some unknown reason the cartoons show him as a half-starved talmudist. Because he wears glasses, his mincing gestures, and usually begins his first sentence in a high-pitched voice, he is pictured as an overgrown schoolmaster. The truth is that he is robust, has wide shoulders and likes sports. He used to be a fencer of some repute and later took up boxing. It is not for nothing that he is a close friend of Tristan Bernard!

Distant? Cold? To be sure, he knows how to be cold and cutting to some today who come and fawn on him after having vilified him a short while before. It is also true that his shortsightedness and absent-mindedness sometimes cause him to pass a friend by without noticing him. But in reality no one is less distant than Leon Blum. And no one realizes this better than the members of the Socialist Party whom he knows and likes.

One must give him his due: he is neither a monster nor a god. He is a man—a man endowed with an unusual responsiveness to ideas, but one who loves life in all its many aspects. He loves children, animals, green landscapes. He never tires, when he has time, of ranging the French countryside, with his wife at the wheel of their little car. He enjoys good painting, harmonious architecture: he is capable of taking a long detour simply to admire some noble mansion, with a majestic pediment glimpsed behind thick foliage.

He relishes music—particularly the music of Beethoven, Duparc, Dukas or Ravel. He has read widely and has retained all he has read. He knows by heart hundreds of Victor Hugo's verses, and whole passages from Jaures' speeches. He knows all the classics and finds time to keep in touch with the contemporary literary movement. He has written on Stendhal and Marcel Proust, and can, if he wishes, discuss the knottiest problems of scientific philosophy. He can talk on political economy as easily as on the history of the French theater. He is informed on all things and there is nothing that does not interest him, be it even gastronomy.

For he is a gourmand. He has a hearty appetite, knows how to enjoy a good dish, and can at a pinch give a recipe for one. Moreover, even if he is a temperate drinker, he has always liked good wine. And with all due respect to his adversaries, he did not wait to become a deputy from Narbonne to learn to appreciate a good bottle!

Unfair Legends Seen Surrounding Premier.

YES, he is a human person—a man with his virtues and his faults, but one very unlike the legend that has grown up about him. A man who likes to laugh and jest with his intimate friends, who has remained young in body and mind, and whose intellect has remained surprisingly alive to what is new and fresh.

You will find him capable of the nimblest mental gymnastics and of almost brutal frankness in following his thought to its logical conclusion; capable of being strictly circumspect and at the same time extremely foolhardy in exposing himself to danger; capable of listening courteously to everybody, and yet, underneath it all, impenetrable.

Such is Leon Blum—at least, as I see him. May these few lines persuade unprejudiced minds that his experiment runs no risk of being a banal one, that at any rate it deserves to be followed with curiosity and even with sympathy.

George Hall, 66, Dies in Hospital

George Hall, 66, an accountant in the supervising architect's office of the Treasury Department and a resident of Washington for 40 years, died in Homeopathic Hospital yesterday after a three-week illness. He had been in poor health for about a year.

Mr. Hall was born in Westmoreland County, Va. Before entering the service of the Treasury Department about 30 years ago he worked for a time at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. He was a member of Mounts Pleasant Masonic Lodge and of the Junior Order of Mechanics. He lived at 1414 Oak street northwest.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Rosamund Hall; a daughter, Mrs. Sybil H. Davis, of this city, and a son, George V. Hall, of Alloway, N. J. He also leaves three grandchildren.

Funeral services with full Masonic rites will be held at 10 a. m. Monday at Hysong's undertaking establishment. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Syndicate Acts Always Secret, Wiggin Asserts

SEC Hearing Told by Ex-Head of Firm He Never Heard of Disclosures.

A Securities and Exchange Commission atorney's assertion that Interstate Equities Corporation of New York had concealed its syndicate opeartions from stockholders was met at a hearing yesterday by a statement from Charles B. Wiggin, former vice president of the company, that he had "never heard of a corporation" which made such disclosures.

"I never heard of a company portraying losses in its annual report between its own accounts," said Wiggin.

"But were there any indications these stocks were procured in syndicates?" David Schenker, commission counsel insisted.

"I remember none," the witness answered, adding that he did not think "the corporation had that responsibility."

"Do you mean you had no responsibility to give the stockholders an accurate account of what was going on?"

"I didn't say that. I meant we didn't have the responsibility of showing the bookkeeping methods. I don't think we had responsibility to stockholders except to inform them as to final results."

Schenker read a report which said that between its establishment in 1929 and June 30, 1932, Interstate had a total of $5,546,000 of realized and unrealized losses on syndicate operations from which it laid out $20,350,000.

In the same period, he said, the company lost $13,014,000, or about 62 per cent, on stock investments.

These stock investments, however, were described as including only those on which a profit or a loss of $100,000 or more was shown.

On transactions in which profits or losses were less than $100,000, the company lost only $1,987,000 out of investments of $16,240,000 Schenk said.

$845,065 Paid By D. C. Firms In Jobless Tax

While reporting collections of $845,065.59 from 9,848 Washington employers in accordance with the requirements of the unemployment insurance act, John A. Marshall, of the District Unemployment Board, estimated yesterday that some 5,000 employers have failed to comply.

Marshall's estimate was based on a forecast several months ago that there are approximately 15,000 employers in the National Capital who should pay the 1 per cent pay-roll tax. He has already nearly doubled the number paying the tax by sending out agents to make personal inspections.

The District government has deposited $100,000 in the United States Treasury in compliance with the act, thus bringing the total amount on deposit for the District to $945,065.

Payment of benefits to the unemployed will not begin until January, 1938, so that the present fund and the amount collected during the next year and a half will accumulate as a reserve fund.

Collections for the first half of the year by months is as follows: January, $127,429.85; February, $136,700.27; March, $144,338.85; April, $143,147.60; May, $151,243.35, and June, $142,205.67.

District officials estimate that on this basis there should be almost $2,000,000 in the reserve fund at the end of the calendar year. As the tax will jump to 2 per cent in 1937, the receipts should be doubled, bringing the total to approximately $3,000,000.

Marshall stated that the Salvation Army and the Smithsonian Institution had been placed on the exemption list as charitable and scientific organizations by the board.

District Auto Thief Gets 3-Year Term

Norfolk, Va., July 31 (AP).—Haynes Julian Powell, of Virginia and New Jersey, today was sentenced to three years by Federal Judge Luther B. Way, when he pleaded guilty to the theft of an automobile in Washington, D. C., and its transportation to Fairfax County, Va.

Powell, with Carlton Baughman and Marion Baughman, of Columbia, S. C., previously had pleaded nolo contendre and Judge Way suspended imposition of sentence in the case of the Baughman brothers and placed them on probation for five years.

Powell has a long record, and Judge Way said previous paroles and leniency for him had done him no good and he felt compelled to punish him.

Carpenter Kills Self in His Home

Police said his wife, Mrs. Heeleedee Cole, had left him Monday and come to Washington with her two children, John and Ruth Cole.

John discovered his father's body.

Cole was rushed to the Washington Sanitarium, where he was pronounced dead on arrival. Police said he evidently had pulled both triggers on the shotgun, but that the second had gone wild.

Besides his wife and the two children who lived with him, Cole is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Bliss, Emory Grove, Md., and Mildred Cole, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Land Award Made.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 31.—The first of several condemnation suits for rights-of-way for the Hagerstown-Frederick dual highway was settled yesterday when a jury awrded Clarence A. Cosens, Smoketown, $1,555.50 for 19 acres of land.

Trophies to Be Sought by Arlington Netmen

Mary Astor Left Child 'Wilfully,' Defense Claims

Judge Expects to Speak With Girl, 4, Before Case Concludes.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, July 31.—An assertion that auburn-haired Mary Astor "wilfully abandoned" her 4-year-old daughter "for a married man—George Kaufman," came tonight from counsel for the movie star's former husband, embroiled with her in a sensational court fight for the custody of the child.

Joseph Anderson, attorney for the film actress' former husband, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, said during the week-end recess, "we expect to go very, very thoroughly into the unfitness of Miss Astor to have the child's custody."

Dr. Thorpe charged the actress was not a fit person morally to care for their daughter, Marylyn.

Anderson's announcement came shortly after blonde Norma Taylor, former Texas Guinan showgirl, demanded through her attorney in New York a "complete refutation" of a nursemaid's testimony that sought to link her name romantically with that of Dr. Thorpe.

The nursemaid, Nellie Richardson, testified four women, including Miss Taylor, visited frequently at Dr. Thorpe's home while the child was there and that Miss Taylor "usually" remained all night.

Judge Goodwin J. Knight indicated today he might talk to 4-year-old Marylyn sometime before the case is decided in an attempt to determine the fitness of her parent to provide for her. Counsel for both sides said they would approve such a visit.

Postlude

Miss Antonia Brico brought her week of symphony conducting at the Watergate to a close last night with a program that aroused musicians and listeners alike to a real ovation as she came out for her last bows.

It was the most vigorously played, the most spirited concert the Watergate followers have been offered this season.

There was red-blooded music on the program to begin with. The Symphony No. 4 in E Minor reflects much credit on the composer Brahms' intellect, but it is also warm, animated and emotional. This number opened the concert. Miss Brico gave it more color than she was able to inject in either of the two symphonies she played earlier in the week—the Beethoven "Eroica" and the Cesar Franck D Minor.

Norman Frauenheim, the Washington pianist, made a definite contribution to the second half of the program. He mixed considerable of the gypsy flavor with his interpretation of the Liszt "Hungarian Fantasie," and Miss Brico and the orchestra supported him with a fittingly colorful accompaniment. Frauenheim was brought back for an encore. He played the even more fiery "Fire Dance" by DeFalla.

The program took a brief turn toward the ethereal in the Debussy "Nuages" (clouds), but Miss Brico soon whipped her musicians back through music more in keeping with the spirit of the evening—the Debussy "Fetes."

Then, finally, there was the Russian composer Glazounov's symphonic poem "Stenka Razin," another musical interpretation of the Volga River. In fact the familiar "Volga Boat Song" comes out prominently two or three times in the composition's development.

The Summer Concerts Orchestra plays tomorrow night under another conductor, Gustav Strube, of Baltimore, who has come to Washington several times to be guest conductor of the National Symphony. He is a composer and will conduct two of his own works.

Strube takes the place of Erno Rapee, the New York conductor, who informed the Concerts Association he would be forced to cancel his engagement here because of ill health.

Five Picnickers Drowned.

Flint, Mich., July 31 (AP).—Five colored persons, attending a Sunday school picnic, drowned late today when a motorboat carrying nine passengers capsized in Potters Lake. Four of the victims were children.

Director Says Good Citizenship Is Won on Arlington Play Field

Like Battle of Waterloo, English Version, Character, Health Are Prize of Proper Recreation, Says W. A. Richardson of County Areas.

Good citizenship and ruddy cheeks and sound muscles, like the Battle of Waterloo, English version, are won on the playing fields, believes W. A. Richardson, director of playgrounds in Arlington County.

It matters not whether these playing fields are those of Eton, or those of the Virginia county across the Potomac from Washington.

"Properly supervised," asserted Richardson yesterday, as he squinted in the sun, "the playgrounds provide more wholesome recreation, molding of character, fair play and real sportsmanship than any other element in adolescent life."

The outstanding feature this year again is the tennis tournament, which opens Monday on the courts at the Washington Lee High School, Ballston. Unlimited junior and senior classes are included.

Trophies provided by the High School Parent-Teacher Associations and the Business and Professional Woman's Club will be awarded to the winners in each class.

While there has been much spirited competition among the many playgrounds baseball teams, the tennis tournament, as last year again stands out as the leading attraction.

The establishment of playgrounds in the county was undertaken by the county school board last year. Following the closing of schools, playgrounds were opened at several of the schools with an average attendance of approximately 1,500 children. This year records show the average attendance has exceeded 2,000.

Richardson, assisted by Miss Clara B. Wheeler as assistant director, mapped the program of activities to be followed. These include baseball, volley ball, tennis, croquet, dramatics and handicraft. During the two-month season of the playgrounds many teams are organized and much competition is developed among the various groups.

After a survey by County Superintendent of Schools Fletcher Kemp, playgrounds have been opened at the following schools:

Cherrydale, Ballston, Clarendon, James Monroe, Lyon Park, Nellie Custis, Patrick Henry, Stonewall Jackson, Kemper, Jefferson and Langston, the last-named three being colored schools. At each of these schools a trained supervisor is in charge.

The Federal Diary

By Betty Read.

Two eager young farmers are due arrive in Washington in about month as charges, for the winter, f the Department of Agriculture.

They are Ruth Durrenberger, of Orlando, Fla., and Keith Jones, of Okanogan, Wash., the winners of the annual $1,000 fellowship awards of the 4-H clubs of the country and they are coming here to spend nine months watching the wheels of government turn, paying particular attention to those in the Department of Agriculture.

The money is provided by the Payne Fund of New York and the carrying out of the provisions for their study in the National Capital is taken on by the department which assigns a sort of tutor to each of the lucky winners to pilot them through the various Government departments, learning their functions and operations and spending the majority of their time in Agriculture's various bureaus and divisions.

A young man and a young woman, graduates of land-grant colleges, are chosen each year for this study and their qualifications include having high scholarship and leadership records as well as histories of excellent work in the 4-H clubs.

The purpose of the grant is to give them a better understanding of the government, particularly of the Department of Agriculture, to take back to the farm youth of their communities. The fund for this work was established some years ago. They study under supervision and all of their work is of a highly practical nature, as they actually take part in the duties of the various bureaus.

In the past these trained students have usually found jobs with the department, either in Washington or in the field service. The two who have just completed their year's work, James W. Potts and Ruth Lohmann, will go into field work for the department in the fall.

At the end of their months of study, each student is required to write a thesis and the one by Miss Lohmann will be published shortly as part of the official publications of the department. She has compiled a comprehensive study on what the rural inhabitants can do to preserve and increase the wild life of the Nation.

Miss Durrenberger is prominent in 4-H work in Florida and was a first president of a high-school group of farm girls in the State. Her home is on a farm in Orange County and she attended the Florida State College, where she majored in home economics. She was graduated several years ago and since then has a job as a home demonstration agent with the Government's rural program.

Jones grew up on a farm in Washington and has 195 prizes among his possessions for participation in various farm exhibits and demonstrations. He will pay particular attention to live-stock farming while in Washington, for he intends to become a rancher.

The manager of the Fourth United States Civil Service District has announced that he will receive applications until August 8, 1936, for the positions of master, mate and chief engineer (marine diesel) in the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, Department of Commerce.

The entrance salaries range from $2,000 to $2,900 a year less a deduction of 3½ per cent toward a retirement annuity. An additional deduction, not to exceed $380 a year, for quarters and subsistence when furnished, will be made.

Competitors will not be required to report for a written examination, but will be rated on their experience and fitness. Applicants must possess an appropriate license.

Full information may be obtained from the manager of the Fourth United States Civil Service District, Washington D. C.

Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, the senior food economist of the Bureau of Home Economics in the Department of Agriculture, will sail for Scotland on August 19 to represent the department at the fourth biennial International Conference of Agricultural Economists. This conclave will be held in picturesque St. Andrews from August 30 to September 6 and she will speak to the delegates on the relations of food supplies to health and dietaries.

Life gets rather hum-drum around the city this time of year, but there's a chance tomorrow to be transported to a different and exciting world that the Smithsonian Institution and the Office of Education have devised. From the exhibits in the Natural History Building of the National Museum, they will go by radio tomorrow morning, to the veldt of Africa and the other parts of the world where the animal groups of the museum were collected before they came into the hands of the taxidermist and the exhibit arrangers.

The weekly educational program is entitled "Big Game Hunting," and one of the features will be the stories of how the late President Theodore Roosevelt, in 1909, went after game on a big scale and brought back some of the most prized exhibits of the museum. His attack by lions that now rest quietly in the building will be told and the broadcast also will reveal how these and other animals were stalked in their native haunts.

R. J. Garber has just been appointed chief agronomist in the division of forage crops and diseases in the Bureau of Plant Industry in the Department of Agriculture. He comes to the Government service from West Virginia University, where he has been teaching and doing experimental work along this line.

Just a word for the Government employe vacationers who are going into the mountains for their holiday and fear they may come across snakes. The United States Bureau of Biological Survey made a statement the other day that at a distance a snake cannot harm a person—provided that distance is about one-half or three-fourths of the snake's length. For poisonous snakes can strike only that distance although it is commonly believed that they strike their full length or even hurl themselves through the air to strike.

Mrs. Dolly Gann Lauds Landon At Chevy Chase

Asks Women to Vote for G. O. P. Candidate; Backs LeGore.

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, last night asked the women of America to unite behind the candidacy of Alf M. Landon.

Mrs. Gann, principal speaker at a meeting of the Landon-Legore Club at Leland Junior High School, Chevy Chase, Md., declared that "the women of America can name anyone they choose to occupy the White House."

"Landon," she said, "will not scrap his platform or attempt to dictate to Congress."

After denouncing the spending policies of the New Deal, Mrs. Gann concluded her speech with the warning that the coming election is not "a contest between Democrats and Republicans, but rather a question of whether the American Government is to continue."

She also urged the election to Congress of Harry W. Legore, of Frederick. Legore is a candidate from the Sixth Maryland District.

Other speakers at the meeting were Arthur W. Dawson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee for Montgomery County; Earl W. Shinn, president of the Landon-Legore Club, and Francis W. Hill, jr., prominent Washington attorney.

Subscriptions totaling more than $1,000 were pledged at the meeting. Announcement was made that the club would open an active campaign on August 22, when former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas is scheduled to speak in the Silver Spring Armory.

H. A. Truscott Dies Here at 61 Of Long Illness

Harry A. Truscott, 61, contractor, Veterans' Bureau clerk and father of Lieut. Floyd A. Truscott, of the Metropolitan Police, died in Emergency Hospital yesterday after an illness of several weeks.

Mr. Truscott, who lived at 3244 Walnut street northeast, had been a resident of Washington for 24 years, coming here to work in the office of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

He was born in Jersey City, N. J., moving later to Kansas, where he was employed as a railroad telegrapher for many years. He moved to Washington in 1912.

When the United States entered the World War, Mr. Truscott left the Commerce Commission and became an Army field clerk, serving until he was honorably discharged in 1921.

At that time he entered the contracting business, in which he remained until his death. Several years ago he joined the statistical division of the Veterans' Bureau, carrying on his contracting work at the same time.

Besides his son, Mr. Truscott is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Hazel T. Miner, of New York City, and Mrs. Mary Grace Seitz, a public school teacher here. He also leaves two brothers, Clarence A. Truscott, of Oakland, Calif., and Ray F. Truscott, of Newton, Kans., an auditor with the Santa Fe Railroad.

Definite funeral arrangements had not been completed last night, but the funeral will probably be held early in the week from Chambers' Southeast undertaking establishment. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Robert S. Frazer Dies.

Pittsburgh, July 31 (AP).—Robert S. Frazer, 86-year-old former chief justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, died today. The veteran jurist, who sat on the Supreme Court bench 21 years before retiring last July, had been ill from pneumonia and complication developing after an operation. He was taken to a hospital a week ago.

Mrs. Dawson Gives Supper For Daughter

Brazilian Ambassador, Mr. Oswaldo Aranha, Attends Fete.

Mrs. Thomas C. Dawson, widow of the United States Ambassador who served for many years in various posts in South America, last night entertained at a buffet supper in honor of her daughter, Miss Lilita Dawson, in celebration of her birthday anniversary.

Miss Dawson, who received with her mother, wore a Maggy Rouff gown of printed taffeta, with orange and green flowers on a cream-colored background. It was made with a full skirt, the bodice cut low in back, and a little shoulder cape of the same material.

Mrs. Dawson's gown also was a French model of flowered chiffon, with blue and mauve flowers on a blue background.

Red roses formed the center bouquet for the table at which the supper was served.

Among the guests were the Ambassador of Brazil, Mr. Oswaldo Aranha; the Second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. de Sousa Freitas, the Attache of the Polish Embassy, Mr. Michal Budny; the Attache of the Guatemalan Legation, Senor Don Francisco Palomo.

Also the chief of the division of eastern European affairs in the State Department, Mr. Robert Kelley; the Assistant Chief of the Division of Latin American Affairs and Mrs. Willard Beaulac, Mme. de Sacasa, wife of the former president of Nicaragua, and her daughter, Miss Maruca de Sacasa; Mrs. Winthrop Scott, Miss Harriet Whitford, Miss Josephine Wright, Miss Evelyn Markwith, Mr. William K. Ryan, Mr. Donald Downs, Mr. Harry Coxen, Mr. Henry Dwight Whitney, Mr. Mannix Walker, Mr. Victor Sutro and Mr. Everett Coxen.

G.B.McKimmie, Alice Ireland Are Married

Wedding Is Solemnized in Home of Bride's Parents.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Wilson Ireland was the scene of the wedding yesterday morning of their daughter, Miss Alice Virginia Ireland, to Mr. George Benjamin McKimmie, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. B. J. McKimmie. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William Shearer in the drawing room, which was decorated with garden flowers in pastel shades arranged against a background of palms and ferns.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white lace made with a fitted jacket and a brief train. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a halo cap, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Mr. L. Kenneth Jones was best man.

After the reception which followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. McKimmie left on a motor trip through the White Mountains. After August 15 they will be at home at 4501 Wisconsin avenue.

Lillian Taylor Becomes Bride

St. Martin's Rectory Scene of Marriage to Granville Everson, Jr.

Miss Lillian Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Taylor, was married at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Mr. Granville Everson, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Everson, of this city. The Rev. M. J. Riordan performed the ceremony, which took place in the rectory of St. Martin's Catholic Church.

The bride had as her only attendant her cousin, Miss Evelyn Blandford, and Mr. Joseph Trippi was best man.

The bride wore a white sharkskin suit and a white felt hat, and carried a bouquet of white bride roses. The maid of honor wore a pastel blue suit with matching hat and carried talisman roses.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Everson will be at home at 400 Kennedy street.

Karoliks to Show Rare Furniture

Enter Exhibits at Old Statehouse in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Maxim Karolik, of Washington, will be among the prominent exhibitors, at the display of Townsend and Goddard furniture which will open at the Old Statehouse in Newport on Thursday as a tercentenary feature. Miss Maude Wetmore is chairman of the committee.

The silver exhibit of the work of the famous Newport makers closes at the Old Statehouse Monday after a most successful period. Maj. Gist Blair, of Washington, had the only known teapot made by Samuel Vernon on display, one of the oustanding pieces in the exhibition.

There is interest now in the retrospective art exhibition being held as a tercentenary event at the Art Association there.

Barbees Leave On Hawaii Trip After Nuptials

Couple Flies to Coast to Embark on Ship Sailing Tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Randolph Barbee, whose wedding took place last Saturday in Mount Vernon, N. Y., left by plane yesterday from the Washington Airport on their wedding trip. They are flying to Los Angeles, where they will sail tonight aboard the Lurline for Honolulu.

On their return to this country they will land in San Francisco and return East by plane, going to Canada, making several stops on their way back. They will be at home after October 1 on their estate, Level Green, near Fairfax, Va.

Mrs. Barbee, the former Miss Grace D. Lunt, had set August 2 as the date for her marriage but, during a visit at the home of her aunt, Mrs. J. F. Barclay, in Mount Vernon, she decided to have a quiet wedding there a week earlier and spend part of her honeymoon at her new home in Virginia before leaving for her wedding trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

Caravan Ends Capital Visit

Mrs. Bruce Wallace Official Hostess to Britons in Washington.

Mrs. Bruce Wallace, executive secretary of the English-Speaking Union, had a busy time during the visit of the British motor caravan. She assisted in arrangements for their transportation about the Capital in cars loaned by Washington residents and driven by persons familiar with "right" rules of the road, and acted as an official hostess during their stay here.

"They were delighted with Washington and felt sure that nowhere could their welcome be as cordial as it had been here," said Mrs. Wallace.

"They enjoyed the luncheon at which the National Geographic Society entertained them, with the vice president, Dr. J. O. LaGorce, and Mr. George W. Hutchinson acting as hosts. Several in the party were members of the National Geographic Society, and Mr. Humphrey Symon, a member of the Royal Geographic Society."

Mr. Philip Broad, Second Secretary of the British Embassy, and Mr. W. N. McG. Hogg, Third Secretary, were among those who welcomed the visitors.

Among those who gave the use of their cars, and in some instances joined the afternoon tour, were Mrs. J. D. Morgan, whose daughter, Mrs. Fitzmorris Day, is the wife of Col. Day, former Military Attache of the British Embassy; Miss Eve Mark-Wardlaw, daughter of Col. A. L. P. Mark-Wardlaw, Naval Attache of the British Embassy; Mr. R. V. Fletcher, Mr. Lawrence Choate, Mrs. William Corby, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon King, Miss Mary Donnelly, Mrs. Calderon Carlisle, Mr. and Mrs. George Morris, Mr. Alexandria Trowbridge, Mrs. Charles Bish, Mrs. Albert Jones, Mrs. Thomas Armat, Mrs. A. Florence Price and Miss Verhoff.

Hans Luther Will Attend Horse Show

Event at Middleburg Will Benefit Purcellville Building Fund.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney Enters String in First 1936 Competition.

The Ambassador of Germany, Herr Hans Luther, who with his two daughters is spending the summer at Bluemont, W. Va., has taken a box for the horse show to be held on Wednesday at the Glenwood estate in Middleburg for the benefit of the Purcellville Building Fund.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, who has not shown her horses this season, has entered her entire string of fine hunters in the show, which is sponsored by Mr. D. C. Sands.

Her 16 hunters, entered in the 18 classes to be shown that day, include Bon Diable, Missing Caddy, Kinprillis, Two Leggins, Cypress de Beau and others formerly exhibited on the Eastern horse show circuit.

Other well known exhibitors at the show will include Dr. L. M. Allen, Mr. E. L. Redmond, Mr. Taylor Hardin, Judge J. R. H. Alexander, Mr. Lawrence Lowenbach, Mr. Stanley Green 2d, Mr. George Casilear and Mrs. D. N. Lee.

Other exhibitors are Mr. U. S. Randle, Miss Margo Couzens, Miss Louise Myers, Miss Margaret Cutter and Miss Edna Roth, of Rockville, Md.

In addition to the horse show, a competitive period pageant and an antique sale will be high lights on the day's program.

Judges will be Mrs. Juliah Keith, of Washington; Mr. Courtland Smith, of The Plains, and Col. Thomas J. Johnson, of Washington.

Virginia Gulick, J. Birmingham To Marry Today

Wedding to Take Place at St. Anne's Church This Morning.

The wedding of Miss Virginia M. Gulick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gulick, to Mr. James Birmingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Birmingham, of Cumberland, Md., will take place at 8 a. m. today at St. Anne's Church. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Edward Roach.

The bride will wear a gown of white lace fashioned with a short train which will be carried by little Miss Jean Ann Bergling. Her bouquet will be of roses. Her only attendant will be Mrs. William Heany, who will wear a gown of pink lace.

Mr. Birmingham will have as best man his brother, Mr. Francis Birmingham.

Delegates Honor Labor Secretary

The Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, led in a vote of 37 delegates to the congress in Paris of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women on the world's outstanding women. Miss Perkins addressed the delegates yesterday.

Miss Anne Hiller to Return to New York After Visiting Cousin.

Miss Anne Estelle Hiller, of New York City, who has been here visiting her cousin, Mrs. Norman Kane, and Maj. Kane, for the past two weeks, is leaving for her home tomorrow.

Mrj. and Mrs. Kane entertained with a dinner party last week-end in her honor and for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., who also were their guests for several days, and left Tuesday for Montreal.

Several swimming parties at the Army-Navy Country Club and other informal affairs have been given for Miss Hiller during her visit.

Mrs. Kane is well known in the Capital as both an artist and musician and also enjoys a reputation among her friends for telling fortunes with tea leaves, an art at which she is frequently called upon to entertain at dinner parties where she is a guest.

River Home Is Purchased By Gardiners

Couple Is Having House Modernized, Wharf Repaired.

Peggins Point, an estate of 20 acres opposite St. Marys City, Md., has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. W. Gwynn Gardiner, jr., for their summer home. The former owners are Dr. and Mrs. Howard D. Lewis, of Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner expect to remodel portions of the house, which has three wings and includes in its construction the original old farm house which dates back many years. They plan to make an old slave cabin in the rear into a guest house. An old stone wall nearby is one of the centers of interest on the property, and there are many fine walnut and mimosa trees on the grounds.

Peggins Point, long a show place, is a point of land extending into St. Marys River, surrounded by water three sides and with a view of the Potomac.

The St. Marys River is 20 feet deep at the property. There is a six-acre oyster bed just off the point. The Gardiners expect to enjoy swimming there and already have anchored the Margeo, 53-foot yacht belonging to Mr. Gardiner's father, at their new home. The wharf, part of which was carried away by the ice in the spring, is being repaired.

They are having the house done over this season and expect to occupy it as their summer home next year. It is already modernized. An artesian well provides water. The Gardiner's Washington residence is at 1316 Thirty-third street.

Mrs. Gardiner is the former Miss Teresa Saul, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Saul.

Miss Theodora Gott, Fiance, Entertained

Miss Theodora Gott, whose marriage to Mr. Herbert O'Hare will take place some time the middle of August in Goshen, N. Y., was entertained with her fiance at a dinner party given last evening on the Shoreham Terrace by Dean William Crane Johnstone of the Junior College of George Washington University and Mrs. Johnstone.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Preserve Sound Teeth.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we were all provided with indestructible teeth, permanent rustless bones, everlasting arteries and muscles and hearts and kidneys that would never wear out! Well, yes, and and again no! Such an organization would be out of tune with the general biological scheme that everything about the body is susceptible to decay.

Nature was rather wise, after all, in building our bodies with living elements; in providing as many varieties of personalities as there are individuals, and in planning survival so that dependence is placed upon effort, industry and the exercise of intelligence. What a sorry day will dawn when we are required no longer to use our brains or brush our teeth.

Bad teeth are often painful; in addition, they may become a real menace to health. They may harbor infection and pour into the blood stream poisonous substances which will injure important organs, such as the heart and the kidneys. Furthermore, unless these foci of infection are removed, general changes in the arteries—arteriosclerosis may be set up, with great reduction in efficiency.

To what extent bacteria are responsible for decay is not quite clear. Certainly other factors are concerned. Even cleanliness is not an absolute guarantee against decay, and we probably have much to learn about the influence of the ductless glands. Some years ago almost every one was testing himself with litmus paper to see whether or not he had an acid mouth. Enough research has been done to show that slight variations in acid or alkaline reactions of the saliva have been stressed too strongly.

Probably the chief element in maintaining good teeth is diet. Soft foods are useful, but if employed exclusively have been shown to be detrimental. English research workers have brought on rapid decay of the teeth of experimental animals by feeding diets deficient in protein, calcium, and vitamins. Fortunately for most of us milk contains these properties, particularly if re-enforced with vitamin D, and hence provides protection against deterioration.

Many observers believe that the possession of good teeth depends more upon the care of the mother during pregnancy than upon anything, and everything that can be done thereafter. The development of the babe creates such a heavy drain upon the mother's stores of calcium and phosphorus that should her diet contain too little of these substances, and too few vitamins, the foundation for poor teeth in the child is established. Nowadays, since we are feeding orange juice with a plentiful supply of milk to infants, we have no fear that the child's requirements will not be fully met.

About the age of 2½ the child should make the first visit to the dentist and, after that, at least two visits each year. This is prevention in the best sense and is far cheaper than neglect.

As we grow older we are likely to become more careless. We may neglect entirely the necessity of calcium in the diet which was so carefully given us as children; and rare is the adult who will not require at least a pint of milk in each 24 hours. We must look upon milk, green vegetables and fruits as teeth preserving foods.

Explorer of Talent

Harris & Ewing.

MISS ELIZABETH VAUGHN.

Every Woman Latent Artist Of Some Form

PERSONS who insist that art is only for highbrows are all wrong. For every woman in the world is an artist. Her talent may reveal itself in painting, music or literature, but more often it comes to the fore in delicious meals charmingly served, a tastefully furnished home, an attractive wardrobe, a fascinating hobby, a box of geraniums on the window sill—or merely through appreciation of the creative expression of others. But sooner or later, through some means or another, every woman proves she possesses the artistic spark.

So thinks Miss Elizabeth Vaughn, young artist-writer, of Chattanooga, Tenn., who is visiting her cousin, Miss Cameron Turner, at the Valley Vista.

"Last year when I gave a series of informal talks on art to the school children of Chattanooga I was amazed at the keen appreciation of works of the masters shown by those girls and boys," she said yesterday.

Miss Vaughn believes, also, that "confidence in one's self and an opportunity to try one's wings" are necessary to finding a suitable medium of expression in painting, music or writing. "Probably the reason there are more good women cooks than good women writers or painters is that virtually every housewife has an opportunity to prove her skill over the cook-stove, but rarely has time to develop her ability at the typewriter or easel."

Feeling that "thousands of artists never discover their art," Miss Vaughn confessed she is doing everything she can to escape such a fate. In view of this she has already tried her hand at three types of creative expression.

As a student at Drake University, she became interested in dramatic work and was a member of the Drake University Players on tour. Later, she did radio work in New York and Washington, and in Chattanooga, she conducted a special series of broadcasts on "Poets of Tennessee" for the Tennessee Federation of Women's Clubs.

As a writer she conducts a weekly column, "Silhouettes" in the Lookout Magazine, and has won a number of prizes in short story contests.

Civic Duty Part of Child Education

Parents as Well as Schools Should Contribute to Training.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

WHEN SAM came to vote at the age of 21, he was as completely ignorant about the government of his town, State and country, and of his place in it as if he had come from another planet. He was a good tool in the hands of the first man who was seeking votes.

No one in his senses would dream of bringing up a child who is to inherit a fortune, in complete ignorance of the handling and use of money. But it occurs to few people that an American who comes of age is in just such a position. He comes into a share—however small—of a great fortune. He is part owner of a tremendous store of national wealth and power.

There are, to be sure, classes in civics and social science in many, probably in most, of the schools. There are also classes in American history. But to know about the discovery and development of the United States; to be informed as to the powers of the judiciary, the methods of electing Presidents, and the rights of States is not a sufficient preparation for activity as an American citizen.

The child of high school age should have far more practical teaching than is generally given, and teaching not only in the mechanics of government, but also in its ethics. Parents as well as schools should do their share in informing him of his rights, duties and privileges.

He should learn to respect his position as a citizen so that he will not be tempted to sell it to the highest bidder; he should be taught that public property is partly his to be cared for by him; that public officials are partly in his employ, and that it is therefore his responsibility to see that these employes are honest and efficient. Only a nation of free and intelligent citizens can truly support a democracy.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

IF YOUR PRIDE and joy is in your collection of beautiful china, you share your hobby with royalty and wealth. China has interested discriminating people not only because of its beauty but because of its interesting career.

Augustus the Strong of Saxony was the patron of the chemist who discovered how to make Dresden china. It seems that an apothecary's boy, by the name of Bottiger, composed a formula that was reported to be transformable into gold. He was locked in his laboratory and commanded to make gold . . . the poor fellow nearly lost his reason at this assignment—who wouldn't?

He was given partial liberty in Dresden while pursuing his experiments and developed the porcelain known as Meissen or Dresden ware.

Goodness knows what might have happened to the poor chemist if Augustus the Strong, his patron, hadn't been a collector and ardent admirer of beautiful china. But since he was, he welcomed the exquisite new chinaware delightedly and was almost as pleased as if Bottiger had actually discovered a way to make gold. A corps of workers were brought from Delft, Holland, to start the Meissen factory, and it has been going strong ever since.

The charm of Dresden china is not only in the delicacy and fineness of the china, but also in the perfectly lovely patterns that decorate it. The garlands and bouquets have always had decided individuality, and have in fact been the source for a whole army of copies in clothes, embroidery, ribbons and many other things. And that in itself is a compliment supreme. It is a shame, in a way, that some of the very cheap Japanese ware has appropriated the Dresden designs, though, because they're not as nice as the originals yet tend to make them common.

Soap Cleans Nails.

When gardening, painting or housecleaning, the fingernails may be kept clean by first scraping them over with a piece of common soap and allowing the soap to remain on the nails and under the tips. Wash off the soap when the "rough work" is finished and you will find the nails exquisitely clean.

Apple Strudel and Coffee for Sunday Breakfast

Once in a while it does no harm to treat the sweet-tooth at breakfast. And for that once in a while you will find any number of delicious sweet breads from which to choose—fruited muffins, Danish pastry, Swedish tea ring, cinnamon buns and coffee cake. Even apple strudel, pictured above, makes a tempting bite for breakfast when served with piping hot coffee. The accompanying story gives a quick recipe for this confection.

Spicy Apple Dish Completes Leisurely Sunday Breakfast

Sweet Tooth Can Well Be Pampered on That Morning When Members of Family Like to Linger Over Extra Cup of Coffee.

By Dorothea Duncan.

IN MANY HOUSEHOLDS Sunday breakfast is the favorite meal of the week. This is especially true where all the members of the family are adults who work and have little time to spend at the breakfast table on the six days of the week when they must take a dash for the office.

Sunday, then, calls for a leisurely first meal of the day with favorite or unusual dishes and plenty of coffee for extra servings.

The apple ranks high among the favorite foods for Sunday breakfasts. Green apple sauce with a touch of spice, or baked apples, often replace the week-day fruit juice that can be swallowed in one gulp. Fried apple rings with a dusting of cinnamon and powdered sugar, added to a platter of crisp bacon and broiled liver, make a breakfast worth eating leisurely.

The sweet tooth is often pampered on Sunday morning, though it goes neglected during the rest of the early morning meals of the week. Spiced apple muffins or apple strudel or cinnamon cake topped with apple slices are particularly attractive with piping-hot coffee.

Quick Apple Strudel.

2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
6 tablespoons shortening
2-3 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup brown sugar
Cinnamon
2½ cups chopped apples

Sift flour, salt, sugar and baking powder together. Cut in the shortening. Add the milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured board and knead gently. Roll out in a rectangular sheet, ¼ inch thick. Spread with butter, cinnamon, brown sugar and apples. Roll jelly fashion. Curve into semi-circle. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Cover with white frosting.

White Frosting.

2 tablespoons hot water
1½ cups confectioner's sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Add hot water to sugar and beat until well blended. Add the vanila. Spread on warm strudel.

Apple Muffins.

Sift before measuring 2 cups cake flour or 1¾ cups bread flour. Resift with:

¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder

Beat in a separate bowl 2 eggs. Combine with above mixture and add 2 tablespoons melted butter and ¾ cup milk. Stir the liquid quickly into the dry ingredients, taking only 15 to 20 seconds in which to do it. Unnecessary handling of the batter results in tough muffins.

Fold into the batter ½ cup peeled, chopped apples. Pour batter immediately into greased tins or paper baking cups. Fill tins about 1-3 full. Then peel cooking apples that are about the same diameter as the top of the muffin tins. Cut in ½ inch slices. Dip them in a mixture of 1 part cinnamon and 4 parts sugar. Place a slice of apple on top of each partially filled muffin cup.

Bake the muffins from 15 to 20 minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees F.). Remove them at once from the tins. To reheat them, place them in a paper bag, close the bag and place them in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for about five minutes.

Post Contest Seeks Recipes On Ginger Ale

NEXT week the spotlight will be turned upon ginger ale, for this popular beverage has been chosen as the theme of the new Post recipe contest.

First popular as the ideal background for mixed drinks and punches, ginger ale is earning new laurels as a popular ingredient in jellied salads, fruit cups and frozen mixtures.

Dorothea Duncan hopes that the entries next week will reveal many new and interesting recipes which include ginger ale as an important ingredient.

Cash prizes will be awarded the five best recipes entered next week. The first prize will be $5, the second $3 and the three remaining prizes $1 each.

Send your favorite recipe using ginger ale as an important ingredient to Dorothea Duncan in care of The Washington Post. Be sure to mail your recipe in time to reach this office not later than next Saturday morning.

The prize winners in this week's contest for baked ham recipes will be announced on the food page next Wednesday.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a boy of 19 who graduated from high school in June and I have a problem which may seem foolish to you but it seems very big and perplexing to me. Here it is: For nearly a year I had been going pretty steadily with a certain girl. During this time I have gone out with other girls occasionally but never enjoyed their company as I do hers. I had never been able to make any noticeable headway with her, as she never treats me other than as a friend, and foolish as it may sound, I wish to be more than just a friend to her.

* * * *

Due to this state of affairs I broke off with her just after New Year's, but was unable to stay away from her. I told her my reasons for breaking off and all she said was to suit myself. Well, anyway, I came back and we got along all right until May, when I asked her to go to the school prom. She told me she had asked another boy to go as her guest, but that she didn't think he would be able to go. Later in the week she told me she would go with me. Since the dance was to be a closed affair, she suggested that she enter with a friend of mine and that I walk in with his friend. In this manner, all four of us would be able to go together.

* * * *

Still later, and shortly before the dance, she told me she was going with my friend, and that I had misunderstood her if I thought she was going as my partner. This made me angry and I told her a few unvarnished truths, and also said if she didn't go with me I would break off with her for good. Well, the next day she said, "Oh, all right. I suppose I'll have to go with you, but I don't want to be pawed." When she said this it both hurt me and made me angry, for I pride myself on the fact that I am decent and well-behaved. So when she told me this I replied that I didn't want to see her again and that I would take someone else. From the time of this incident until the dance, which was about three weeks later, she acted very nice to me and got me to take her to a party given by one of our classmates, and there met a boy who started taking her out on dates.

* * * *

The night of the prom she didn't attend but went to another dance with this boy she had met at the party.

* * * *

For five or six weeks after that I didn't ask her for a date, although I saw her frequently and was nice to her, at dances, parties and the graduation exercises. I sent her a birthday gift during that time which she acknowledged by telephoning and asking me to come and see her some time. Then I telephoned her to tell her about a certain meeting I thought she would be interested in. (You can readily see I wanted to go back to her.) I asked her if she was going and she said, "Yes, if you will take me." So I took her and afterwards we got everything straightened out and for a while everything was fine.

* * * *

Then I found she was beginning to like the boy she had met at the party. She liked him very much, more than she cared for me. So I told her I didn't know what to do but just forget her and that I needed time to think things over. So when I took her home she said to telephone her once in a while. Now my problem is: should I still hang around and take a chance that she will forget the other fellow and learn to care for me, or should I just forget her? Sincerely yours.

UNDECIDED.

Case for Finesse.

DEAR UNDECIDED: The girl seems to be playing a sort of cat-and-mouse game with you. She doesn't want you particularly, but she doesn't want anyone else to have you either. No doubt she thinks your scalp makes a very handsome decoration, dangling at her belt. It probably proves to her own satisfaction that she is quite a siren in an amateur way.

* * * *

Have you noticed that when you prove your ability to live without her for a time, she is always graciously willing to have you back, but that when she is sure you are hers for the taking, she is inclined to turn up her nose at you? At least, that is the picture as I get it. And it is the picture of a selfish and empty-headed coquette, playing rather fast and loose with the boy's whole-hearted devotion.

* * * *

My advice to you is just to forget her. I don't think she cares the snap of her finger about you, or she wouldn't make you suffer as she does. Probably all you mean to her is just somebody to fall back on in the way of a social partner, when she is temporarily out of other conquests. Don't telephone her at all, and if and when she telephones you, tell her you are too busy to see her. If you do this, and she finds she can't whistle you back to her elbow, she may possibly commence to care for you a little. Don't make the mistake again of telling her how much you love her. Let her believe you have outgrown your love for her; that her fickleness has exhausted your patience and killed your devotion, and that you are interested in some other girl or girls. I have an idea only a little determination and finesse on your part would completely dispel her coyness and start her running after you for a change.

Pattern 5358

"WE ALL ENVY Mary her lovely lace cloth!" Mary's friends admit, but little do they realize they too can make cloths just as lovely from pattern 5358, an exclusive Alice Brooks design inspired by old Italian lace. All you've to do is crochet the simple squares, one just like another, and it's the joining up that makes the continuous pattern. As quickly and simply as that! Inexpensive, too, for just plain string is used. In pattern 5358 you will find complete instructions for making the square shown; an illustration of it and of all stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

CONSTIPATION* MAY SLOW YOU DOWN

Correct It by Eating the Right Meals

The most common type of constipation is due to insufficient "bulk" in the diet. When you continue to eat poorly balanced meals, over a period of weeks and months, faulty elimination often develops. You feel uncomfortable, lack your accustomed vigor.

Eat a balanced diet. Include milk, fruits and vegetables as protective foods. Also sufficient "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a convenient source of "bulk." Within the body, it absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently cleanses the intestinal tract.

Fruits and vegetables contain some "bulk," of course. But scientific tests show that, with certain people, this "bulk" is largely broken down within the body. This does not happen to the same extent with bran. When you eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you can be sure of obtaining effective "bulk."

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, etc. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. If not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company as a natural laxative food for constipation.* Eat it regularly for regularity. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Olsen Band Is One Up on Film At Loew's Fox

'Florida Special' Seems to Run Off Schedule; Other Programs.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"FLORIDA SPECIAL." Paramount picturization of Clarence Budington Kelland's story of "Recreation Car," adapted to the screen by David Boehm, Marguerite Roberts and Laura and S. J. Perelman, featuring Jack Oakie, Sally Eilers and Kent Taylor, with Frances Drake, J. Farrell MacDonald, Claude Gillingwater, Sam "Schlepperman" Hearn, Sidney Blackmer, Matthew Betts, Dwight Frye, Dewey Robinson and Little Jackie Heller. Directed by Ralph Murphy. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

This must be a comedy. While some attempt is made to compile a mystery, thrill with the bogus suspense of a jewel theft, a cold-blooded murder and the rounding up of a band of crooks and to launch more romance than you could shake a stick at, only the laughs seem to register in this odd combination of so many different melodramatic elements that nothing seems to jell and one wonders, after it is all over, what it might possibly all have been about.

Jack Oakie, as a New York newspaper reporter, who gets aboard the de luxe train for Miami by mistake and has a frantic time thenceforth, always and forever trying to file his story at every station at which the "special' even so much as hesitates, generates the major portion of the fun that must be looked upon as the film's raison d'etre and only visible justification.

In addition to Mr. Oakie, however, the action is cluttered up with a vacationing chief of police, an international crook, in love with the hostess on the train's recreation car; a band of thugs, intent on lifting $1,000,000 worth of jewels into which an obvious caricature of John D. Rockefeller has converted a portion of his wealth; a few secretaries, the train crew, an enigmatic niece of the millionaire, a Park avenue playboy, an orchestra for the travelers' diversion and Little Jackie Heller, recently seen in person at the same theater, to sing one song for the delectation of the passenger list.

Action All Aboard Train.

Out of all this welter of matrial, extremely little emerges in the way of sane or interesting entertainment. All of the action takes place aboard the southbound train, with the exception of the introductory sequences in the station in New York and the short platform incidents as the train stops at way stations en route to Florida. These include Philadelphia, Wilmington, Washington and Richmond. The "Florida Special" never reaches its destination, geographically or dramatically.

Whatever diversion is to be derived from this hodge-podge of episodic happenings, smart-cracking and mayhem must be extracted from the individual efforts of the numerous and talented members of the cast, rather than from any unity of purpose which they exert in the direction of sound drama.

Jack Oakie is as funny as his speeches, which range from the highly ludicrous to the utterly obvious and inane, and Kent Taylor is as romantic as it is possible for a young man to be when all the girls on the train will have none of him. Claude Gillingwater is a slightly caustic caricature of the oil baron and J. Farrell MacDonald the futile copper whose vacation is turned into an ineffectual tour of duty that ends with him in handcuffs, instead of the crooks.

Sidney Blackmer, Sally Eilers, Frances Drake, Matthew Betts and the others named in the small type preceding these patient remarks do as well as they can with the material at hand—which, in all frankness, is none too well.

The Olsens Click Again.

George Olsen and his orchestra return to the Fox stage to offer an hour's tuneful pastiming that runs rather preponderantly to unique novelty numbers and special arrangements that sacrifice music to lyrical trickery and comic effect. Ravel's "Bolero," to be sure, is played with vast effectiveness, but "The Show Must Go On," "How Instruments Were Born," and "Music Goes Round and Round" are studies in lyrical comedy rather than instrumental beauty.

As specialists, the Two Zephyrs, a pair of sepia syncopationists, who execute a pantomime craps game and subsequent fight to the death that are a triumph of slow motion, and Ethel Shutta in her incomparable song-stories, stop the proceedings cold in their tracks. Miss Shutta is especially happy in her opening number, "It's Sleepy Time in Topsy-Turvy Town" and her mountaineer feud number, "The Martins and Coys." "I Was One of the Front Row Girls" and "I Want a Hill Billy Band" wind the turn up in a blaze of glory and a riot of applause.

The Fox Movietone News, a Patsy Kelly-Pert Kelton comedy, "Pan Handlers," and Max Zinder's medley overture of songs of the South are the supplementaries of a program that marks a distinct recession from the usually high standard of the Fox bills.

Sings New Song-Stories at Fox

This would be a very excellent likeness of Miss Ethel Shutta, featured songstress with the George Olsen Orchestra, currently providing the stage entertainment at Loew's Fox Theater. Always a finished artiste, Miss Shutta seems this week better than ever in her interpretation of songs in which a devoted mother prates to her small son at bedtime. Also, probably just to prove her versatility, she repeats the earlier triumphs she has scored locally in "I Want a Hill Billy Band." Miss Shutta, of course, in private life is Mrs. George Olsen.

Palace

"THE POOR LITTLE RICH GIRL." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a screen story by Sam Hellman, Gladys Lehman and Harry Tugend, suggested by the stories of Eleanor Gates and Ralph Spence, starring Shirley Temple, supported by Alice Faye, Gloria Stuart, Jack Haley, Michael Whalen, Sara Haden, Jane Darwell, Claude Gillingwater, Henry Armetta and John Wray. Directed by Irving Cummings. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

This is a very pleasant little fable, indeed, which La Temple has for her most recent siege upon our city.

It's a child's fairy story, lifted out of a picture book and transformed into the very practical form that juvenile day dreaming so often takes. Little Barbara Barry, daughter of rich, young and busy Mr. Richard Barry, is pretty lonesome in her big house. Her favorite companions are Tony, the organ-grinder, and Puddin' Head, the dancing young man, both of whom live in her favorite story book.

So, quite naturally, when events conspire to give her a chance, she just walks away and finds a real-life Tony and Puddin' Head, joins up with them and has a delightful time, including crashing radio as a star performer!

Having missed her last two or three pictures, Shirley may be more of a novelty to us than to her most ardent admirers, but certainly in this appearance she is a downright brilliant youngster. She pouts only once, she is never annoyingly cute, and she is so altogether disarmingly natural that her all-inclusive talents don't seem too precocious. She sings and she dances—her last tap effort is remarkable—and she has a good time.

Is Completely Supported.

The picture is perhaps a litttle long, but full of pleasant people and engaging throughout.

Michael Whalen is attractive as Barbara's dad, and so is Gloria Stuart in a rather brief role. Jack Haley is just right for Puddin'head as is Henry Armetta for Tony. Alice Faye contributes her deep voice, and Claude Gillingwater is a thorough delight in his scenes with Shirley. John Wray is the ogre that all fairy stories must have.

Entertainment does not stop, however, with the feature, for the Palace can boast this week of one of the most hilarious of all the riotous Mickey Mouse adventures. This one, "Moving Day," has a marvelous piano and piano-mover, and a suffe'in' Donald Duck, who fights every step of the way.

Other subsidiaries, including another of that always interesting M-G-M "Crime Doesn't Pay" series, which usually manages to introduce talented young actors (this time the young criminal and his wife), and an unusually varied newsreel which drew applause for Roosevelt, Landon, Eleanor Holm Jarrett and summer theater enthusiasts, complete a first-class bill, perfect for relaxation.

Metropolitan

"TWO AGAINST THE WORLD." First National picturization of a screen play by Michel Jacoby, featuring Humphrey Bogart and Beverly Roberts, with Helen McKellar, Henry O'Neill, Linda Perry, Claire Dodd, Hobart Cavanaugh, Bobby Gordon and Paula Stone. Directed by William McGann. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Sally Stroud.

A chorus girl, Glory Penbrook, was exonerated in the murder of a man. Twenty years later her past confronts her, when she thought it safely behind her. On the eve of her daughter's marriage, a radio station, on the lookout for spicy audience-building programs, announced the serialization of Glory's life story. The boy's parents forbid his marrying the murderess' child; radio officials refuse to cancel plans for the serial! Glory Penbrook and her faithful husband commit suicide. The two youngsters plan to carry on.

That is one angle of the story. Secondary heart-interest focalizes in the twosome made up by the manager of the radio chain and his secretary. Sherry Scott, the young man under discussion, cared not at all for the muck-raking engaged in by his bosses. Eventually he told them so and promised to help the Federal Communications Board divest them of their broadcasting license. Then he fires the secretary and rehires her to look after him.

Short, consuming only a hour in screening time, the story has many facets which could have been developed to make it longer and more vitally dramatic and interesting. For instance, the skee-de-o-ho-ing bellhop who wanted an audition, and more could have been shown of the workings of a big radio chain, behind-the-scenes stuff.

Is Good Journeyman Movie.

While not a toplist production, this may interest you, largely through the excellent characterizations of Glory Penbrook (Helen McKellar) and her husband Jim (Henry O'Neil). Then there are the choice phrases of Sherry Scott as he deflates the supercilious sanctimony of the chain owner. The people seem human, and act accordingly. It is unpretentious and moving, though not unforgettable.

Humphrey Bogart and Beverly Roberts, as Sherry Scott and his secretary, fulfills every expectation of excellent work from two competent players.

The supplementary program features miscellaneous vaudeville-like acts, the best being the one showing bears riding bikes, etc.; Andy Clyde tearing around in a comedy, in which he does the spring cleaning for the li'l woman, and Porky, the pig, and Lulu, the ostrich, whipping up laughs in an animated cartoon.

Best flashes of the lot in the newsreel show take-off of Russian flyers on first lap of 10,000 mile Arctic jaunt, charting new airlines; Landon and Vandenberg, in the former's first screen interview; the Queen Mary at sea on her last voyage, when she clipped the record for oceanic crossing; participants in the trial of the dog Idaho, accused of murder, and Granville winning the Arlington classic.

"THE DEVIL DOLL." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Tod Browning, adapted from Abraham Merritt's "Burn, Witch, Burn," starring Lionel Barrymore, supported by Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Lawton, Rafaela Ottiano, the late Henry B. Walthall and Pedro de Cordoba. Directed by Tod Browning. Reviewed, return engagement, by Dorothea Lewis.

Aside from providing as great a field day for photographers as lightning playing about the Washington Monument, this is a minor effort, a curious picture that doesn't quite jell for us, for all its repeat engagement.

Human beings shrink into tiny living dolls that steal and stab; dogs, no bigger than your fist, prance about and bark, chemicals boil and bubble and burst; strange scientists roll wild eyes in glaring lights and ominous shadows.

All this is very successfully synthetic but, sadly, the story is similarly fake. It has to do with a wronged prisoner, Paul La Vond, who escapes from jail and returns to France, with devil dolls, tiny human robots, as the instruments of his revenge.

Tod Browning manages to inject some suspense, and the marvel of the photography, which makes the Lilliputians move about almost believably in the same room with normal folk, is interesting. Otherwise the score is low. Lionel Barrymore puts on a wig and a husky falsetto a little like Sister Ethel's; Maureen O'Sullivan and Frank Lawton waste their charms; Pedro de Cordoba lends his splendid voice, and Rafaela Ottiano her most frightening expressions.

The usual subsidiaries, including an "Our Gang" comedy and the newsreel, complete the bill.

Hair Believed Clew In Co-ed's Slaying

Asheville, N. C., July 31 (AP).—Four strands of hair from a white man's head, found on a towel in the slain Helen Clevenger's hotel bathroom, today gave officers their newest hope of tracking down the brutal killer of the comely 18-year-old Staten Island girl.

Described as dark and straight, the hairs took their place beside a rusty .32-caliber bullet and an exploded shell, of non-standard make, as physical clews to the intruder who entered the girl's room during a raging thunderstorm at 1 a. m., July 16, shot her through the body, viciously battered her face, and then escaped.

Chief of Police William J. Everett revealed that the wisps of hair, each about 4 inches long, composed the evidence sent to Washington in custody of three Asheville detectives for examination by Federal Bureau of Investigation chemists.

A report he received today, the chief said, showed they did not come from the head of Daniel H. Gaddy, hotel night watchman held incommunicado since two days after the crime. Specimens of Gaddy's hair were also examined by the F. B. I. chemists.

Charles R. Capps.

Hoodlum's Gal Becomes Chief Plot Interest

"PUBLIC ENEMY'S WIFE." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by P. J. Wolfson, with screen play by Aben Finkel and Harold Buckley, featuring Pat O'Brien and Margaret Lindsay, supported by Cesar Romero, Dick Foran, Richard Purcell, Addison Richards, Harry Hayden, Kenneth Harlan, Robert Armstrong, Joseph King, Selmer Jackson, Hal K. Dawson, Alan Bridges and William Pawley. Directed by Nick Grinde. Reviewed Friday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

Mixing romance and G-Men, with added comedy and gangsters, the whole made piquant by that melodramatic Oomph which only Warner Brothers seem to be able to imbue a picture of this sort, "Public Enemy's Wife" comes as a pleasing variation of a familiar theme, with the uniting of G-Man and ex-Mrs. Moll in what was supposed to be a spurious rite but which turned out to be unremittingly real.

Out of that situation, contrived for capture of an escaped lifer—who slipped the trap—there is fabricated much the traditional "cops and robbers" yarn, which, at the fade-out, has the agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation with the situation well in hand and the hero with the heroine well in his arms.

Characterized by fast action, counterpointed with dramatic situations balanced by dry humor, "Public Enemy's Wiwe" presents Pat O'Brien as a G-Man who, to effect the capture of the escaped convict, devises the somewhat unusual FBI procedure, with Margaret Lindsay as the bait in the trap. Assisted by Robert Armstrong (a sort of smiling New Sparks) the ultimate capture of sleethy Cesar Romero is effected through a bring-'em-back-dead expedient.

Is Action-Melodrama.

More an action melodrama than an inspired display of histrionics, the picture is(notwithstanding, creditably acted, with the principals giving more than enough to make the P. J. Wolfson's imaginings seem reasonably real. The supporting cast also conducts itself with precision and the whole picture has an air of authenticity about it that is not entirly substantiated by a cold analysis of the narative.

Fully as entertaining as the major screen feature is the stage show which features that proved artiste of acrobatic dance, Irene Vermillion. She again is supported by the Kermit Dart Ensemble, five trumpeting young women whose numbers—alone and as accompaniment—are cleverly arranged and pleasingly presented. The unusual arrangement of "Sylvia" is especially worthy. In her three routines, Miss Vermillion continues to sustain her position as one of vaudeville's most accomplished dancers.

Ross, Pierre and Shuster offer their "Big Broadcast of 1936," a virtual "mikrocosmos" of radio's great, with burlesqued imitations and impressions of such as Rudy Vallee, Bing Crosby, Popeye and Betty Boop, Lawrence Tibbett and Jeanette MacDonald, hill billies; Irene Bordini, Lupe Velez, and the Mills Brothers. It is a brusque concoction, but amusing and well done.

Comes Open Bill.

The program is opened with the Four Comets, a quartet of roller skaters, thrilling to watch. And there are also Hector and His Pals, a dozen dogs of assorted sizes and breeds, put through their paces to the accompaniment of the impresario's rapid-fire chatter.

Those acts, which Audrey Sieber introduced in her own charming manner, and the praiseworthy work of C. Frederick Clark and the boys in the pit, make for entertainment of high order.

To round out the program, there is also offered "The Oily Bird," a comedy with Ken Murray and stooge; "Let's Get Movin'," a Popeye cartoon, and "Fashions in Love," recounting the changes in screen osculatory embraces from the time of May Irwin in "The Kiss," to Mae West and Cary Grant, in "She Done Him Wrong."

The Paramount News rounds out the program.

Recasting.

Now for our other game, recasting. Or the movie fans' version of "If I Were a Producer." Elizabeth Hoerner is dissatisfied with "Under Two Flags." She writes: "Who can forget the 'Silver Pheasant,' the real heroine of Ouida's yarn? Is there anything about Rosalind Russell, crisp and sophisticated, particularly suited for that role? Where was Virginia Bruce?" Concerning "Camille," she has this suggestion: "Robert Taylor shouldn't play the role of Armand. With all his charm and looks, why cast him in a role that is altogether continental opposite an actress, Garbo, who is continental? There is an actor in Hollywood who should play Armand, and he is Charles Boyer." Jerry Wald would retitle "Poor Little Rich Girl" to "Poor Little Rich Boy," and put Freddie Bartholomew in the Shirley Temple role. He believes it would be a novelty to see Bartholomew flip, and doing a song and dance.

VIRGINIA BRUCE.

Many fans have written in suggesting that the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers team be split; that if they were to make only one picture a year together, it would be an awaited novelty. Many suggest Jessie Matthews as a partner for Astaire.

Tom Jenk would re-cast "Wife vs. Secretary," and instead of Jean Harlow, Clark Gable and Myrna Loy he would have Gracie Allen, George Burns and Mary Boland in the flicker. George Burns would be the boss, Mary Boland the wife, and Gracie Allen the secretary. Burns would run away from Boland only to be confronted in the office by Gracie, and he would be glad to go home nites to his wife.

Edgar Selwyn took Patricia Wilder to a preview, then to the Brown Derby, and then home to the apartment house where she resides: "I'll wait until you open the door," said Selwyn.

"It's all right," answered Pat. "I never carry a key. My younger sister, Laura, is staying with me and she always sits up and waits." Pat rang the bell and there was no answer. She kept ringing, still no answer. It was about 1:30 in the morning. "That's funny," said Pat. "Laura always waits up for me. Maybe she fell asleep and doesn't hear the bell." Selwyn and Miss Wilder had to arouse the manager of the apartment house, at that hour, to open her door.

When inside, Pat discovered that little sister, Laura, wasn't home. Selwyn sat with Pat until Laura came in, about 4:30. And Laura came in with Edgar Selwyn's 16-year-old stepson, Rusty.

When Chandler Sprague, now assistant to William LeBarron at Paramount, was a director at Fox, he was making a flicker in which he wanted a modernistic drawing room.

The producer of the flicker refused, claiming the furniture would be too expensive for the Class B picture, whereupon Director Sprague ordered a moving van, had it go to his Beverly Hills house, and carted his own furniture to the studio and placed it on the set.

These days the procedure is the reverse. Directors and stars generally buy a piece of furniture used on the set for their homes.

Sheridan Road

By Helen Topping Miller

SYNOPSIS.

Eden Faraday, young secretary, opens the door of a taxi early in the morning and finds a man murdered. She and the driver are taken to the police station where Eden is allowed to call her grandmother. Eden's mother sells gowns. Eden and her young sister Robin, and Coburn, her brother, depend on their peppery Gran. Owen Field of the district attorney's office arranges Eden's release.

Chapter Two.

"I wish Bridget would let me go to work," Robin mourned.

"Even if she would, Robin, I wouldn't agree. We need one lady in the family."

"Coburn can be elegant enough for all of us—the big loafer!" Robin was acid. "Why don't you make him go to work, Edie, before Gran ruins him?"

Robin Is Discontented.

"I want him to graduate. So much has been spent on him already it would be a crime for him not to finish."

"Darling, you are naive! How much time do you suppose our precious brother spends in that law school? Darned little, you'll learn. Why—on Tuesday when they were having exams I saw him having lunch at the Poinsettia with a dizzy redhead ten years older than he."

"And what were you doing at the Poinsettia at lunch time?"

Robin was briefly disconcerted. But her hard casualness returned and she reached for a mirror, examined an eyebrow minutely. "I didn't learn the catechism today. If you must know, Miss Legree, I was having lunch."

"I think you're very selfish, Robin, when you deliberately throw away what we are trying to do for you. It isn't easy. Mother can't help a lot. She has to put such a lot of money back into her business."

"And such a lot into chinchilla and hair tinted by Maris." Robin was pert. "Why don't you ditch us all and marry old McLachlan, Edie? You could have him in a minute."

"I won't cheat." Eden said, "and that would be cheating—to marry a man I didn't love—to take all and give nothing, especially a man as kind and generous as Mr. McLachlan."

"From the way he looks at you," Robin twisted her skirt down over her small rounded body, "he'd be satisfied. I'm like this, Eden. I want a big place out Sheridan road or the North Shore. I want a car and a black chow and gold-topped bottles on my dressing table. I want an ermine wrap in storage and rows of shoes on trees and I don't care specially who sits at the other side of the breakfast table!"

"Robin, if I thought you meant anything so disgusting I'd be ill."

"O, but I do mean it! Wait and see whether I mean it." Moving with a lithe, fleshless ease, Robin opened the door and turned back, eyelids narrowed impishly. "I'll show you that I mean it."

Pomona, the mulatto maid, was setting the table when Eden went out into the living room.

The small gas log had been lighted, the red curtains drawn and lamps were softly glowing. The room looked restful, far removed from the roar of the street below and the drama of fear, greed, and violence that was continually acting itself out under the glare of street lamps. In it one felt safe, precious, tended. The iron terror of the night before receded into a vague dream. In a deep armchair her brother, Coburn, was sprawled, his legs cocked, his evening paper spread out before him.

"Hello," he greeted his sister. "You're quite famous, 'Society Girl Discovers Gang Murder.' That must have been quite a movie stunt last night."

"Coburn—is that in the headlines? O, horrors." She snatched the paper, ran her eye over it. "No pictures, thank goodness. I don't think I could have borne that."

"You were in luck. The photographers aren't around at 4 a. m. usually."

"O, but there was one there—a nice boy from the Tribune. He brought coffee for me while they were holding me at the station. His name was Jack Garnett."

Slightly Spoiled.

"Sorry for your Mr. Garnett then," said Coburn. "By this time he is probably out of a job. Any photographer who would miss a fat beat like that would be fired without any music."

"I'm no society girl," Eden complained. "I'm merely a hard-working wage earner trying to get along."

"Working women don't interest the mob who read this sheet. They want their women trailing satin and sinning in pink boudoirs. Bridget's not coming to dinner—she telephoned. Where's Bob?"

"Dressing for a dance—in my clothes."

"You spoil the brat."

Eden regarded him. Handsome—he looked like their mother—and lazy. Coburn had never had a thought or impulse that did not concern himself.

"You're slightly spoiled yourself—I must remind you. Your grades were dreadful last term—that isn't fair to mother and me. We're giving up a lot to keep you in that school."

Coburn narrowed his handsome eyes. "You may give up something, Edie, but you know Bridget isn't cramping herself. She gets what she wants."

"That isn't a nice way to talk about your mother, Coburn."

"At the Poinsettia?"

"So the little devil blabbed, did she? All right, I'll just publish a few hot items about her, the sneaky——"

Eden did not wait for the rest. She went out to the kitchen where Gran was splitting hot baked potatoes and putting butter and paprika in their steamy hearts. Gran was always brisk and bustling, but there was a competent atmosphere of peace surrounding her. Eden felt young and safe when she was near Gran, troubles lost their bristling imminence. The menace of dead Grappi, the disquieting individualism of Coburn and Robin, her mother's remoteness, all shrank into vagueness in the pleasant atmosphere of broiling steak and the aroma of Gran's perfect coffee.

"Mother's not coming, Coburn says."

Gran's lips tightened a little. "It's that Creighton, I suppose?"

"You don't like Sidney Creighton, do you, Gran?"

"He's younger than Bridget. And he worships his god every time he goes past a mirror. Understand, Edie, I'm not finding fault with your mother. Bridget's had a tough row to hoe—she's fought for you all and made a place for her—science troubling her, argued with Gran.

"I should go, really, Gran. Those Elys depended on me—and it's a big order. Mr. McLachlan ought not to lose it."

"Call up," Gran's chin was stubborn. "They know by this time what happened to you. They won't expect you."

"Coburn could go with me."

"Coburn could not!" he drawled. "Not till after this decision anyway. Telephone—tell the customers to dash out and buy themselves some chop suey."

Gran did one of her swift reversals, her black eyes flashing. "You could at least go with your sister, when she's trying to help us all."

"O, skip it, Gran—I'm listening to this. This Field fellow told her not to go out, didn't he? Well?"

It was then that Bridget came in with Sidney Creighton. Eden felt her heart close with the little hurting click that tortured her whenever she saw her lovely mother with Sidney Creighton.

Culbertson on Bridge

Opportunities for "trap plays" do not occur very often, and the average player is not familiar with them. Perhaps even the meaning of the expression is not clear to all my readers, so I shall define it briefly.

A trap play is one through which an opponent is misled into a losing maneuver, in short, a hoax. It may be a play that purports to show a suit-stopper where none actually exists; it may be a play to induce the wrong finesse, as in today's hand. But in all cases, its inspiration and execution can spring only from a shrewd diagnosis of the opponents' problem.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 spade	1 no trp.	Pass
2 no trp.	Pass	3 no trp.	[fnl bid]

East's psyhic spade bid was an effort, a dangerous one, to keep the vulnerable opponents out of what appeared to be, from East's viewpoint, their best game going contract. West smelled a rat when South overcalled the spade with a no trump, and North raised the no trump without casting about for a suit contract. [Probably, his sense of smell was sharpened by the knowledge that his partner was given to psyhic bidding.] At any rate, instead of leading his partner's bid suit, West opened the eight of hearts. East won with the king, and returned the ten of diamonds, declarer covered with the jack, and West won and returned the four of diamonds. Declarer held up his ace until the third round, after which he ran off five club tricks. On the third round of clubs, West (who was sure about the psychic spade bid as soon as he saw dummy's holding in spades, since declarer was marked with the king) proceeded to lay his trap. He realized that the only chance of winning the spade queen depended on making it possible for the declarer to finesse through East, which could not be done if the ten and nine were outstanding, to back up the queen. West, therefore, discarded the nine of spades, and on the fourth club he let go the ten!

The declarer looked with some suspicion on these provocative discards, but after all, he was not second sighted, and the spade bid could have been honest. After cashing the club suit he needed three tricks for his contract, and dared not try to establish a heart since to do so would incur further loss of diamond tricks. So he laid down the spade ace, preparatory to finessing the queen, and after that, had no play for his contract. To his credit, it must be said that when he saw West play a third spade on the ace, he realized he had been "fixed" and disdained the finesse he was now sure would not succeed, thus saving a trick and going down only one on his contract.

Woman Is Rescued From Gas Fumes

Bleeding profusely from a slashed arm and unconscious from gas, Mrs. Estelle Nichols, 32, a nurse, was found early last night in the kitchen of her apartment, 1206 Tenth street northwest. She was rushed to Gallinger Hospital.

Police said the nurse also took poison. They added they believed the cut on her arm was self-inflicted. All jets on the kitchen stove were open and she was found by her husband, G. W. Nichols.

At Gallinger, attaches said the woman probably would live despite it all—gas, cuts and poison.

Pollio Awarded Medal Of Merit by Ecuador

For the time being, Pollio is wearing a duplicate which Senor El Capitan Colon Eloy Alfara, Minister of Ecuador, took from his chest at the ceremony of presentation last Thursday at the Mayflower. A medal for his own use is on its way to Pollio from Ecuador.

Pollio has been awarded the Order of the Crown of Italy and made a Kentucky Colonel. He has never been in Ecuador, but has assisted its nationals in this country.

Chain Bridge Parley Ends In 'Love Feast'

Traffic Problems Fully Discussed; Roadway to Be 29 Feet.

D. C. Heads Pledge Best Structure Possible for $350,000.

A conference called for nearby Virginians to protest plans for a new Chain Bridge yesterday turned into a near "love feast" when District officials explained they were going to build the best bridge possible with a $350,000 authorization.

Because he had received several caustic letters from Virginians regarding reports that traffic probably will be limited to two lanes on the new span, Lieut. Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, called the parley for a mutual discussion and to hear protests.

After listening to the explanation of Col. Sultan and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, the delegation agreed that the Commissioners were doing the best they could under a limited appropriation and in accordance with a general agreement reached more than a year ago.

The question of whether the bridge shall have two or three lanes of traffic was not discussed at length or answered by District engineer officials, but Capt. Whitehurst pointed out that the District is committed to building a bridge with a roadway of about 29 feet, the maximum possible on the present stone piers.

Can Decide Lanes Later.

The problem of whether this should be divided into two adequate or three inadequate traffic lanes, he said, can be decided even after the bridge is constructed and by experiments.

Construction of a bridge with four lanes of traffic, Col. Sultan said, is impossible with $350,000, upon the present piers.

Capt. Whitehurst cited traffic counts to show that two traffic lanes will accommodate present traffic, even during peak rush hour periods. The maximum number of vehicles going one way during the peak rush hour, counted in July, was about 900, he said, whereas in the District traffic lanes are expected to carry about 800 vehicles per hour.

Frank Lyon, nearby Virginia lawyer, appealed for fewer curbs on speed after the new bridge is built.

"The 15-mile-an-hour speed limit on the present bridge is ridiculous," he said.

Representative Howard Smith (Democrat), of Alexandria, started the conference off to an amicable beginning by pointing out that the Commissioners had complied in all respects with an agreement reached with the Virginia delegation a year ago.

Wants Bridge at Once.

"I would like to see a monument bridge there as much as anyone," he said, "but I am more interested in seeing a new bridge built within our generation. We decided that a practical, inexpensive bridge could be obtained at once, whereas a fine, big bridge like Key, might be held up for years because of the lack of money."

In response to questions from Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, of the Washington Board of Trade, Col. Sultan said construction of the bridge will require about six months.

So that there may be no danger of undue delay, the Commissioners do not plan to start the bridge before next spring, as Congress must vote another $100,000 in the 1938 District supply bill to supplement the $250,000 appropriated at the last session.

Capt. Whitehurst explained that the District approach broadening will entail the widening of Canal road as far back as Weaver place.

University Holds Annual Lawn Fete

George Washington University's annual summer lawn festival was held last night on the campus and was attended by more than 300 students and faculty members, who danced, listened to semi-classical music and ate ice cream.

The campus, spotted with colored lights, was especially decorated for the occasion. One orchestra played on the lawn and another played in a hall in the Law Building. The orchestra which serenaded on the campus played purely semi-classical pieces, while the other one played dance tunes.

Luck?

Officer Places Marked Bet, Wins—Can't Collect.

The way of the transgressor is hard. It is even tougher on those who make it hard for the transgressors, at least Robert F. Egan, Fifth Precinct plain-clothes man, thinks so.

Egan testified in Police Court yesterday that he had made a numbers play with James Kane, 47, of the 900 block of New York avenue northwest. He said he paid for it with a half dollar and received number "528" and 25 cents change.

The policeman's smile of contentment at making a good arrest vanished a few hours later when his number "hit" paying 600-1 odds minus $15 for the runner. But he can't collect the money—$135.

Egan is assigned to the Fifth Precinct as a plain-clothes man to watch vice—so playing the numbers and race horses is just good clean fun for him. He arrested Kane after making the play. The half dollar, he said, was marked.

Judge Edward M. Curran ordered Kane held for action of the grand jury on charges of operating a lottery. Bond was set at $1,000.

Murals Near Cummings' Office Depict Investigation, Kidnaping

By Virginia Lee Warren.

Everytime the Attorney General of the United States opens the outer door of his suite in the new Department of Justice Building he will have to look directly at a scene depicting a kidnaping and another showing the laboratory of the Bureau of Investigation in one of its most investigating moments.

The only way he can avoid gazing at them whenever he comes out of his office is to walk backward. Both scenes are part of the murals Artist Henry Varnum Poor and his 18-year-old daughter, Anne, are spreading on the walls at the entrance of the Attorney General's quarters.

The incumbent certainly will do no walking in reverse when he sees the picture of two figures fleeing into the night with their little victim. Attorney General Homer Cummings helped the artists decide upon the subjects for their murals.

"He particularly wanted us to show the gold clause being argued before the Supreme Court and to depict a TVA scene," said Poor.

And so on a long panel alongside Cummings' door is a courtroom scene while the companion panel shows a Southern farmer returning after the day's work to his wife and children in their brilliantly lighted cottage.

The Bureau of Investigation laboratory panel is across the hall facing the Attorney General's door. Its companion mural is the one that causes the most comment, the painter and his daughter admitted. In the foreground is a poultry dealer preparing to open a crate of ducks for a woman customer and her little girl.

"The Schechter case," exclaims everybody who sees it.

City Rescinds Ruling by ABC On Beer Permit

Commissioners to Allow Flynn to Sell Beverage Again Next Year.

The District Commissioners yesterday modified a punishment meted out by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board on Charles Loyd Flynn, of 508 H street northwest, for allegedly permitting the operation of a numbers game in his lunch room.

The A. B. C. board had ordered Flynn's license to sell beer revoked on July 21 on the ground that he had permitted his premises to be used for unlawful purposes.

After reviewing the case the Commissioners substituted for revocation a suspension of the license from August 5 until December 31, 1936.

Flynn was indicted on the charge of permitting the operation of a lottery but the charge later was nolle prossed.

McMahon Decides U. S. Holds Title In 'No Man's Land'

Another decision on the disputed "no man's land" just over the Highway Bridge in Virginia, was rendered yesterday when Police Court Judge John P. McMahon ruled that the road from the bridge to the Southern Oxygen Plant is on United States property.

But Judge McMahon reserved decision on a principal point in the controversy which grew out of the arrest of Clarence Brown, of 314 Seventeenth strete northeast, for driving too fast on the road. This point is whether or not Brown should appear in the District Police Court or before the United States Commissioner at Alexandria.

Brown was arrested by Park Policeman Emmett Mast. Capt. P. J. Carroll, of the Park Police, told the court that signs setting a speed limit of 22 miles an hour had been placed on the road at his orders because Virginia authorities did not adequately police the territory.

Ex-Rep. Lindsay Loses Tax Appeal

A member of Congress maintains his home and his place of business in Washington, and therefore cannot deduct from his income-tax return expenses for "travel" to and from his own district, nor his living expenses in the Capital.

The U. S. Board of Tax Appeals yesterday laid down this ruling in the case of George W. Lindsay, former Democratic House member from Brooklyn. Under the decision he must make up an income-tax deficiency of $130.35 for 1932.

The board held Lindsay might not deduct his living expenses in Washington and his railroad fare to and from Brooklyn, even if he thought it "mandatory" to keep in touch with his constituents.

Implied purpose of trips to and from his district, the board held, was that of "making sure of re-election." The board held this was a "personal" matter.

Mounted Policemen May Ride Streets of Washington Again

Mounted policemen, now only a symbol of what perhaps was a more romantic era in history, once more will ride the streets of Washington on official duty, if Maj. Ernest W. Brown has his way about it.

Brown announced yesterday he would ask for $1,500 in the 1937 budget for the purchase of from six to ten steeds for his department.

Officers astride them will be detailed especially to handle large crowds and parades in the downtown and congested shopping areas.

Last mounted policemen were officially unsaddled in 1930 and their horses sent to green pasture lands to share veterans' rewards with the fire horses of yesteryear.

But Brown has wanted at least a squad of mounted men ever since he has headed the force, the principal objection being lack of provision in the budget.

In the old days mounted policemen were allowed $450 a year to buy feed and stable their charges. This was unsatisfactory, as the men spent much time looking for green pastures to save the price of oats and hay.

Several former cavalrymen on the force would be put in the mounted service. The only mounted policeman now is with the Park Police, and his duty is to patrol the bridle paths.

Police Officer Of City Hurt In Car Crash

Coroner's Jury Orders CCC Truck Driver Held for Court.

During the day, a coroner's jury ordered Gerald Browning, 22, driver of an overturned CCC truck in which Roy C. Catoe, 22, a fellow CCC member, was killed, held for action by the Police Court under the negligent homicide act.

The car driven by Lieut. Cullinane, police said, swerved from the road and struck a barn adjoining Jimmy Fontaine's "restaurant" just over the District Line on Bladensburg road.

Both the police officer and his brother, Rodger, 64, of 908 Twelfth street northeast, were taken to Casualty Hospital in a police radio car. At the hospital it was said Lieut. Cullinane may have sustained brain concussion and a broken leg. His brother was not seriously injured.

Lieut. Cullinane lives at 908 Eleventh street northeast. The men were returning from Baltimore at the time of the accident.

Overturned on Bridge.

Cator, the CCC boy, whose home is in Camden, S. C., died in Fort Myer Hospital of internal injuries after the truck driven by Browning and occupied by 18 other youths overturned Tuesday afternoon on the Mount Vernon Memorial Bridge.

Browning testified at the inquest yesterday that the boys shifted to one side of the vehicle just as he rounded a sharp curve at the approach to the bridge. This statement was partially corroborated by other witnesses. His speed was estimated at between 10 and 15 miles an hour.

Browning lives at Tazewell, Va. He said the truck was returning from Bunker Hill, Va., where the boys had been working, to the CCC camp across the bridge.

Three persons were seriously injured when a car collided yesterday morning with a Salvation Army truck at the corner of Canal and D streets southwest.

Driver Injured.

The driver of the truck, Thomas F. Ward, 29, who lives at the Salvation Army, First and F streets northwest, as do the other occupants of the truck, was taken to Casualty Hospital suffering from a broken collar bone and severe cuts.

Vernon Crawford, 20, a passenger in the truck, was taken to the same hospital in a serious condition suffering from concussion of the brain. The second passenger, Paul McCafferty, 32, suffered cuts.

Noble B. Embrey, jr., of Glen Echo Heights, Md., suffered a possible skull fracture yesterday when his car overturned on River road, near the Congressional Country Club.

He was taken by the Bethesda rescue squad to Emergency Hospital, where he was also treated for severe cuts on his scalp. He was later transferred to Georgetown Hospital, where his condition last night was said to be serious.

G. U. Student in Spain Returning to America

James T. Lowe, jr., of Georgetown University, who was in Minorca, off the east coast of Spain when the island was taken over by rebels, has reached London, his father, J. T. Lowe, of 1309 Floral avenue, said last night. He is returning immediately to this country, expecting to arrive in New York Thursday on the Manhattan.

Lowe is secretary to Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., regent of the School of Foreign Service. He left here for Europe last spring on a Carnegie Foundation scholarship.

Flying High!

Following this philosophy, they are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary by a trip from Monte Vallo, Ala., to Niagara Falls. This is the same journey taken by Harvey's mother on her wedding trip 83 years ago—except for the mode of travel.

Their reactions, as they told them last night on arriving at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Leslie Whitley, 3521 Patterson street, Chevy Chase, Md., would please the testimonial writer of any air transport company. They say they will never travel by rail again.

"My daughter wants me to spend every dime I have before I die," Harvey explained. "I don't know whether we'll go to that extreme, but we're determined to see a little life by the time we're through."

Kidnap Solved; Girl, 10, Taken By S. C. Father

'Mystery' Exploded When Police Find Kin of Capital Child.

The kidnaping mystery of northeast Washington exploded last night when police investigation disclosed that the "abductor" of 10-year-old Helen Hill was her father, Shelton Hill, of Easly, S. C.

Police were called to Helen's home at 1607 Rosedale street northeast yesterday afternoon. There they were told by the girl's mother, Mrs. Olga Hill, that playmates had seen her taken to an auto by a strange man.

The man, it now appears, was Hill, who has been separated from his wife, police say. Hill, arriving in Washington yesterday, went to see a cousin, Roland Jones, 19, of the 1800 block of A street southeast.

According to the way Detectives H. G. Fletcher and L. M. Wilson reconstructed the "crime," the two men drove to Rosedale street, where Helen was playing. Hill called to the girl, she got into the car and they drove off.

Jones said that he took Hill and his daughter to Union Station, where they boarded a train for South Carolina. Police here telegraphed the sheriff's office at Easly for confirmation of the story.

Jailed for Missing Alimony, He Finds It's Not Required

Discovery that a divorce decree obtained by his wife in 1932 did not contain a provision directing him to make alimony payments yesterday saved Charles Baggett, 4500 Canal road northwest, from paying supposed arrearage of $552.50, but aided his feelings little when he recalled he had been sentenced to jail for contempt of court in 1932 for not paying alimony under the same decree.

Mrs. Nettie Baggett obtained the divorce in August, 1931. The final decree was signed four months later. Provision for custody of a small child, together with alimony payments, were omitted. The next June, however, Baggett was called upon to face a charge of contempt of court for his failure to meet supposed monthly payments and committed to jail.

When he was recently served with notice for another commitment he discovered there was no provision for payments in the final decree. On the strength of that finding Justice Oscar R. Luhring ordered Baggett freed.

Prowler Beats Woman Ignoring Threat to Kill

Mrs. Mattie Hyatt, 37, of 1205 K street northwest, awakened early yesterday in time to hear a man sitting on the side o her bed say "if you make a move I'll kill you."

Instead of complying with the order she leaped out of bed and screamed. The man struck her several times, then fled. Mrs. Hyatt called police, who took her to Emergency Hospital to be treated for shock and bruises. Police said she was unable to account for the attack.

Too Many Cats Stump Judges, So Canary Gets Pet Show Prize

Children Jam Jefferson Playground 'Exposition' With Feline Pals, but Dog Also Comes Through for Blue Ribbon Honors.

Judges at the pet show yesterday on the Jefferson playground, Sixth and D streets southwest, had a difficult time. In the first place at least two-thirds of the children brought cats.

"And since this isn't a cat show, that complicates matters," explained Hugh S. Smith, principal of Jefferson School, as he held a bunch of ribbons in one hand and a stack of prizes in the other, all to be awarded to different types of pets. Judging with Smith was his secretary, Miss Catherine Crawley.

Finally, to get rid of all the blue, red and white ribbons, they decided to pick the best cats, the most unusual pets, the smallest pets, and the best dogs.

The judges decided the canary of Elmer Smith, of 616 D street southwest, was the smallest pet. Runner-up for this honor was Felix, the white rat of William Fowler, 475 E street southwest. Felix was comforted with a blue ribbon for being unusual also.

By dressing her docile fox terrier in a frilled cap, baby's jacket and pink blanket, Margaret Skidmore, sister of the turtle owner, captured the blue ribbon for dogs.

If persistence had counted for anything, Theresa Mahoney and her big tiger cat, Mickey, would have won two prizes and a half-dozen ribbons. By actual count Mickey ran away from the show five times. And five times Theresa, with several excited companions, dashed after him.

Rush to Obtain Dog Tags, File Tax Lists Ends

Hundreds of Washingtonians yesterday stood in line at two offices of the District Building to get under the deadline on buying dog tags and filing personal property tax returns.

Charles A. Russell, deputy assessor, estimated the rush of the last two days had brought in most of the personal property returns. Only three days ago he stated that some 20,000 were unfiled.

It will be several days before the exact count is known, as taxpayers had until midnight, July 31, to place their reports in the mail. Last year 42,000 persons reported on their holdings of tangible and intangible property.

After the tabulation is made the tax assessor's office will proceed against delinquents, who are subject to a penalty of 20 per cent and an interest charge of 1 per cent a month.

Tax Collector Chatham M. Towers estimated last night that about 15,000 dog licenses had been bought by Washingtonians during July.

This leaves some 10,000 dogs still unlicensed. Last year approximately 24,000 dog tags were sold.

$21,260 Cost Of D. C. Social Security Office

Issuance of a U. S. Treasury check for $21,260.03 to cover cost of administering the unemployment compensation law of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending September 30, was announced yesterday by the Social Security Board.

The board estimated that 75,000 workers employed by 15,000 firms are covered by the law in the District.

Federal grants are made to cover all cost of administration of the law, provided the State sets up machinery designed to give workers their full rights under the law.

In the District of Columbia, benefits to the unemployed will begin on January 2, 1938. Qualified unemployed workers will receive from 40 to 65 per cent of the full-time weekly wage—the percentage depending on the extent of a worker's legal responsibility for care of dependents. Fifteen dollars a week will be the maximum benefit, and benefits may continue for a period of 16 weeks in the year.

Sculptor Protests 2d Eviction, But Doesn't Smash Statues

Ernest Durig, prominent sculptor, was evicted for non-payment of rent again yesterday.

The Swiss artist, who has made news by a disappearance and a previous eviction as well as by his talent, was put out of 4828 Sixteenth street by United States deputy marshals and policemen.

Durig didn't yield without a struggle. He argued that he had sent his attorney $200 to pay the rent and waved a registered mail receipts to prove it.

But the lawyer was out of town and the eviction proceeded.

They said he strode forward to a bust of Huey Long, took it in his arms and said:

"Huey Long ought to be here."

Durig's landlady was Margaret V. Bliss, who six months ago started eviction proceedings against the sculptor only to drop them when he paid rent said to be in arrears.

Yesterday Durig did not destroy any of his work, as he did on June 30, when marshals came to his Connecticut avenue apartment to evict him.

On that occasion he smashed busts and figures.

Among the famous personages whose features have been preserved in his work are President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Herbert Hoover and Cardinal Fumasoni-Biondi.

D. C. Orders Study of Milk Regulations

Commissioners Seek to Find if They Should Be Liberalized.

Inquiry May Delay Any Threatened Rise in Dairy Prices.

Moving to offset threats of an increase in retail milk prices, the District Commissioners yesterday instructed Health Officer George C. Ruhland to review present regulations governing dairies to determine if they should be liberalized.

Coming as an outgrowth of hearings by the Department of Agriculture on a proposed milk marketing agreement, the District inquiry, it is believed, may delay any threatened rise in milk prices.

Liberalization of local regulations might lower production costs or permit importation of milk from other areas.

Commissioner George E. Allen, who offered the resolution, said no attempt will be made to lower the standard for milk to any substantial degree. He pointed out, however, that some of the rigid requirements might not be necessary for the protection of public health.

Mrs. John Boyle, jr., consumers' counsel, has proposed that the way be opened for importation of milk from other sheds if the threatened price increase is ordered.

The resolution adopted by the Commissioners said in part:

"Whereas, on November 16, 1925, the commissioners approved certain regulations for the government of dairies, dairy farms, and for the manufacture, handling, and storing of ice cream, which said regulations were designed with a view of protecting the public health of this community, and

"Whereas, it has been said from time to time that some of the regulations so approved are drastic, unreasonable, and capricious, and as a result thereof are largely responsible for the high cost of milk in this milk shed without tending in any way to protect the public health and

Tigers Pound Newsom to Win, 8-2

Nats Drop 6th in Row as Bridges Yields Only Eight Hits.

Kuhel's Home Run and Lewis' Two Doubles Futile in Rout.

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

Detroit, July 31.—The Nats continued the evil tenor of their ways this afternoon and their losing streak continued to thrive out here in the West. It reached the robust proportions of six straight games by today's very convincing score of 8 to 2 in favor of the Tigers.

Buck Newsom threw the game to the Tigers with some 13-hit pitching that put the Detroit club ahead, 3-0, at the end of the second inning and 5-1 at the end of the fifth. It was Newsom's first meeting with the Tigers since he held 'em to one hit on July 10, but today that particular feat of Newsom's appeared incredible.

Tommy Bridges wasn't annoyed much by the Nats, who were held to eight hits. He dealt 'em out one hit per inning for the first five innings, but surrendered only one run during that stretch. The Nats picked up their second and last run in the sixth, when Joe Kuhel slammed his twelfth homer of the season into the upper deck of the rightfield pavilion.

Newsom's performance, which netted him his fourth straight defeat, was no shining effort, but it was not as woeful as the final score pictures it. With the Washington outfielders booting the ball away and throwing it away for a total of three errors, three of the runs scored by the Tigers were not chargeable to Newsom.

The top of the Washington batting order vainly tried to carry the load against Bridges. The last four hitters in the Nats' lineup were hitless all afternoon until Walter Millies beat out a bunt in the ninth inning with the Nats trailing by six runs and two men out.

While the Nats were wasting Lewis double in the first inning and Travis' single in the second, the Tigers were collecting their 3—0 lead. Goslin's single drove home Gehringer, who had doubled in the first, and in the second Hayworth and Walker rapped out a pair of doubles after Rogell singled.

Lewis Doubles.

Lewis' second double of the game, in the third inning, presented the Nats with a run, occurring as it did after Chapman had walked, but the Tigers boosted their margin to 5-1 in the fifth on four hits and Stone's error. Walker doubled to left and scored when Stone's heave back to the infield eluded three Nats and bounded against the rightfield boxes. Then followed singles by Burns, Goslin and Owens.

Kuhel's home run blast reduced the figures to 5-2 in the sixth, but in the next inning the Tigers picked up three more runs after Burns walked. Goslin singled, Simmons forced Burns, and then three runs scored on a simple single by Owens which Chapman permitted to skid through his legs to the centerfield fence, Owens completing the circuit.

BUDDY MYER.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, Mich., July 31.—The name of Capt. Buddy Myer is not expected to appear in the Washington line-up again this season.

Manager Bucky Harris tonight virtually abandoned all hope of regaining Myer's services for the remainder of the 1936 campaign and Myer himself expressed doubt that he would be in action again until 1937.

Illness which has plagued the star second baseman of the Nats from the start of the season today again forced his retirement from the Washington line-up.

Not seriously ill, but still in a weakened condition, Myer said that he would confer with Owner Clark Griffith of the Nats, when the team returns to Washington, with a view toward leaving the club for a long rest.

Here yesterday, Myer attempted for the fourth time this season to return to the Washington line-up. He played throughout the game, but suffered a recurrence of the stomach disorder that has troubled him for months, and was untable to don a uniform today, resting in the team's hotel.

Played Few Games.

The man who won the batting championship of the American League last year has played only a few games for the Nats this season. Forced out of action in the first two weeks of play, he has been out of uniform for weeks at a time, but always hoped to regain his strength.

Whenever he deemed himself on the point of physical fitness, Myer asked Harris' permission to play, but never was he able to withstand the rigors of daily toil on the diamond for more than three days at a time. After each attempt, he was forced back to the bench to recuperate.

Apparently needing a long rest to recover from his latest setback, Myer doubts the wisdom of risking his health by rejoining the team at the fag end of the season, especially with the club hopelessly out of the pennant race.

Herb Miller Wins In Henley Regatta

Port Dalhousie, Ontario, July 31 (AP).—Herb Miller, of the Toronto Argonauts today won two events in the fifty-fourth Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, coming back to take association singles sculls title after winning the junior championship three hours earlier.

Rowing the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths in 8:13, Miller took the lead of a length half-way down the course and then increased it two lengths over his teammate, Jim Russell, at the finish.

Architect Is First American to Win In Olympic Games

Lay's plan for Marine Park, Brooklyn, N. Y., won the silver medal in the section for architectural designs and models of the Olympic art exhibition.

The Germans' however, swept most of the honors in the display, which opened today in the spacious exhibition hall near the Olympic stadium. They took five gold, five silver and two bronze medals.

Just as in the athletic events, an international jury determined the winners of three medals in each group of entries.

22,000 Watch Yanks Trim Tribe, 11-7

Cleveland Park Is Filled to Capacity; Crowds Turned Away.

Gehrig Hits 33d Homer; Trosky Gets 30th; Rolfe Belts One.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, July 31.—The New York Yankees "murderers' row" stopped the rush of the Indians in the opening of their "crucial" series today, firing a 16-hit barrage for an 11 to 7 victory to stretch their American League lead to 8½ games.

Pennant fever hit Cleveland along with the Yanks. A crowd of several thousands waited in line long before game-time, and the gates had to be closed an hour before the battle started, with the 22,000 capacity of League Park reached.

But the Yankees gave them little to cheer about, for Gehrig and company teed off against four Tribe pitchers, starting with Mel Harder, and were never headed after the second inning. Lou Gehrig poled his thirty-third homer of the season and Red Rolfe his seventh for the Yanks, while Hal Trosky, staging the Indians' last threat, clubbed his thirtieth out of the park with a mate on base in the last of the ninth.

Bump Hadley, the league's leading pitcher, chalked up his ninth victory against one setback for the season, but Johnny Murphy had to relieve him to stop the Indian uprising in the ninth. Harder was charged with the defeat, lasting but four innings before he was shelled off the mound in the fifth. Denny Galehouse, George Blaeholder and George Uhle divided the mound duties the rest of the way.

Dean Hero, Cards Down Dodgers, 8-6

Brooklyn, July 31 (AP).—Dizzy Dean won his own ball game today, singling in the winning runs in the tenth inning to give the Cardinals an 8 to 6 victory over the Dodgers and enable the Gas House gang to remain one game off the National League pace.

Although giving up 11 hits, Dean was tight in the pinches, striking out nine batters and walking but two, to score his seventeenth victory of the season against eight setbacks.

Seabright Net Play Won by McDiarmid

Texan Is First Unseeded Player Ever to Take Jersey Tourney.

By the Associated Press.

Seabright, N. J., July 31.—Scholarly John McDiarmid, of Fort Worth, Tex., trounced 17-year-old Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, 9—7, 6—2, 6—2, today to become the first unseeded player ever to win the historic Seabright invitation tennis tournament.

Ranked eighteenth nationally, McDiarmid had eliminated the two top-seeded stars—Sidney Wood, of New York, and Robert Riggs, of Los Angeles—on his way to the final of the forty-ninth annual Seabright event. His triumph today put him on a list of winners which included such famous stars as William T. Tilden 2d, William M. Johnston, Vincent Richards and Frank Shields.

Hunt, who yesterday reached tennis height in downing defending champion Gregory S. Mangin, never had a chance to get started against the crafty McDiarmid and threatened only in the first set, when he pulled up from 2—5 and 0—30 to deuce the set.

There was little spectacular tennis produced as McDiarmid continued to pepper the youngster's forehand and backhand court with deep slices and drives in seeking an opening to end the rally at the net.

Unlike Mangin, who rushed to the net on short shots, McDiarmid did not venture into the fore court until he had the opening.

Hunt stared with admiration several times when the young Princeton University instructor put away seemingly perfect passing shots with deft angled volleys. In despair the junior opened a lobbing attack which the tall McDiarmid spiked with overhead smashes.

McDiarmid's well placed shots to the back court ran Hunt from side to side and on several occasions, including match point, the tiring youngster fell flat on the court in a futile effort to reach the ball.

As Hunt explained later, his bespectacled opponent made him miss too many shots when he needed to produce winners. The youth was unable to dig McDiarmid's slice out of the turf and could score only at the net.

The serve which drew Mangin out of court and left him vulnerable for Hunt's spin drives was coming back at the youngster with stinging pace. Hunt's service was broken seven times in the 90-minute match.

McDiarmid also reached the final of the mixed doubles, paired with Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, Calif. They defeated Millicent Hirsh, New York, and Hal Surface, Waldo, Mo., 6—3, 5—7, 6—3. Their opponents tomorrow will be Mr. and Mrs. John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, who trounced Mme. Henrotin and Mangin, 6—4, 6—3.

Record Unit Approves Ten New World Marks

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, July 31.—Ten world record-breaking performances, including Jesse Owens' 26 feet 8¼ inches broad jump, and five record-equaling track and field performances were approved today by the International Amateur Athletic Federation record committee of which Avery Brundage, of Chicago, is chairman.

Owens' great leap, which put into discard the previous mark of 26 feet 2⅝ inches made by Japan's Chuhei Nambu in the 1932 Olympic games, was the only new American mark approved, although Ralph Metcalfe and Eulace Peacock's 10.3 for 100 meters and Al Moreau's 14.2 for 110-meters hurdles were endorsed as record-equaling performances.

Owens' 20.3 seconds for 220 yards and 200 meters sprints were not acted upon. However, they are slated for consideration and probable approval at the next records committee meeting August 5."

Peacock's 10.3 for 100 meters was made at Oslo two years ago. Metcalfe became a co-holder of the world record with Canada's Percy Williams and Eddie Tolan, of Detroit, three years ago at Budapest. Since then he equaled the mark twice, at Osaka, Japan, and Dairen, Manchukuo. A similar performance by Christian Berger, of Holland, also was approved.

Outstanding world records approved included the discus throw of 174 feet 1 5-8 inches by Willi Schroeder, of Germany, last year, and Matti Jarvinen's javelin throw of 251 feet 6 inches two years ago.

The previous discus record of 171 feet 11¾ inches was held by Harold Andersson, of Sweden. Jarvinen bettered his own former world mark by 22 inches. The Finnish star tossed the javelin 253 feet last month, but his application to have it approved as a record has not yet been acted upon.

Also Approved.

The committee also approved the 20 kilometers running in 1 hour 4 minutes 2 seconds by Argentina's Juan Carlos Zabala, Olympic marathon champion, at Munich last May, lowering Paavo Nurmi's record by more than 33 seconds.

The 30 seconds performance of Joseph Kovacs, of Hungary, for 300 yards in Budapest a year ago, six-tenths of a second faster than the previous mark held jointly by Bernie Wefers, of New York, and G. M. Butler, of Great Britain, also was approved.

Other records accepted: 25 miles, in 2 hours 26 minutes 10.8 seconds, by Michael Faneli, Italy, October 21, 1934; 34.435 meters, in 2 hours, by Jose Ribas, Argentina, September 14, 1935, at Buenos Aires, bettering by 782 meters the mark made three years ago by Ernest Harper, of Great Britain.

Fifteen thousand meters walk by Arthur Schwab, of Switzerland, in 1 hour 9 minutes 4.8 seconds, surpassing the old record of 1 hour 10 minutes 23 seconds by G. Rassmussen, of Denmark.

Hop, step and jump, covering 51 feet 9⅜ inches, by John Patrick Metcale, of Australia, at Sydney, December 1, 1935. Metcalfe's mark, however, is subject to possible supersedence by the 51 feet 10⅝ inches performance of Kenkichi Oshima, of Japan, two years ago.

Record feats made in America recently and not presented at today's meeting included Indiana Don Lash's 2-mile run in 8 minutes 58.3 seconds; Georgia Forrest (Spec) Towns' 14.1 seconds for 110-meter hurdles, and 7,800 points in the decathlon, set by Glenn Morris, of Fort Collins, Colo., in the American Olympic tryouts; George Varoff 14 feet 6 inches pole vault; and the high jumps of 6 feet 9¾ inches by Cornelius Johnson and Dave Albritton.

These records will not be referred to the I. A. A. F., for action because the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States has not yet acted on the marks made this year.

It will likely be two years before international recognition can be accorded these latest American records since the A. A. U. will not pass on them until its next annual meeting in December. The I. A. A. F. will adjourn until 1938 after its final meeting here.

Pirates Pound Chaplin Win Over Bees, 10-5

Boston, July 31 (AP).—Wally Berger's two home runs today did little to aid the cause of the Boston Bees, as the hard-clouting Pittsburgh Pirates blasted two Boston pitchers for 14 hits, to win, 10 to 5.

French Pitches Cubs to 3-1 Triumph

Giants Defeated as Loop Leaders Cling to Slim Margin.

By the Associated Press.

New York, July 31.—Larry French saved the Chicago Cubs' National League lead today by turning in a four-hit performance to stop the Giants, 3 to 1, for the first time in the three-game series.

Except for Hank Leiber's homer in the fourth, the No. 1 man of the Cub hurling forces had the Giants helpless. He pitched hitless ball from the fourth inning to the end.

Opposing him in the tight mound duel was Harry Gumbert, who held the Cubs to six hits, but he gave up two each in the fourth and fifth.

Heavyweight Title Bout Date Shifted

New York, July 31 (AP).—Madison Square Garden announced today it would ask the State Athletic Commission for permission to hold the Max Schmeling-Jimmy Braddock heavyweight championship bout on the night of September 24, instead of the afternoon of the 26th, as was previously planned.

Garden officials said they decided on the change because the afternoon date falls during the Hebrew Holy days.

Vote Decided By $485,000 Subsidy

Offer Is Made to Offset Cost of Traveling to Far East.

U. S. Group Turns Deaf Ear to Finns' Plea for Spartan Simplicity.

By Alan Gould,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Berlin, July 31.—Tokyo's victory over Helsingfors in an exciting contest for the award of the 1940 Olympics today climaxed a rapid flow of events prefacing the spectacularly-planned program opening the games of the eleventh Olympiad at the Reichsportsfield tomorrow.

While dress rehearsals paved the way for the world's biggest and most elaborately staged sports show, the frock-coated diplomats of the international Olympic committee decided the next games would go half way around the world four years hence, voting 36 to 27 in Japan's favor on a secret ballot.

The spirited two-day debate and electioneering, marked by a Finnish appeal to return the classic to "Spartan simplicity" ended in a much more decisive vote than had been expected.

Games "Out of Hand."

The United States delegates, William May Garland, of Los Angeles, and Avery Brundage, of Chicago, together with a virtually solid block of North and South American countries, plus British empire support, helped clinch the decision for the Japanese under extraordinary circumstances.

The sideshow aspects and the expressed fears of many athletic chieftains that the games were getting "out of hand" as well as top-heavy, divided nationalities into two distinct camps.

Thus Finland acquired support not only from sources disturbed by such ceremonial pomp as the Berlin games are witnessing, but also from Europeans motivated by political or economic reasons.

The glamor, as well as the practical terms of Japan's offer, however, outweighed other considerations.

Transportation Subsidy.

One of the decisive factors in support of the Japanese bid was an offer of a transportation subsidy of 1,500,000 yen (about $485,000) to offset costs of traveling in the Far East.

Award of the winter games was deferred because of a dispute between the international Olympic committee and the International Ski

50,000 to See 2 Stakes for $66,000 End Arlington Park Season

Futurity May Show 2-Year Champion

Mrs. Mars' Trio Favored; Discovery Will Not Run in Event.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 31.—The Arlington Park Jockey Club will give away $66,000 to winners of two stake races tomorrow, and then lock its gates, closing a most brilliant 30-day racing season.

The stakes will be the fifth renewal of the Arlington Futurity, which will have a gross value of $52,635, and which probably will bring to the front the 2-year-old champion of the year, and the Arlington Handicap, which will have a gross value of $12,050. Thirty-five thousand spectators are expected to witness the twin attractions.

Small Fields.

Small fields will go to the post in both races. Ten of the Nation's finest juveniles were listed for the Futurity, while the handicap attracted an overnight field of nine.

Stout pre-race favorites for the Futurity were the trio entered by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, of Oak Park, Ill., owner of the Milky Way Farm Stable. They were the phenomenal sprinter, Case Ace, Murph and Jawbreaker. The Futurity, one of the two richest 2-year-old fixtures in America, will be an international affair. Supply House represents California, but won his racing fame in two spectacular victories in New England. Kentucky has two powerful color-bearers in Apogee, the speedy filly which captured the Lassie Stakes, and Old Nassau. The Eastern standard-bearer will be Joseph E. Widener's Advocator, while Texas has a speedy filly in Jewell Dorsett.

Discovery Missing.

The 2-year-olds will travel six furlongs over a track dry and fast, according to forecasts tonight.

With Discovery missing from the Arlington Handicap, the race promises to be a wide open affair, with the honor of being favorite going to Corinto, owned by Mrs. Emil Denemark, of Chicago. Hollyrood, the entry of Hal Price Headley, of Kentucky, and Whereaway, owned by Anthony Pelleterie, of New Orleans, were held at about equal choices. There also was backing for Azucar, which won the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap a couple of seasons back. The California racer will be burdened with top weight of 117 pounds. Warren Wright, of Chicago, named a speedy trio in Count Morse, Calumet Dick and Sun Teddy. Mrs. John D. Hertz, of Chicago, nominated Count Arthur, one of the speediest sons of Reigh Count, to carry her colors.

The handicap will be over a mile and a quarter route. The running of the two valuable fixtures makes tomorrow the biggest racing day of the year in Illinois.

Breeders and owners are here from every part of the country to witness the renewal of the Futurity.

Mann Downs LePage.

New York, July 31 (U.P.).—Natey Mann, 182¼, of New Haven, Conn., won the unanimous decision over Lou Lepage, 189¾, of Paterson, N. J., in their six-round bout at Rockaway Beach tonight.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOOOD GRACIOUS, $8.80, $4.40, $3.40; DOLLY TOUR, $4.80, $3.20; BLIND TALK, $3.20.

GOOD GRACIOUS sprinted to the front at once, began to tire slowly in midstretch and just lasted. DOLLY TOUR, closest to the pace throughout, gained steadily when put to drive. BLIND TALK, shuffled back at the break, was taken to the inside for racing room entering the stretch, but hung in the last 50 yards. LOCH LONDON went into contention with a rush approaching the stretch while running on the outside, but faltered. FLYING CARPET was through early. TIMBER NET dropped out of it approaching the stretch.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:19½. Off at 3:24. Winner, A. C. Yzquierdo's ch. f. (4), by Bud Lerner—Decree. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:30 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LOVE LOST, $11.20, $6.20, $3.60; DRESSMAKER, $6.80, $4.20; MISS TIPTOE, $3.40.

LOVE LOST, steadied along behind the pace of DRESSMAKER to the backstretch, took command when called up and easily drew out through the stretch. DRESSMAKER, sent to the front at the break, continued gamely when displaced. MISS TIPTOE, slow to begin, moved up sharply along the backstretch and went evenly thereafter. PEGGY CAN could not reach contention. SAPPHIRE SKY had early speed.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $300; claiming. The Deep Run. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Mary Wales. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:33. Winner D. S. Jenkins' b. g. (8), by Cherokee—Martre. Trained by J. Snell. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:18 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RUNNING WATER, $4.40, $3.20, $3.00; GEE SHARP, $3.40, $2.80; FOREST FAUN, $6.20.

RUNNING WATER, under slight restraint while running with GEE SHARP, drew out when put to a drive in the early stretch. GEE SHARP pressed the pace under hustling tactics and came willingly at the end. FOREST FAUN came with a belated rush in the stretch and was going fastest at the finish. MAYETTA came gamely in the closing sixteenth. KING ROCK reached contention swimming for the stretch, but tired. TIGER MADE was through early.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $300; claiming. The Warrenton. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:26. Winner, Mrs. L. PUKKA HEAVEN	(Palumbo)	111	8	8	8	Pulled up			8.70

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEA FINN, $6.40, $3.20, $3.00; CANTERET, $2.80, $2.60; BY SURPRISE, $8.40.

SEA FINN, in the thick of contention from the start, was kept close to the pace of CANTERET and wore down the mare in the final drive. CANTERET shook off MINT BUD entering the backstretch, was hard ridden all the way, but could not resist the winner. BY SURPRISE tired after moving up menacingly entering the stretch. MINT BUD dropped out of it after three furlongs. PUKKA HEAVEN was pulled up when badly beaten.

FIFTH RACE—About four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:57½. Winner, J. S. Archer's ch. f. (4), by Light Brigade—Beauteous. Trained by R. B. Archer. Value to winner, $200; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:50 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TITIAN KIDDIE, $4.80, $2.80, $2.60; IMPROMPTU, $3.80, $3.60; FLOSILDA, $3.00.

TITIAN KIDDIE, quickest to begin, shook off early challenges of ADA WAN and held IMPROMPTU safe in the final drive. IMPROMPTU broke slowly, was rushed to the leaders on the inside, was pulled up when blocked at the far turn and tired in the last 50 yards. FLOSILDA had a rough trip and closed full of run. ADA WAN tired after pressing the early pace. SILVER ROI tired after being forwardly placed. The others were outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:27. Off at 5:29½. Winner, H. Brown's ch. g. (4), by General Lee—Outcast. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:50 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THUNDERLEE, $14.20, $6.00, $4.00; EBON ZE, $4.00, $3.00; THREE GRAND, $6.40.

THUNDERLEE, excellently handled, saved ground while within striking distance of the leaders, came through on the rail entering the stretch and disposed of EBON ZE. The latter, under restraint while closest to the pace for seven furlongs, went to the outside to take command entering the stretch, but could not resist the winner. THREE GRAND was rushed to the top at once, was hard ridden all the way and tired slightly in the final furlong. OPPOSITION went evenly. The others were never factors.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:59. Off at 6:01. Winner, S. G. Bailey's c. h. (5), by Donnacona—Blink. Trained by J. G. Davis. Value to winner, $220; second, $50; third, $20; fourth, $10. Time, 1:57.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HUPPY, $25.00, $10.80, $6.20; GOLDEN PLAY, $4.80, $3.60; MONT DAISY, $4.20.

HUPPY, under slight restraint while closest to the pace of MONT DAISY, took command entering the stretch and had to be kept to severe punishment to stave off closing rush of GOLDEN PLAY. The latter lacked early speed, was forced to go around horses to reach contention and closed with belated rush. MONT DAISY was sent into the lead at once, was hard ridden all the way and tired in the closing furlong. GOLD STREAK was a forward factor all the way. MONODEY saved ground throughout.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 31.

Dear Al: Racing Secretary Fred Burton has arranged a well balanced program for tomorrow. The card is topped by the Gobbler purse, a test of a mile and a sixteenth for 3-year-olds and upward. Ten horses, the best on the grounds, have been named for the test, and at the weights an interesting battle should result. Hot Cake, Dona Dulcin and Hard Chase are expected to draw the bulk of the play. Hot Cake will have Sammy Palumbo, the Charles Town saddle king, aboard. Eight races are scheduled at a variety of distances. The day's finale calls for a struggle at a mile and a quarter. This is the final program for Charles Town until the first two weeks of December. The Horse Show Association, which is conducting this meet, expects a crowd of 8,000 tomorrow. Of course, a few more would not make the officials frown. Washingtonians are offered two routes by auto. On the Virginia side of the Potomac, the route goes through Leesburg and Purcellville, while on the Maryland side the road goes through Frederick and Brunswick. The usual B. & O. special train leaves Union Station at 12:30 p. m.

BILL.

First race—Rocky Mount, winner of two of his last three starts, has the best time of anything in this field. Picks up no weight and I look for a winning effort. Miss Epe, a winner at Agawam, is dangerous. Worthful might be close if allowed to start. Drops 8 pounds for this effort. Justa Town

Late Entries Swell Field to 72 for Mid-Atlantic Singles Play

4 Teams Left In Doubles Tourney

By John R. Vosburgh.

Last-minute entries, including two out-of-town stars, Hunter Lott, of Philadelphia and Robert Madden, of Pittsburgh, swelled the number of entries to compete for The Washington Post Challenge Bowl in the Middle Atlantic singles tournament to 72 yesterday. Play will start today at the Edgemoor Club.

Lott, one of the ranking players of the Middle Atlantic Association, was immediately seeded No. 3 among the visiting players. Madden, No. 1 player at the University of Pittsburgh, was tentatively seeded No. 2 in the same list in the belief that Jack Talbot, of Staten Island, will possibly be unable to play.

The Middle Atlantic doubles in the meantime was narrowing itself down to four teams yesterday at the Army and Navy Country Club. One startling upset marked the day's play. The unseeded team of Joe Baker and Fred Doyle, completing a grind of 15 sets in three matches, eliminated the No. 4 seeded team of Price Colvin and Frank Roberts, of Baltimore, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4, 1—6, 8—6 after the visitors twice had fought off match point.

Baker and Doyle will face Ralph McElvenny and Gilbert Hunt, seeded No. 2, at 4 p. m. today in the semifinals. Dooley Mitchell and Tom Markey gained the round of four by defeating Charlie Channing and Davie Johnson, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2.

Seeded No. 1, Mitchell and Markey will play Hugh Lynch and Red Mather, No. 3 seeded team, at 2:30 p. m. in the other semifinal. Lynch and his lanky partner from Texas eliminated Herb Shankin and Ray Stocklinski, public parks champions, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3.

Baker and Attorney Doyle took the court after winning a five-set match, begun Thursday, from Bob Bradley and Harry Goldsmith, 4—6, 7—5, 4—6, 6—4, 6—1. Price and Roberts had just defeated Tom Bransford and Crawford Brookes, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3.

Baker, Colvin Score

Baker and Doyle continued where they left off in the fifth set of their previous match and took the opening set from the Baltimore team. The lead was short lived, however, and when Colvin and Price took the fourth set at 6—1, it looked dark indeed for the underdogs.

Doyle lost the first game on his service but by twice breaking Roberts' delivery the Washington team was able to go to a lead of 5—3. The Baltimoreans broke Doyle again, however, for 5—4 but the home team came back to go to match point on Colvin's service. It was advantage point but Colvin volleyed a net-corder which trickled over to save him. Shortly afterward he was down at match point again after a volley by Baker but Baker volleyed out for deuce and Colvin went on to win the game.

Baker dropped his service, but so did Roberts. The smashing overhead of the Washington team, a power all through the match, came to their aid at this juncture and Doyle held his delivery. They then broke Colvin for the second time during the five sets to win the match. Colvin was forced to carry his partner, for the most part, but was unable to meet the opposing assault single-handed.

Great Scotts! What a Contrast

But the difference in size between Cowboy Howard Scott and his big little brother, Buddy, is not as the camera angle would have us believe. Howard fights Frankie Klick at Griffith Stadium next Monday night while Buddy will make his Washington debut on the same card.

Klick to Arrive Today to Prep For Bout

Purportedly in fine fighting fettle for his ten-round bout with Howard Scott at Griffith Stadium next Monday night, Frankie Klick will arrive here today.

The third-ranking lightweight boxer will be accompanied by his manager, Ray Carlin, and a new stablemate, Ray Novia. Novia is regarded as one of the best heavyweight prospects to come from the West in many years. His contract recently was snapped up by Carlin after much spirited bidding for $5,000.

Klick will have everything to lose and practically nothing to gain when he risks his high rank against Scott. True enough, Scott will be ranked sixth among the lightweights in the forthcoming issue of the Ring Magazine, a semiofficial publication, but the District champion is not very well known outside of the Capital.

Whichever fighter emerges victorious here undoubtedly will receive due consideration for a title chance when—and if—Tony Canzoneri abdicates his throne to fight Barney Ross.

While the lightweight duel itself is good enough to attract national attention, excellent preliminary support has been arranged for the card.

Killer Jim Lamar, the Joe Louis, of Washington, will tangle with Jimmy Mathews, a fighter of no mean ability, in a thrill-producing six-rounder. Novia, the Carlin prospect, will draw a six-round assignment against Johnny Daniels and Buddy Scott, brother of Howard, himself will engage George Cox, a local light-heavyweight hope, in another six-rounder.

Moe Berg Stars As Bosox Beat Chisox, 7-3

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 31.—A barrage of safe line drives that included Jimmy Foxx's thirtieth homer with two on base cashed in on Lefty Grove's seven-hit pitching today to give the Boston Red Sox a 7 to 3 victory over the White Sox in the opener of their series. A ladies' day crowd of 20,000 saw the game.

Foxx added a triple and a double to his homer, while Moe Berg, understudying for the injured Rick Ferrell behind the bat, hit a triple, double and single as the Red Sox got 11 hits off Ted Lyons in seven innings and two more off Bill Shores, who made his White Sox debut in the last two frames. Roger Cramer also got three hits.

Elite Giants Meet Newark in Series

With Candy Jim Taylor, manager of the Washington Elite Giants, at the Denver tournament in charge of the all-star colored baseball team seeking a $10,000 award, Bizz Mackey will be in charge of the team which will engage the Newark Eagles at Griffith Stadium this afternoon, and in a double-header tomorrow.

Labor Natators Take Departmental Laurels

Winning two relay races and taking two other first places in the 14 events held, Labor Department won the annual interdepartmental swimming meet held last night in the Maryland Club Gardens Pool. The winners piled up 58 points.

Bureau of Investigation was second with 44, Patent Office third with 20, Treasury, fourth, with 14 points, and Federal Trade Commission, fifth with 13, and Federal Communications sixth with 10.

Ernie Boggs, of the Federal Trade Communications, was the individual star, winning the 200-yard free-style and the 60-yard backstroke for men. Johnnie Broaddus, retired champion of the District, won the men's high-board diving for Smithsonian Institution.

Rites to Open Olympics Today

at least 500,000, including the stadium customers, within the confines of the 325-acre Reichsportfield.

The only jarring note sounded amidst the high-powered official preprations was an announcement by the International Fair Play delegation of which William B. Chamberlain, of New York, is executive secretary. They are scrutinizing the games with a view to "preserving the Olympic ideal." A hand-out signed by Chamberlain and four others, representing France, England, Czechoslovakia and the United States, proclaimed a "friendly attitude toward the German people and toward the Olympic participants" but insisted upon representing the "millions of people who are in agreement with the position we hold, namely, fair-play advocacy, and who wish to be informed of our opinion about what is about to transpire."

Listed as signers were Francis A. Henson, American correspondent associated with the League of Nations high commission for refugees from Germany; Edmund Harding, track secretary of the London center; George Andre, four-time French Olympic foot-racer and now a sportswriter, and G. P. Roschitzki, Czech athlete.

From all except the women's section of the American camp came encouraging word that the athletes had rallied from the combined effects of their boatride and bad weather since their arrival.

Primed to look their nattiest in tomorrow's parade, upwards of 300 Americans will be led into the stadium by Alfred Jochim, Union City, N. J., gymnast, as standard-bearer, flanked by two other four-time Olympians, James W. O'Connor of Venice, Calif., and Fred Lauer of Chicago, both members of the water polo team, as color-guards.

July Business Closes at High Activity Rate

One of Most Spectacular Trade Months in Years, Survey Says.

New York, July 31.—This week brought down the curtain on one of industry's most spectacularly active summer months in recent years, contrary to the expectations of even the more optimistic, Business Week will say tomorrow. High operations were maintained while retail trade ushered out the month in a selling spree, characteristic of the rest of July. The steel rate, electric power output and freight carloadings were close to the peak for the year, automobile and textile activity was steady and trade is running about 10 per cent to 15 per cent ahead of last year.

June factory employment and pay rolls were the highest since October, 1930. Employment was 8 per cent greater than in June, 1935, and pay rolls gained 20 per cent. The best improvement was made by the durable goods industries—steel mills, electrical machinery, engines and tractors and machine tools. Of the non-manufacturing industries, public utilities and building construction reported the best gains, while coal mining declined.

Heavy Steel Production.

Steel operations at 71.5 per cent of capacity are well sustained by the huge orders from the machinery, construction, railroad equipment and farm equipment industries, as well as the automobile industry. Production in the first six months was 21,000,000 tons and in July it was probably at least as high as in June, when about 4,000,000 tons were produced. It looks as if 1936 production will be the best in seven years.

Greatly increased disbursements of dividends were particularly significant in the second-quarter earnings reports of corporations. Not only were there many dividend resumptions and increases, but new and extra dividends as well were paid out. Reports continue to show substantial improvement above a year ago, with the heavy industries making the greatest gains.

Cigarette production in June reached an all-time high. Over 14,000,000,000 rolled out of the machines. Consumers smoked 11 per cent more cigarettes during the first six months than in the same months last year, when they broke all records.

Phone Rates Cut For Long Distance

New York, July 31 (AP).—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced today that it had filed long-distance rate reductions with the Federal Communications Commission. The rate cut, which affects interstate long distance calls, is effective September 1, and is the seventh reduction in ten years.

The company's announcement said in addition that similar rate reductions are to be made by many of the associated companies of the Bell System which will bring the total savings to long distance callers to more than $7,350,000 a year. The new rates cut the cost of long distance calls for distances of more than 240 miles.

For example, the new schedule will reduce the station-to-station day rate for three minutes on a Washington-Cleveland call from $1.45 to $1.30 and the rate on a New York-San Francisco call from $9 to $7.50. These reductions affect the day, night (7 p. m. to 4:30 a. m.) and all Sunday rates for both station-to-station and person-to-person calls.

Stock Exchange Sales Increase in July

New York, July 31 (AP).—Total transfers of stocks on the New York Stock Exchange in July were 34,747,654 shares compared with 21,428,647 shares in June. In July, 1935, sales were 29,427,720 shares.

Bond sales this month were $281,059,000, par value, compared with $220,549,000 in June and $235,675,000 in July last year.

$13,635,000 Insurance Paid Here Last Year

Residents of Washington received cash life insurance payments in 1935 equivalent to $27.99 per capita, according to an estimate made by the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Total payments to policyholders and beneficiaries of Washington were $13,635,000, Arthur F. Hall, president of the Lincoln National Life, said.

Selling Wave Wipes Out New Highs for Grain

September Corn, However, Closes at $1.01¾ a Bushel.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, July 31.—Spectacular price advances followed by a sweeping late reaction made grain markets a pandemonium today. The outstanding new development was more than 5 cents a bushel fresh skyrocketing of wheat quotations at Liverpool, notwithstanding it was the fifth successive day of record-breaking upturns there.

Buying stampedes that ensued whirled all grains and provisions in Chicago to above peaks unreached before in some cases since 1929, wheat and corn each up virtually 4 cents a bushel overnight. Sudden setbacks from the day's top prices came almost unwarned as the day approached an end, with wheat in particular tumbling fast, overwhelmed by a tremendous rush of selling to realize profits. Nearly all of the day's advances in wheat were thus wiped out, but corn gains were slashed only about half.

Wheat closed flurried, ¼-¾ of a cent above yesterday's finish. September, 110⅝-¾; December, 111¼-½; May, 112½-¾;corn 1½-3⅝ advanced; September, 101⅜-⅝; December, 93½-⅝; May, 93-93⅜; oats, ⅝-1, ⅛ up; September, 40¾-⅞, and rye at ½-½ gain. The provisions outcome was unchanged to a bulge of 15 cents.

Chicago, July 31.—Electric output of the public utility operating companies in the Standard Gas & Electric Co. system for the week ended July 25, 1936, totaled 100,264,222 kilowatt-hours, an increase of 13.4 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Yield to Profit-Taking as Commodities Continue Advance; Francs Lower.

New York July 31.—Commodities gave a demonstration of strength that appeared to alarm securities markets rather than to stimulate them. New high prices for the season for grains and many minor commodities were accompanied by an irregular recession in stocks but bonds held firm. September wheat closed ⅝ of a cent higher at 110¾ cents a bushel.

Stocks were irregular from the start and what market followers call selective. Toward the close of trading only a handful of stocks were able to stand out against the weakening tendency of leading issues. While profit-taking and excursions into short selling were most active, in the last hour, losses of 1 to 2 points were common among the medium priced shares. More nervous stocks lost 3 to 5 points.

Rubber shares were active and moved sharply higher. Goodrich, which has a recapitalization plan for presentation, the first of next week, and United States Rubber were the features. Sugar and gold stocks also were buoyant. Airplanes stocks ended their recent rise with dips of 1 to 3 points. Tobaccos were helped by a jump of 5 points in Philip Morris.

Rails and utilities were narrow and irregular. Silver hardened with gold stocks and coppers were firm. Oils and mail orders receded. Amusements and motor accessories did fairly well. Can company stocks softened on talk that short crops for vegetables would reduce their business volume.

Foreign Exchange Active.

Foreign exchanges were more active, but the money market was unperturbed at the combination of a week-end and a month-end. French francs suddenly tumbled about 2 points to below 6.59 cents. The gold point is around 6.59¾ and not much further depreciation will be required for gold shipments here to be resumed. Apparently the Spanish situation and its reaction upon French politics was taken more seriously by the market and was the main factor in the decline.

This week's French bank statement, which revealed a sharp contraction in circulation and a further gain in gold, in itself was encouraging, but the fact that French baby bonds are proving to be less popular than similar infantile securities are here was an offsetting influence. In five weeks France has regained about 800 million francs in gold, or about what the Bank of France lost in a single day during the height of the gold exodus. The fall in francs undermined some of the other gold currencies, notably guilders. Pesetas were not quoted at all.

Trade News Favorable.

The week ends with a continuation of favorable industrial news, but without much diminution of caution among the speculative element in stocks. Probably the fresh onslaught of higher prices for farm commodities has had a cooling influence. Whether the drought is proving to have damaged corn and other feed crops more or less than at first feared, the sharp rise in farm prices is a menace to continued industrial recovery.

For one thing, the cost of living may rise steeply enough to bring a fresh outbreak of labor trouble, with or without wage increases, but certainly with greater expense operation and possibly with lower sales volume because of higher prices. If by letting in more foreign foodstuffs the cost of living can be kept from rising too rapidly, the position looks favorable for business expansion this autumn.

Such increase in trade as the season will bring should show its symptoms shortly, such as expansion of bank credit, increase in currency circulation and rising quotations for the dollar as foreigners buy our cotton and other raw materials.

Odd Lots.

Brokers say they know of heavy buying of Newport Industries, some of it coming from Wilmington. They say the du Pont Co. is taking a large part of Newport's production of naval stores. The stock reached a new high for the year . . . American Can lost 5 points and Continental Can gave up 3 points on some one's reported discovery that much less food would be packed this summer . . . The new drought scare also had its effect on farm implements. Case, Deere and Harvester were forced down 2 to 7 points . . . In contrast to the weak farm stocks, Westinghouse rose 5 points, General Electric was firm and shipbuilding shares were active. As usual, Coca-Cola moved ahead.

We Aim to Please.

Philip Morris rose 2 points at the start on the higher dividend announced by the directors after the close of the market yesterday. The new dividend is three times that of the old, but its feature is the explanation of the directors. The explanation was that, although the directors had intended to lift the rate in September, they had hurried their action "because of recent public rumors as to the probability of an increase in the dividend rate and because of inquiries made by stockholders to whom such rumors have been communicated." It isn't often that Wall Street tipsters force the hand of directors, or it isn't often that so much is admitted. Frequently it has been suspected that directors have changed their plans because of leaks, just to spite the tipsters. Incidentally, it is difficult to see how rumors of a dividend increase got around except through the directors. Another factor in the higher rate, it was admitted, was the desire to see rapid subscription to the new stock offered stockholders. The stock had been a little heavy following the offering.

July Trading.

July turns out to have been a fairly good month in Wall street. Some brokers say that the stock exchange members as a whole are doing not a great deal better than breaking even on the current sales volume, but July turnover of slightly under 35,000,000 shares for the 26 trading days was the largest for any month since April, and the largest for July since 1933, when the business mounted to 120,271,000 shares. That, incidentally, was the third largest month on record. The biggest day in July was the 15th, with 1,978,000 shares, and the smallest was the 6th, with 844,000 shares.

Bacon.

New high prices for hogs and corn make it certain that the American familly will either do without bacon this winter or will pay considerably higher prices for the luxury. It looks as though the same thing will be true of butter and eggs and many other farm products. Packing companies, it is presumed, have fairly large supplies of pork, and while the high prices will cut consumption, profits ought to rise over the next few months. Armour 5 per cent bonds, floated last year at 99, sold today for the first time above the offering price.

Car Builders Get 2d Order in 6 Years

Columbus, Ohio, July 31 (AP).—After receiving but one order since 1930, Ralston Steel Car Co. officials said today four orders for a total of 1,900 cars now on their books would provide steady work for a full force of 700 employes the remainder of 1936. Frank A. Livingston, president, said the only order received during the depression years was one for 750 cars, about two months' work, in 1934. A crew of 200 men was busy today whipping the plant into shape for peak production of 20 to 30 cars a day. The first order to be filled is one from the Pere Marquette Railroad for 500 automobile cars. Norfolk & Western has ordered 800 box cars, Wheeling & Lake Erie 500 and the Chesapeake & Ohio 100.

Freight Traffic Expands Rise Over Last Year

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended July 25 totaled 731,062 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was an increase of 135,490 cars or 22.7 per cent above the corresponding week in 1935, and 121,020 cars or 19.8 per cent above the corresponding week in 1934. Loading of revenue freight for the week of July 25 was an increase of 10,680 cars or 1.5 per cent above the preceding week.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 55,022 cars, a decrease of 3,533 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 21,665 cars above the corresponding week in 1935, and 11,395 cars above the same week in 1934. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended July 25 totaled 34,193 cars, a decrease of 3,801 cars below the preceding week this year, but an increase of 12,042 cars above the same week in 1935.

Livestock loading amounted to 13,648 cars, an increase of 1,333 cars above the preceding week and 3,976 cars above the same week in 1935, but a decrease of 12,647 cars below the same week in 1934. In the Western districts alone, loading of livestock for the week ended July 25 totaled 10,518 cars, an increase of 343 cars above the preceding week this year and 3,624 cars above the same week in 1935.

Coke loading amounted to 8,612 cars, a decrease of 48 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 4,052 cars above the same week in 1935 and 4,084 cars above the same week in 1934.

All districts reported increases in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight, compared with the corresponding weeks in 1935 and 1934.

Curtis Publishing Nets 45c in Quarter

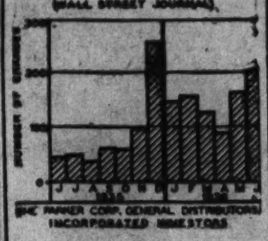
New York, July 31 (AP).—For the quarter ended June 30 Curtis Publishing Co., magazines, Philadelphia, had an indicated net profit of $2,320,664 equal after dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preferred stock to 45 cents a common share, without provision for undistributed profits surtax. This compared with $1,787,207 or 15 cents a share in the March quarter and $1,994,448 or 27 cents a share in the like 1935 period. There is an accumulation of unpaid dividends on the preferred stock. For the six months ended June 30 net profit was $4,107,871 or 60 cents a common share against $3,773,297 or 42 cents a share in the first half last year.

Square D. Company.

The Square D Co. reports a net profit of $341,055, subject to year end adjustments, for the six months ended June 30, 1936, before any reserve for Federal surtax on undistributed profits but after all other charges. This is comparable to earnings for the same period in 1935 of $268,926.

For the 12 months ended June 30, 1936 the net profit was $798,613, equal to $2.39 per share on the outstanding Class B common stock, after deducting the full annual dividend of $2.20 per share on the Class A preferred stock. These figures are comparable to a net profit for the 12 months ended June 30, 1935 of $498,065.

Dividend Increases Thrice Last Year



Boston, Mass., July 31.—Favorable dividend changes have been running high this year. In fact, during the first six months the favorable dividend changes were nearly three times those in the first half of 1935. The other side of the picture is equally impressive, for the unfavorable changes so far this year were only about half those in the first six months of last year.

$50,000,000 Bills Offered by Treasury

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that tenders are invited for Treasury bills to the amount of $50,000,000, or thereabouts. They will be 273-day bills; and will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders.

Tenders will be received at the Federal Reserve banks or branches up to 2 p. m. on Monday. Tenders will not be received at the Treasury Department.

Philip Morris & Co. Treble Dividend

New York, July 31 (AP).—Directors of Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., today placed the common stock on a $3 annual basis with the declaration of a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, payable October 15 to stock of record October 1.

Jobs in Britain Outnumber Total in 1929

Relief Costs There Last Year $9 Per Capita; $18 in U. S.

New York, July 31.—In marked contrast to conditions still prevailing in this country, unemployment in Great Britain has been reduced to about 14 per cent of the insured workers, and the number holding jobs actually exceeds that in 1929, states The Index of the New York Trust Co. today. Expenditures in behalf of the unemployed, it is further pointed out, amounted to $350,000,000 during the last fiscal year in conrast to $2,300,000,000 for emergency relief in the United States.

On this basis British unemployment costs in 1935 constituted 9 per cent of the total budget and amounted to $9 per capita for the entire population, according to the bank review, while comparable costs in this country represented one-third of all expenditure by the Federal Government and came to $18 per capita, or twice as high as in Great Britain. Moreover British unempolyment costs were included within a balanced budget while those in the United States added materially to a steadily mounting public debt.

"There is inherent in this state of affairs both a lesson and a warning for the United States," The Index says. "Various governmental measures in Great Britain have helped to increase employment in pace with increased industrial production, notably the encouragement afforded the manufacture of durable goods by a sound fiscal policy and the impetus given to private building construction. At the same time, the apparent resignation to a continuance of unemployment at a level as high as 2,000,000 out of a total of some 13,000,000 insured workers—recently forecast as an average for the next ten years in a report of the unemployment insurance statutory committee—points to the future difficulties which this country may face if it is not more successful than Great Britain in combating unemployment."

1. Find the apartment that meets your requirement—in the section in which you want to live.

2. Note the key letters and the number at the end of the ad. For example: D-5.

3. Then find the letter of the alphabet (in this case, D) at the top of the map. This means the apartment is located somewhere between the D at the top and the D at the bottom of the map.

4. Then look for the numeral (in this case, 5) at either side of the map. Where the D and 5 meet is the vicinity in which the apartment is located.

NED BRANT—A Story of College Athletics

By Bob Zuppke
Famous Football Coach.

IF THAT PHANTOM SWORDSMAN COULD SEE US DRILL, HE'D THINK TWICE BEFORE TRYING TO START SOMETHING—WE'RE NOT SCARED OF HIM!
UNSEEN AND UNHEARD, THE ESCAPED CRAZY MAN WHO HAS TERRORIZED AN ENTIRE STATE, MARCHES QUIETLY BEHIND THE YOUNGSTERS—

STRAIGHTEN THAT LINE—YOU ARE GOING TO PASS IN REVIEW BEFORE YOUR MAYOR, TIM!
IT'S THE LUNATIC! AND THEY DON'T KNOW HE'S THERE BEHIND THEM! I'VE GOT TO DO SOMETHING—GOT TO KEEP COOL, LIKE COACH BRANT SAID!

APPLE MARY

By Martha Orr

GEE, GRAN'MA, YOU SPEND MORE TIME AT BILL'S "HAPPY HOUR CAFE," THAN YOU DO AT DAD FLICK'S STORE, AND WE OWN PART OF THE STORE.
BUT, DENNIE, THOSE NEW SPICED APPLES I FIXED FOR BILL, MADE SUCH A HIT WITH HIS CUSTOMERS, HE WANTS ME TO MAKE A BATCH FOR HIM EVERY DAY.

WHY DOESN'T BESSIE LEARN HOW TO FIX 'EM? THEN YOU COULD THINK UP SOMETHING THAT WOULD MAKE A HIT WITH THE STORE CUSTOMERS.
BUT IT'LL BE MINE, TOO, BEFORE LONG, AND YOU WON'T EVEN KNOW YOU'VE TOLD ME.

'Love' Is Scientists' Subject Tomorrow

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches of Christ Scientist tomorrow. The text is from I John 4:8: "He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself."

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Dost thou love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind?' This command includes much, even the surrender of all merely material sensation, affection and worship."

On The Air Today

The "moonlight treat of the season" is being modestly offered the Washington public tonight by the hustling Harry Baker (of the "City of Washington" Bakers) and the twin attractions of WJSV—Art Godfrey and Arch McDonald.

But the party isn't coming off exactly as planned. It seems that McDonald was making a benefit appearance on one of Mr. Baker's moonlight boat trips some weeks ago in the interests of charity.

"You know, Harry, quoth Arch, "Sometime I'd like to put on a benefit all my own. A benefit for McDonald."

"And why not?" replied Baker. "You fellows are always ready to perform for someone else. You and Art Godfrey should keep in mind that old line about 'charity begins at home'—at least just once." And he added that the boat was at their service any time they decided to do something about it.

As a result of this casual conversation, Arthur and Arch hired the steamer for tonight and ballyhooed the spectacular "personal appearance benefit cruise," the "benefit" being the Godfrey-McDonald "retirement fund."

Everything went along nicely until early this week. A stroke of lighting set fire to Godfrey's home near Vienna and in typical Godfrey fashion he used the incident as ammunition for his chatter on the air—morning and night. McDonald picked it up. Between them they painted a sorry picture of Godfrey's affairs. Lighting, fire, heavy financial loss and all that sort of thing.

McDonald, in a spirit of spoofing Godfrey, even suggested that listeners who had old shoes, clothes and household furnishings, could send them to Arthur at the studio where they would be welcomed. McDonald solemnly advised that Godfrey would welcome shoes that weren't even mates since he took a No. 9 for one foot and a No. 12 for the other.

But they hadn't reckoned on one thing: a part of the listening audience took them seriously. Not only did tickets for the "benefit" sell more rapidly but gifts arrived in quantities. Old shoes, trousers, overcoats. Godfrey began to feel embarrassed. Money began to trickle in. The last straw was an anonymous gift of $5 in cash from a girl who said she wanted to contribute her bit toward recouping the Godfrey loss.

In the last 24 hours Godfrey has taken the air with a new theme: Please don't send any more clothes or money. This whole business is just a hoax. The "benefit" isn't a benefit at all; it's a racket!

No doubt everything will turn out all right by tonight, I hope so. After all, radio and the stage are constantly called on for artists for benefit performances and I'm for this one. It's the first I ever heard of—for the benefit of those performing.
